STUDENT'S

HISTORY OF ENGLAND

FROM THE EARLIEST TIMES TO THE CONCLUSION OF THE GREAT WAR

BY

SAMUEL R. GARDINER, D.C.L., LL D
LATE FELLOW OF MERTON COLLEGE, OXPORD RETC.

VOL. I.

B.C. 55-A.D 1500

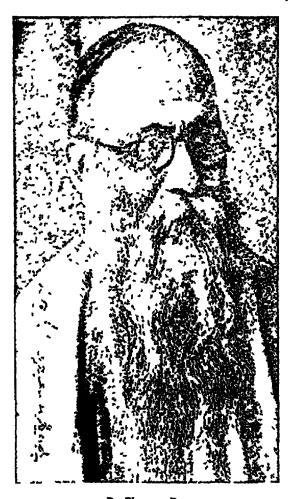

NEW IMPRESSION

LONGMANS, GREEN, AND CO.

39 PATERNOSTER ROW, LONDON
FOURTH AVENUE & 30th STREET, NEW YORK
BOMBAY, CALCUTTA, AND MADRAS
1920

All rights reserved,

Thanks are due to The Theosophical Publishing House, Adyar, Madras, for their kind permission for publishing this edition

Dr Bhagavan Das

ESSENTIAL UNITY OF ALL RELIGIONS

BY
DR BHAGAVAN DAS

BHARATIYA VIDYA BHAVAN CHOWPATTY ROAD, BOMBAY 7

First Edition	1982
Second Edition	1939
Third Edition (U.S.A.)	1946
Fourth Edition	1947
Fifth Edition	1955
Sixth Edition	1966,

Price Rs. 7 50 or Sh 12 or $ 2

PRINTED IN INDIA

By D V Syamala Rau at the Vasanta Press, The Theosophical Society, Adyar, Madras-20, and Published by S Ramakrishnan, Executive Secretary, Bharatiya Vidya Bhavan, Chowpatty, Bombay 7

PREFACE TO THE SIXTH EDITION

My revered father Dr Bhagavan Das, the author of a large number of learned works on philosophy and religion, had himself always regarded "Essential Unity Of All Religions" as his magnum opus It would be interesting to recall the history of this book. In December 1930 at a conference in Banaras, he read a paper on "The Unity of Asiatic Thought" This he expanded and elaborated in edition after edition as "Essential Unity Of All Religions" The second edition of the book, published in 1939, caught the eye of an American gentleman who actually reprinted it as my father would not keep any copyright in his books, and distributed nearly 1500 copies of it, free of all costs, in many countries of the world

The fifth edition was published by the Theosophical Publishing House of Madras in 1955 My father passed away in September 1958, and was indeed happy that this very greatly enlarged and expanded edition of his original work, was able to see the light of day before he himself left the stage. So far as I am concerned, I must confess that I was always amazed at the wide intellectual interests of my father, and of the hard work that he was able to put in, day after day, despite advancing years, to produce his great works He never used a secretary, he never dictated anything to anybody He did everything single-handed, himself There was no book in his large library that he himself had not read and annotated He was up-to-date in all branches of knowledge He read and wrote incessantly

He was a very careful man, and for fear lest his manuscripts should miscarry in the post despite all the care he took in packing and registering the precious documents, he would painfully make copies of his works in his own hand, however large these might be He attended to all his correspondence—and that was large enough—himself, and was willing to give the benefits of his deep thought to any persons—and they were also large in number—who came to consult him about their personal or intellectual difficulties

I am very grateful to the Bharatiya Vidya Bhavan, its President and his colleagues and assistants for their great kindness and courtesv in offering to bring out this work on "Essential Unity Of All Religions" in a very special edition I have no doubt that the enthusiasm and the enterprise that characterise the Bhavan's good work in all directions, will enable them to make this book very widely read as it deserves to be It enshrines the labours and the ideals of a great scholar and thinker, and I personally very strongly and sincerely feel that the world will be the richer and better if it could understand him, and accept his suggestions for the solution of the problems that are troubling mankind today

It is my earnest hope and prayer that my father's work may live, and that it will be a source of inspiration to many to act and think along right lines for the welfare of themselves and human society as a whole

RAJ BIIAVAN, HOMBAN-6 October 2 1960 SRI PRAKASA

PREFACE TO THE FIFTH EDITION

In the winter of 1917-1918, this writer went to South India with some members of his family on pilgrimage. He halted at Adyar, Madras, for a few days, and was kindly put up there by "Mother A B", as all Theosophists in India had begun affectionately to call Mrs (later Dr.) Annie Besant, President of Theosophical Society. He went on with his party to Rāméshvaram, visiting on way thereto, all the great Temples whose cyclopean stone-work almost rivals that of Ancient Egypt, as travellers who have seen both say

Thirty-five years later, in March 1954, I had to go to Madras, again, for some personal reasons. There, in evenings, I went out with friends for drives on the Marina, said to be one of the finest. Along one side of the broad road, I saw, at intervals, life-size bronze statues, which, I was told, were, some, of former British Governors, others, of famous Indians, two or three living. One was of Dr. Annie Besant. We stopped the car, I got down and had a close look at the fine statue. I was told that in 1936, three years after she passed away (on 20th September 1933), public-spirited citizens of Madras, who knew, and were grateful for, what she had done for India generally and Madras specially, subscribed needed money, had statue made, and requested the Mayor and Corporation of the City to take charge of it and set it up in some appropriate place. They gladly did so, on the Marina, and, in addition, named that quarter of the city as Besant Nagar, i.e., Besant Town Statue is flood-lighted at night by Corporation.

Work that A B did, from 1893 to 1933, is an important part of history of India Mme H P Blavatsky and Col H. S Olcott started the work especially Col Olcott, by his annual tours and lectures in most of the larger towns, but it was she who first successfully induced materialismridden Indians, graduated in colleges established by British-Indian Government and regarding 'Hinduism' as a huge conglomerate of meaningless superstitious beliefs and practices, to think seriously whether there was any substance in . their Ancestral Religion It certainly was, and continues to be, a mass of such absurdities among those not educated in the new way and also among vast masses of uneducated She induced the others, by explaining essentials of Sanatana Dharma, Eternal Religion', (miscalled Hindu-1sm'), in the light of Theosophy, 'God-Wisdom' as identical with Brahma-Vidya, Atma-Vidya, A-dvarta-Védanta, to feel respect for their Manus, Rshis, Rāmas, and Krshnas. Thus she gave back to them their lost Self-Knowledge and self-respect, first indispensable step to Self-Government And she won respect for Sanatana Dharma, not only among Indians, but also from all nations speaking English For, during months that were hot in India, she toured about incessantly in other countries, addressing large audiences on Theosophy Thus, knowledge of main ideas of Védanta, 'Final Knowledge', End and Culmination of Knowledge', 'Knowledge of Eternal and Universal Supreme Self', which was formerly confined to a handful of Orientalist scholars. was spread broadcast among masses. Her work was helped greatly by the fact that local dailies everywhere reported her lectures fully, which were, thus, read by tens of thousands who could not hear them in person. All this work indirectly helped the Indian People in their political struggle, by winning sympathy for them in those countries

Having thus prepared way, she joined Indian National Congress formally, and wrought nobly for India's Freedom from subjection to Britain, not for utter separation from it She did not live to see that Freedom achieved. It was achieved, on 15th August, 1947, through self-sacrificing efforts of many patriots of all vocations, in all sections of the People, under leadership of Mahātmā Gāṇḍhī. These efforts were helped very greatly by World-conditions resulting from second World-War. A B's aim always was an Indo-British or British-Indian Commonwealth; and it will surely be a very great satisfaction to her soul in Heaven to know that, though India has become a sovereign Independent Republic, the most friendly relations exist between the two countries. This happy state is very largely the result of the life and work of Dr. Annie Besant and Mahätmā Gāndhī. 1

It has been said above that A B conveyed only main ideas of Védanta to English speaking peoples She could not well do more She derived her knowledge of them from English translations of a few main Scriptures She had to do, and did, so very much other work that she could not spare time to master Sanskrt, a difficult language, and study its many and voluminous Scriptures in original, also, to gather original texts from Scriptures, except Bible, of other religions, and arrange them side by side with Védanta Texts This work has been done in E U A R, because its compiler had much more lessure By thus proving the Essential Unity of All Religions, this work eliminates one Prime Cause of Discord between Peoples, viz, Religious Dissensions, which have caused great wars and massacres throughout the ages, and it thereby serves the immediate and exceedingly important practical purpose of helping to create Good-Will

¹ An excellent and comprehensive account of A.B's life and work in and for India is given in Shri Sri Prakkas's book, Annie Besant, as Woman and as Leader, (pub 1841, by T.P.H., Adyar, new edition, pub 1854, by Rhàraṭiya Vidyā Bhavan, Bombay) Other aspects of her life which did not come within Shri Sri Prakāsa's experience are dealt with in present writer's Annie Besant and the Changing World (pub 1834; by T.P.H., Adyar)

among Men, whence that Peace on Earth, indispensable to Prosperity, for which every sane heart and head is hungering and thirsting all the world over

While in Madras, I had opportunity to settle details for new edition of this book, with Shri K S Krishnamūrti, public-spirited Manager of T.P H He had already arranged to bring out an edition of 2,000 copies I wanted greatly at least another thousand But T.P H could not afford the further sum required, Rs 7,000, because cost of everything, wages, paper, all printing material, especially lead, copper etc., and machinery, had increased enormously during and after second World War. I was fortunately able to secure the further sum from donors who choose to remain anonymous

I was able to stay in Madras for two months, and another two in beautiful Ootacamund, deservedly called "Queen of Indian Hill-Stations" Twelve formes had been printed off when I started back for Banaras on 10th July, 1954

After this, work became much slower Galley-proofs, first page-proofs, final page-proofs, had to travel to an fro, some 1,200 miles each way, between Banāras and Madrās I had requested Manager, T P H, to print new edition, page-forpage, of previous If he could have done that, it would have saved me immense labour He could not Types of Vasanta Press were different. length of lines and number of them on each page Previous edition comprised lx. 626 smaller pages Present one has cn + 904 I have had to change all page headings, and all page-numbers in Indices This last was especially troublesome to 87-years old worn-out eyes Due to peculiar conditions. I have had to do all material-collecting and writing work single-handed, and have received no help from others, for this as well as for all my other books, except that mentioned in prefaces Many mistakes, of all sorts, have therefore been left behind inevitably in this edition Need I apologise for them? Page of Agenda et Corrigenda has been placed immediately after Contents, to enable readers to correct their copies before beginning to read Only such errors as seemed likely to cause misapprehension have been noted Minor ones, many, have not been.

Author's and Publishers' thanks are due, first and foremost, to readers whose appreciation has caused so many editions to be printed, next, to late Shrī Jinarājadāsa, President of T S, scholar and linguist, and to the present President, Shrī N Śrī Rām, for giving needed permission to T P H Author's thanks are due to Shri K S Krishnamūrti for undertaking, in difficult times of great financial stringency and soaring prices of all things, a reprint of this large work. His thanks are due also to staff of Vasanta Press for excellent work

It is a profound satisfaction to me that this book goes forth, with Foreword by the President of India, and Appreciations by the first and last Indian Governor-General of India, the Vice-President of India, and a Justice of the Hague International Court of Justice, High Symbol of Peace between Nations—goes forth to all countries on its Mission of Service of Man and therefore of God

"Shānti Sadan", Sigrā, Banaras, India Dīpavalī, (Festival of Lights) 14-11-1955

Bhagavān Dās

FOREWORD TO FIRST EDITION

(Abridged for this)

"The first World Conference on Education was held in San Francisco in July, 1923 Out of this Conference, the World Federation of Educational Associations was born. The Constitution of the Federation provided the following article regarding Conferences." The World Conference shall meet in full session at such place and time as may be determined by the Directors; but a meeting of sections, one in Europe, one in America, and one in Asia, may be held in the intervening years."

First All-Asia Education Conference was held at Banaras, from 26th to 30th December, 1930, in Central Hindu College

Its Conveners desired the undersigned to write a paper on "Unity of Asiatic Thought" Subject took shape in his mind as "The Essential Unity of All Religions" Asiatic thought is deeply tinged with Religion' Asia has given birth to all the great hving religions. He read his paper to the Conference on December 30, 1930

¹ Foreword to Report of The First All-Asia Education Conference

It has been revised and enlarged greatly by addition of many more parallel passages

If this book is so fortunate as to succeed in giving a taste to readers for discovering identities of thought in the great records of deepest human experience, in different languages, they will be able to see such identities at almost every step, in their further readings in such records, to their great joy, and to perpetual expansion of their sympathetic appreciation of others

Some learned scholars essay to prove that religions of later birth have copied from earlier. The question, whether it is so, may have an intellectual historical interest for a learned few. A far deeper, more vital, more human interest is possessed, and for all mankind, by the question, why they have done so, if they have copied from one another at all Is it not because there is only One Eternal Truth for all to copy? New generations are born from old, new nations grow out of colonies from old, new lamps are lighted from old, but the Life, the Light, the Might, which is only embodied in and expressed by everchanging forms, is beyond them all, is common to them all, is originated by none of them, but originates them all It is an honour and a duty to copy-if what is copied is Truth, it were a disgrace to be original—if what is originated be False And there can be 'originality' in only the 'fleeting', therefore the False There can be no originality in Truth, for only the Eternal can be True, That only which never changes is really and strictly True, and minor truths, laws, and facts, which issue from It and constitute Its Nature, can only be, and ought to be, copied, in the large sense, diligently, hence, there can be no 'copy-right' in Truth. But there is no need to 'copy', in the small sense The River of Life is ever flowing, whoever feels thirsty can dip his bucket directly into it The same Truth wells up independently in the heart of Seer after Seeker Seeker after Seeker

While compiling this book and revising it again and again, the compiler has prayed constantly to the Great Masters of all the living Religions, Manu, Krshma, Vyāsa, Zoroaster, Moses, Isaiah, Laotse, Confucius, Buddha, Jina, Christ, Muhammad, Nānak, and the Spiritual Hierarchy to which they all belong, for guidance of his fingers in this effort to serve his fellow men and women of all countries

He should inform his readers that he has no knowledge of Arabic and but a smattering of Persian But he has a profound conviction that Truth is One and the same, and that all the Great Lovers of Mankind cannot but have said the same true things. He has, therefore, from tune to time, asked Maulavi friends to give him texts from Quian and Hadis (sayings of Muhammad), parallel to Samskrt texts whose purport he placed before them. As Quan is a comparatively small-sized book, and many good Maulavis know it by heart, they were able to supply the needed texts without much difficulty, in some cases readily Persian and Urdu texts are, most of them, quoted from famous and venerated Sūfī-s, like Maulānā Rūm, Hāfiz, Jāmī, Sā'dī, Omar Khayyām, Ghazālī, Mansūr, Chishtī, Wesālī, Shabistari, Khusrau, Sarmad, Fariduddin Attār Much helpful information about Süfism, and many valuable Arabic and Persian texts, have been found in the excellent, very learned and very thoughtful, books of Khan Sahib Khaja Khān (of Madrās), viz, Studies in Tasawwif, The Secret of An-al-Haq, Philosophy of Islām, and The Wisdom of the Prophets Because of the present writer's ignorance of Alabic and slight acquaintance with Persian, there are probably many mistakes in roman transcript and English translations Of course, he has based English renderings of Arabic texts on explanations kindly supplied by Maulavi friends, and on published translations regarded as standard Still he may have failed to be accurate Readers learned in Alabic and Persian will kindly correct. Original texts also have been reproduced here, in roman transcript, translations by themselves do not command complete confidence; and correction by learned readers will be made easier.

This compiler shall be very happy if friends learned in their respective Scriptures will approve this kind of work and will take it up themselves. Indeed, what is very much needed is that representatives of all the great living religions, large-hearted, broad-minded, copiously-informed, philanthropically-motived, may come together in a small and active Committee, and prepare a series of graded text-books of Universal Religion, expounding main' points systematically, and illustrating them amply, , for ready reference and obviation of doubts, with parallel passages, in original, from their several Scriptures. Such text-books would be authentic and authoritative, carry great weight with all communities, open their eyes to the utterly Common Essentials of all Religions, and be introduced and studied with pleasure and profit, in private homes as well as public educational institutions, by students and readers of various ages and capacities-to the sure and certain promotion of Peace on Earth and Good-Will among Men.

It will make him rejoice, and will repay him a thousandfold for such labor as he has been privileged to bestow upon this compilation, if Universities and other educational institutions make it their own; and issue their own editions of it at cost-price, for use of their students, after making improvements in it, by omissions or alterations, and, particularly, additions of many more parallel passages, (on the broad principles, as well as on details, of observances, rites and ceremonies, customs and practices), through learned scholars on their staff, who may be specially conversant with the subject, and who may form, in each University, a Committee of Representatives of the several Faiths, such as has been desiderated above-for where else should large hearts, broad minds, and richly stored intellects be found, if not in Universities? If a single such Committee could be formed, of members contributed by different Universities-that were best of all: its work would carry greatest weight and be most convincing.

ATIM! AMEN! AMEN!

Banāras, 17-11-1932.

BHAGAVIN DIS.

3

A LETTER TO READER

(Revised)

ÁS

PREFACE TO SECOND EDITION

Dear Reader,

This book has been compiled by a would-be servant of his kind, and, withal, one who, all his life, has been drawn from within, by inclination, towards study and thinking, and dragged from without, by circumstances, towards executive and miscellaneous work of various kinds. It is likely, therefore, to have such defects as are natural to work done in such conditions.

To many readers, many paragraphs, which link up texts quoted from scriptures, will probably give the feeling of a car running over a road paved with worn cobble-stones, unfamiliar Samskri and Arabic-Persian words have been put in lavishly, side by side with English equivalents. Compiler can only plead, in exculpation, that the very purpose of the book is, by means of such juxtapositions of technical words of the three most widespread living religions, Christianity, Islām, Védism (or 'Hinduism', including Buddhism and Jainism, which use many Samskrt words in common), to throw into relief, identities and similarities of their thoughts, aspirations, practices. To those who are acquainted with all three languages, the collocations will, it is hoped, bring the pleasure of gatherings of friends from distant lands, nations, races, meeting and greeting each other with beaming smiles.

And there is much repetition. But that is the way of Scriptures also! And this book is just a compilation of their utterances. Even the thread, on which those precious pearls are strung, is spun out of material supplied by those Scriptures themselves There is nothing new in the book, except interpretation of the Great Sayings. Which interpretation also is mostly only recalling of what has been forgotten .It may be said, then, that when the spiritual food is good and wholesome, it is, indeed, worth while to repeat it, day after day, even like healthy and pleasant material food. Not too often, of course, nor on very large quantities; for them it palls; nor taken too quickly, without leisurely 'mastication', rumination, reflection, turning, over, and over in mind, as food in mouth; for then at does not yield its full sweet taste, and is not duly assimilated., (1), (1)

There are, possibly, a few errors m translation of passages quoted from numerous Scriptures. Original texts, given in roman, will enable reader to rectify errors; himself, or with help from friendly scholars. Versions are seldom literal. Such, word for word, done with help of a lexicon, often rum the real sense. Principle followed here is that translator should absorb the 'spirit' of the original 'letter', and reproduce that 'spirit' faithfully in the 'letter' of the new language.

Renderings have all been done in blank verse; rare exceptions in rhyme. 'Emotional' constituent of religion, now devoutness, then solemnity, again earnestness, or injunctional impressiveness, and, throughout, 'holiness', of scriptural utterances, most of which are themselves in verse or rhythmic prose—this can be more truly reflected in verse than in prose. This too has necessitated some deviation from literality. It is trusted, nevertheless, that intention of the original has always been correctly expressed. At times, version has been expanded a little, in light of original context of text actually quoted, very rarely, it has been abridged.

This whole attempt, to bring together parallel texts of several Scriptures, to prove identities and similarities, may, perhaps, fail to satisfy some critics, who would insist that minute differences should be at least as clearly brought out and emphasised as, if not more than, resemblances. They would, no doubt, be quite right, from their own standpoint, and for purposes of accurate intellectual scholarship. This compiler's plea is that 'intellectual' interest is not the only interest of the book, that 'emotional' and 'practical' interests are of at least as great concern in it; that minute differences are already far too much stressed and acted on, to great harm of mankind; that resemblances are far too much ignored, to their great loss; that even intellectually. what varies with each, deserves to be regarded assuperficial, Non-Essential, and what runs through and is common to all, to be regarded as Core and Essence; and that, therefore, essential points, on which all religious agree, should be given far more prominence than they have been hitherto, and beregarded as very Heart of all Religions, as very Core of Truth; on the 'democratic principle' of 'majority .vote'; and for the very important and truly practical purpose of promoting mutual Good Understanding and Peace all over Earth.

There may be critics of another class; persons of strong belief, of sincere and intense faith. They naturally feel, each, his own particular creed to be unique, 'the one and only', the best. Wish to be thought 'original', 'the first', 'unprecedented', 'unrivalled', is a Nature-ordained and unavoidable preliminary, in all aspects of human life, instinctual, nutritive, acquisitive, conjugal, military, financial. even literary and scientific. It is so, in every course of action, where ambitious competition is involved. And where is it not? All embodied life scems incessant love-and-war, both concentrated in 'lealousy'. of great and small degree This is patent in the worldly 'life of pursuit' of things of the senses, it is also present, though ever diminishingly, in the 'life of renunciation', until the very end We may therefore say that wish to be individually 'unique' is first of the two main aspects, Egoist-Altruist, of that Duality which runs through all Life and Mature; as Wish to be Universally 'Unique', All-One, identified with All, is second. Preliminary Egoist wish, therefore, invades the regions of Religion also, and very powerfully! 'My creed is best, and wholly original, different from all others; utterly new, nothing like it ever before; has borrowed nothing from any previous one; and is the final one too, there can never be another equally good, much less better'; even as 'My race, color, caste, sex, 1s best, I belong to a Chosen people, a divinely privileged caste, a fundamentally superior race, a solar or lunar dynasty, my nation rules the waves, my nation is uber alles; my country has tallest sky-scrapers, finest biggest costliest buildings, largest purse, vastest hoard of gold, is superlative in everything; on my empire Sun never sets; I am sprung directly from mouth of Brahmä, I am son of Sun'; and so on. It requires much sad experience, before such egoism comes under control; before it is recognised that, while a certain amount of competitive egoism is necessary for growth of young animal or young nation, more than that amount is a hindrance, is even positively destructive; before soul turns to genuine Altruism, patient tolerance, understanding sympathy, the Truth of All in All; before it realises that, though, no doubt, distinctions of superior and inferior, senior and junior, stronger and weaker, are facts in nature, yet that they are relative and must not be overemphasised, that strength must not be boasted too much, nor weakness too much despised

No one can say that his physical body is made of matter created out of nothing, originally, for the first time, for him alone, has borrowed nothing from anyone; differs from all other matter. It is fairly obvious that each atom of every 'body' has passed through countless bodies in the past, and will pass through countless bodies in future; though it is also true that each body is somewhat different in make-up from all others. So too, every thought, emotion, volition, of every 'mind' or 'soul', (whichever word is preferred), has passed, and will pass, through countless other minds or souls; though also with some difference in grouping and manifesting;

whereby each 'mind' or soul becomes as 'distinctive ' or ' individual ' as each body. Let us recognise such differences, 'realities', which constitute the 'personal' element or 'personality', by all means; but let us regard them as of less importance, as changing, passing, therefore Non-Essential: and let us recognise more fully, 'idealities', the 'impersonal' or 'all-personal' element, and regard them as of greater importance, persisting through changes, permanent, and therefore Essential. In other words, we should value, but not over-value, the 'individual'. the 'personal'. We should value at least a little more, the 'Universal', 'the Common Consciousness' belonging to all individuals: whereby alone can be 'each for all, and all for each', whereby alone social life, collective existence, feel and fact of unitive 'We', as distinguished from, and at same time inclusive of, feel and fact of separative and exclusive 'I's', is made possible.

Unhappily, most of us are at that stage of 'youth' (of mind) in evolution, in which we take greater delight in feeling 'peculiar', 'uniquely individual', 'original', than in feeling 'Common', 'Universal', 'Eternal'. Yet craving for latter is there, always, in every heart. It is there sub-consciously, not understandingly. No one wants to feel 'uniquely individual' in solitude, away from all fellow-creatures, 'away from the haunts of men', 'far from the madding crowd'; but wants to do so amidst other individuals, otherwise his 'peculiarity', which is wholly dependent on contra-distinction from others, would disappear. Thus does he tie himself to others unavoidably. The craving is present in every heart supra-consciously also: for the reason that every individual self is Universal Self, and yearns in the depths of his heart, to recover consciously his forgotten and lost high status.

Of course, we must not futilely try to abolish wholly, this preliminary wish to feel separate and peculiar, in respect of religions, any more than in respect of individuals. It too has an obvious and necessary place in the evolutionary Scheme of God's Nature, Universal Seli's Nature. But we have to moderate it, reconcile it with, slowly transmute it into, its opposite; more and more. This is not impossible; rather, it too is equally ordained by that same Nature.

In the work of reconciling religions, it is very easy to avoid hurting sensitiveness on the subject of originality, by studiously eschewing all attempt to derive any one religion out of any other. It is not necessary at all to make such attempt, so far as the general public is concerned. Scholars who wish to study religions comparatively and historically, may of course do so for themselves, i.e., for their own refined recreation; and also for enrichment of scientific knowledge regarding human psychical evolution, even as biologists trace physical evolution. But controversial propaganda should be avoided, in interests of peace.

Also, if task of tracing ancestry of religions is pursued stringently and diligently, with open mind, it must obviously prove to be one without possibility of completion and termination. It will be like endeavouring to answer the question: 'Is tree first, or seed first?'. "Veil after veil will lift, but there must be veil upon veil behind". Who can trace the atoms-andmentations of any individual body-mind through ancestor before ancestor, up to a really first beginning? Metaphysic tells us that there can be no such absolute beginning, in strict sense we could go right up to beginning of our solar system, in primal nebula or invisible 'eiher' or 'radiant matter', that would require to be derived from the corpus of a vet earlier system; and so on, ad infinitum. Why not then promote religious brotherhood and peace among the general public, by saying at once, what is utterly true also-that all atoms and all mentations and all religions, of all countless generations of living beings, past, present, future, not only of this earth, but of all orbs of heaven, (each of which has, presumably, its own types of living beings), and all visible and invisible planes of matter, are all equally derived from the Universal, Eternal, Body-Mind, Matter-Spirit, God-Nature, the One Omnipotent, Omnipresent, Omniscient Self, in whose Consciousness "all things live and move and have their being," which pervades them all?

It is better to understand, appraise, appreciate, than to ridicule, belittle, depreciate; better to see the good points more than the bad; better to see agreements more than differences; better to make peace than war.

Some students of comparative religion, of a tendency opposite to that which claims unique originality for the creed it favors, may say: "Since there is so much similarity, even identity in some respects, between all, therefore, each later must have borrowed from an earlier; and, therefore, the 'democratic' test of validity, majority of votes, consensus of opinion, proffered in the book, in respect of 'religion', which test is not a test in 'science' at all, does not hold good. Consensus is not independent. We have only one vote, repeated over and over again, flowing down the river of time; and it may have been given to a falsehood in the beginning."

Reply to this would be: "Even in Science, method of concomitant variations, used for testing truth of hypotheses and conclusions, is only a way of proving 'unanimity', through 'uniformity,' or, at least overwhelming 'majority', of votes Secondly, we have right to ask, What is cause of the initial falsehood, if any? And why has mankind given its vote to, and put faith in, such a falsehood; a falsehood of this particular kind, and generation aftergeneration?" No sufficient answer has ever been offered to this query.

Yet again, some thinkers endeavour to explain away a religion or a philosophy by peculiar psychological constitution of individual who started that religion or formulated that philosophy, or by 'environment', or 'historical accident', or 'economic', or 'geographic', or 'physiographic' circumstances. Such explanations may, no doubt, be justified in respect of variable 'peculiarities'; which, however, ought to be regarded as 'non-essential', for reasons mentioned before. They cannot explain invariable fundamental 'generalities'. Also, question arises again, and always · Why and how those peculiar individual constitutions, historical accidents, economic and other circumstances, mutations and variations?

Every law and fact requires further laws and facts to explain it; these, yet others! ad infinitum; until we come to Infinite Self, Total Consciousness (including Sub-, Supra-, and Un-Conscious; waking, dreaming, slumbering), Universal Mind, Anima Mundi, and Its Will-and-Imagination; which works by Eonic Plan of Integration and Disintegration of Forms, according to its own Meta-physical (including physical) Laws of Nature. In this All-pervading All-including Mind and Its infinite Ideation, all Religion, Philosophy, Science, Law, Art, meet and merge, and from It they all emerge; in endless repetition When we come to That, all questions are answered, all doubts are set at rest, Final Synthesis is achieved; Final Peace of Mind is gained.

Without achieving such synthesis, Human World cannot attain Happiness, here or hereafter Religious and other wars of the past, communal riots and pogroms of the present, between Christians and Muslims, and Hindus and Muslims, between different castes of Hindus, between Shīā Muslims and Sunnī Muslims, in India, Jews and Arabs in Palestine, Jews and Germans in Germany, the vast politico-economic riots ze, wars of the recent past, and of the present (in Korea, in Palestine, Burma, Indonesia, etc.)—all these are due, ultimately, to lack of such Synthesis.

After such manacal accumulation of murderous explosives, a war of titans is inevitable. Bursting energies forcibly imprisoned in those explosives must find release. They cannot be kept locked up thus for ever. Worst, most powerful, most destructive, most elemental, primary, terrible explosives are psychical explosives, crassly egoistic evil human passions, lust, hate, greed, pride, mutual fear, jealousy. It is these which manufacture all secondary meterial explosives. After the monstrous amassing of both has exhausted itself; after it has left the human world in ruins; after that, need for reconstruction will arise, and be felt acutely by the broken nations.

May the Mystery which has fashioned and maintains the Universe ordain that the nations may be cured soon of this war mania! Thus we must pray, though, from Its standpoint of Infinity, birth and death of whole human races and civilisations can be of no greater import than growth and destruction of ant-hills But even if war ceases, new adjustments of human relations on a world-wide scale, will be necessary. Otherwise, if conditions and causes, armaments and social structures, are left as they have been so far, corresponding effects must follow again; in shape of unappeasable discords, jealousies, hatreds; out of which, worse and worse wars must recur, inevitably, again and again; until armaments bave all perished, in one way or another, and war-madness has been all purged and bled out of the Human Race. for some centuries, if not for ever, which is impossible, because of the Law of Duality.

For such re-adjustment, after complete dispersal and exhaustion, either by mutual sincere and far-sighted agreement, or by mutual slaughter, of this vast mass of psychical and physical explosives; a Great Synthesis, a Comprehensive Integration, of all aspects, Spiritual and Material, Individual and Collective, of the Life of the Human Race, is indispensable.

If the Russian experiment be successful, in all respects, it will naturally be imitated everywhere. If it fail, as is likely, in important respects, because of lack of Spiritual, 'anti-toxic', trust-breeding, sincerity-and-sympathy-producing, integrative and constructive nourishment and because of disregard of indefeasible essential psychological and philosophical principles; then the alternative will be, (1) a Universal Religion, which will be the Head-and-Heart of all religions; which will unite them all; will provide and promote that Spiritual nourishment, in shape of ever-growing accumulation, and ever nider spread, of those most powerful co-hesives, anti-ex-plosives, anti-dis-ruptives, viz, domestic and social affections and strong trusts; and will also provide, as part of that Universal Religion, (2) a rational Scheme of Individuo-Social Organisation which would be in accord with all sciences, and especially with the Science of Human Nature, 1.e, Psychology.

^{&#}x27;Indeed, is failing, has failed, vide U. S. A. Senator Bulitt's book, and, more recent, 'A World Apart', by Gerling, with Introduction by Bernaud Russell, pub: 1949 But yet again, in July-August, 1955. a sincere and stremuous effort for World Peace has been made by President of U. S. A. and Premiers of France, Britain, and Russia, and terms have been agreed upon, at a conference in Geneva (Switzerland). The spirit and methods of government do seem to have changed for the better since the death of Stalin in March, 1953.

Such Universal Religion has been provided for us, by the Scriptures of the Nations; and such a Scheme of Socio-Individual Organisation, by Védic Scriptures in particular, as fundamental part of Religion; because Religion, to justify itself, must be of help and service everywhere, must secure for human being, the maximum possible, of Happiness Here as well as Hereafter.

Everywhere, today, "rulers' of nations which are regarded as 'Great Powers', (rulers in shape of presidents, dictators, kings, premiers, cabinets, influential capitalist and militarist cliques and coteries), are striving to capture yet more 'power' of all kinds than they have already got, and 'leaders' of weaker or subjugated peoples, which are struggling to win back political freedom, are striving to recover the 'power' which their predecessors have lost But neither those 'rulers' nor these 'leaders' anywhere, (except, perhaps, in Russia, in a lopsided, 'half-truth', fashion), are willing to think about how 'power' can and should be used, so as to Organise for Peace, systematically, each nation, each people, and thereby the whole Human Race.

They are all intensely and immensely busy with Organising for Was or for political struggle 'Let us snatch power, and more power, and yet more power, first, we shall do afterwards, at our sweet will, all the thinking that it may suit us to think, as to how to use that power' Result of this attitude is—wars, in the one case, internal dissensions, jeal-ousies, mutual thwartings, and failures, in the other.

The 'Great Powers' possess 'Self-government'; at least each one says it does 'Leaders', of the peoples who are struggling for freedom from subjection and serfdom, proclaim that they want 'Self-government' But apparently, nowhere is any real effort being made by anyone to think out and expound what exactly Freedom' and Self-government mean, and how Self-government can be made Good-government also, at the same time to consider and explain whether Self-government means, and should mean, 'government of the people, for the people (a) by all the people, (which is obviously impossible), or (b) by a few of the worst of the people (who may manage, as happens not rarely, to get themselves elected by the now well-known devices of electioneering, racketeering, propaganding, intimidating, deceiving, gerrymandering, disciplining, gagging, grafting, boodling, bribing, etc.,) or (c) by a few of mexed and doubtful quality, (which is the most frequent fact), or (d) by a few of the best and wisest of the people, (which is very, very, rarely the case in known history). In other words, no one who counts in the world's affairs, today, is (a) actively realising and proclaiming to the world, the fact that Self-government and Goodgovernment can Cosnesde only when the governing "Self' is, not the lower and baser 'self' of the People, but their Higher, nobler, genuinely philanthropic 'Self' Nor is any such person explaining (b) how such government by the Higher Self, 'the Kingdom of Heaven on Earth', may be achieved, se, how it may be managed that only the best and the wisest are elected 1 It is plainer and more selfevident than any axioms of geometry, that only good and wise laws can promote happiness of mankind, that good and wise laws can be made and administered by only good and wise men and women, who constitute the Higher Self of the People; and that only such persons should be entrusted with powers of legislation and administration. Yet these so self-evident truths are so very difficult for mankind to learn, that it has not learnt them yet, after many thousands, probably tens of thousands, of years of most bitter experience of consequences of not acting in accord with them.

¹ Every one of the forty odd sovereign' states that were directly or indirectly involved in the World Wars, was and is self-governing', and uses profusely the blessed word 'Freedom' But they have all been exercising their self-determining in frantic endeavours to mangle and strangle one another. Freedom has come to mean, in practice, freedom to rob and rape and murder'.

Answer to this how is attempted in this work in several places, see page-references, in Index of Subjects, at 'Self-Government' and 'Social Organisation'

Result is that all these warring 'rulers', as much as struggling 'leaders', actuated, not by farsighted humanism, but by narrow and very short-sighted nationalism, or even by mean and sordid personal ambitions and motives, are wandering in the dark, 'blind leaders of the blind', causing only very grievous harm and hurt to those whom they profess to wish to help.

They cannot say that the Right Way is hidden from them They are themselves turning their eyes away from it The Sun of Scriptural Wisdom is flaming, and radiating Light upon it from the heavens, all the time Rulers and leaders have only to remove from their own eyes, the thick bandages of egoism and nationalism, and put on the glasses of Humanism. They would all, then, see at once, clearly laid out for them, the Path to Peace and Prosperity for all Scriptures are telling us, all the time, how Society can and should be Organised for Peace, how the best and wisest of the people can be recognised, how they and they alone should be elected to the places of legislative power.

Problems of 'Organising for War', and for political struggle, may seem more urgent; but, surely, in any case, they are not more important than the problem of 'Organising for Peace'. Former are passing; they are concerned with temporary means and aims. Latter is Permanent Problem, concerned with Permanent End. To far-aighted view, it is much more urgent also, as well as more important. For, if it is solved satisfactorily, former will abate and disappear automatically.

Let us all, then, engage in the work of promoting, directly, by helping to spread right knowledge on the subject, and, secondly, in every other way possible, the Organisation of the Human Race for Peace and thence Prosperity.

Dear Reader, I pray you, unless you have found, and made sure of, a better way, to read about the Ancient Way, leisurely, in this book. Endeavour is made here to expound, no new way, but the Way of the Ancients, a Way which is time-tested. If you feel, satisfied that that Way is worth experimenting with, then I pray you to do all you can to spread, as widely as may be possible for you, this Essential Message of all Scriptures, as preparation for the great Re-adjustment and Synthesis.

Bandras, Your respectful and sincere 19-9-1939 Well-wisher,
(Revised, 19-9-1955) BHAGAVIN DIS

PREFACE TO THIRD EDITION

(REVISED)

SOME special features of this edition are as follows:

(a) It has been observed by E. A Poe, in one of his tales, that, in English, of all words, 'the' occurs most often.

I have eliminated on an average, some twenty-five 'the-s' out of those that appeared on every page of second edition; so there are about eighteen thousand less in this

Readers may feel gaps and jolts, now and then, (as I myself do), reading those 'expurgated' sentences, but I believe that they will shortly become accustomed to do without them (as I myself have become), and may even feel a more rhythmic poetic earnestness appear, now, in such sentences. If I am not mistaken, 'the' appears less frequently in English poetry than in prose There is no word corresponding to 'the' in Samskrt, nor in Persian, nor Hindi In Arabic, its correspondent al is tacked on ad nauseam before every noun. Its correspondent in French and other Latin languages has been further elaborated into separate masculine and feminine forms. A friend who knows German tells me that it has a neuter form also in that language Consider what special significance attaches to 'the', what portion of its meaning is lost by a sentence, if its 'the-s' are omitted. Where 'the' has a limiting and specifying effect, as a 'definite', se, defining, article, there it should certainly be used, otherwise it need not be

Reader may try this method on any sentences taken at random, in any English book, by removing the-s.'-

A fuller statement of reasons for reducing use of 'the' will be found in Preface to fourth edition of Science of Emotions (pub 1953, T. P. H, Adyar).

- (b) Text, scripture-quotations, translations, and footnotes, of previous edition, have all been reproduced in this, with only verbal alterations, here and there, to clear up obscurity, or read better. New matter has been added to all four.
- (c) In transliteration of Skt. words, in latter portion of this book, sandbi, 'coalescence', of sounds, has been replaced more and more by un-coalesced forms. Thus, on p 1, first words of first Skt. verse are Eko Dévah; un-coalesced, they would be Ekah Dévah. P. 1 reads Atra évas vargah, atra évan arakah, ('Heaven is here, in us, and so is Hell'). Coalesced, the words would read, Atraivas vargotraiva narakah. One main cause of difficulty of Skt. is this running together of letter-sounds and mixing up of words. This is perfectly natural in speaking, and 'rules of coalescence' of vowels and vowels, consonants and consonants, vowels and consonants, and of aspirates and nasals with these—all such rules are only explication and multiplication of one simple rule' Pronounce two words quickly, and sound which results from merging together of last letter of one and first of other, is embodied in a formal rule, viz, 'If this letter is followed by this other letter, the two will be replaced by this third.'

Such coalescences and transformations occur inevitab(le)ly in all languages. In English, if to intelligible' we add 'ty' the new word becomes intelligib-lity'; not 'intelligib-lety'. For more complicated examples, readers may consult books on 'Phonetics'; or, for amusing ones, Beinard Shaw's play Pygmation In Skt, the facts that name and sound of every letter are identical, and that alphabet is scientifically arranged in accord with vocal apparatus, make phonetic coalescence and showing of it in writing, much easier Also, there is no difference of capital and small letters, in printing types, and again in manuscript, in Skt.

(d) Words of a dozen languages, Skt., Arabic, Persian, Zend, Pālī, Prākṛṭ, Gurmukhī, Latin, Greek,

Chinese, Hindī, Urdū, and we may well include English also in list, have been transliterated in roman script in this book. That script may, therefore, he rightly regarded as a World-Script in present epoch of human history. As such, use of it deserves to be promoted far and wide, of course, without attempting to abolish any particular script which any communities or nations may cling to. A World-Script will powerfully help World-Religion and World-Order, is, World-Organisation, which would be a World-Order based on and arising out of a World-Religion.

(e) Readers will notice that, in foot-notes, events of current history are referred to, from time to time, to illustrate principles and generalisations stated in text. Literature, even scientific literature, is affected by current events, and, in turn, reacts upon and affects current history. Thus, invention of atom-bomb has stopped World-War II in Asia; but atom-bomb, in turn, has created such insecurity and terror in all nations and countries, that world is again being divided into two armed camps, one headed by USA, and another by Soviet Russia; and a third and far more devastating World-War is hovering in air and spreading a pall of black gloom over whole human world That even particular physical sciences are better understood if studied in light of history of their development, and should be so studied—this is now a commonplace of Educational Method. Indeed, is not History of our Solar System, from its beginnings in primeval nebula down to this day, scientific description of its evolution in all its countless aspects?

¹ Invention of hydrogen-bomb, many times more powerful than atom-bomb, and possibility, envisaged by

Whole and sole purpose of this book is to endeavour to show way to establish Concord in place of horrible Discord, which pervades world generally and India specially, by means of a rational World-Order based on and issuing out of a World-Religion. Therefore references, in foot-notes, to scientists, of invention of bombs a hundred times more powerful, explosion of one of which would annihilate all life on a whole continent, is intensifying mutual terror But that very excess of terror has bred a mooig bra natural reaction, and serious and sincere efforts are being made to establish Peace throughout World Prime Minister of India, Jawaharlal Nehru, has been taking a leading part in this movement and has toured in Russia and almost all other States of Europe in July, 1955. Before this, there was a conference, held in Bandung, (Java), of Prime Ministers of all Asian and Indonesian countries, also Egypt, in which India's Prime Minister took a leading part. It is matter for great thankfulness that a compact of Peace was agreed upon. More recently, President of USA and Prime Ministers of Russia and France and Britain have been discussing terms of Peace in Geneva, and have arrived at an agree-Russian policy, internal as well as external, has changed very greatly since death of Stalin in March, 1953.

specific instances of awful Discord are obviously relevant.

One amazing event of tremendous significance and importance, vis, withdrawal of British Government from India, and handing over of all power to purely Indian Administration, took place during first minute after midnight between 15th and 16th August, 1947 Success of this step has, however been marred greatly by Division of India into a Muslim Pākistān and a (predominantly) Hindū Hindu-sthan It is undisputed historical fact that certain Muslim leaders insisted on such vivisection of India, while Hindu leaders protested against it. Despite this protest, British Government, just before its departure, carried out Division in accord with wishes of those Muslim leaders. It was preceded by ferocious Communal Riots, engineered, to show that the two communities could not dwell together in peace, though it was glaringly patent that all seventy-five or eighty millions of Muslims, scattered all over India, and living amidst three hundred and more millions of Hindus and another ten millions of Christians, Parsis, Jews, etc., could not possibly be separated out, and brought away. from those others, and settled on one large piece of India, from which all others would be driven away. Therefore, two parts, where Muslim population was already predominant in number, were selected by those Muslim leaders, viz, Sindh, West Punjāb, and North-West Frontier as one block, and East Bengal as another The 'communal roots' constituted a 'civil war', than which, as has been well observed, no other war is inspired by moreintense hatred Politico-economic motives also have been combined with religious fanaticism in this war. n India, and have exacerbated mutual hatred It is not quite ended even now (at close of 1955), though not very active Problem of Kashmir, in which battles raged fiercely for some two years, between invading regular army of Pākistān and defending army of India (Hindu-sthan), has not been solved yet. Only a sort of truce prevails Since communal riots commenced, some years before Division, more than a million men, women, children, Hindus and Muslims, have been slaughtered, and many hundred crores of rapees worth of property, mostly that of Hindus, has been destroyed, besides 1. And the double trek continues still, from each part to the other, mostly that of Hindus from Pākistān into India, but also of Bengäli-speaking Muslims of East Pākistān into Indian West Bangāl, who are maltreated by Päkistäni Government because they cannot and will not learn to speak Urdü

¹ Present exchange rate is thirteen rupees and a half for one pound sterling, and a crore is ten millions

Those forty millions of Muslims who continue to live in Hindusthan, find that their religious observances are in no way interfered with by their Hindu neighbours, and Indian Government protects their rights with even greater care than those of Hindus. Thousands of Muslims, who had crossed over to Western Pākisṭān, have returned to India, sadder and wiser, having realised that life was easier for them in India, (as it is now known to world, in distinction from Pākistān)

Removal of the great drawback mentioned above. and re-union of sundered parts into one whole, as before, and prosperity for both communities as well as all others dwelling in India, depends on both administrations, of Pākistān and Hindusthān, realising (as, unhappily, neither does at present) that best, indeed, only, way of establishing peace and promoting general welfare throughout their respective dominions, and therefore India as a whole, is to teach and preach persistently, in every corner of the land, the Common Besentials of All Religious, and to establish, on basis of scientific psychological brinciples, included in that Universal World Religion, a Rational Socio-Individual Organisation. which will fulfil all just needs of all persons of all creeds, castes, colours races, and both sexes, s.e., fill all stomachs, cover all backs, provide roofs over all heads, ensure decent family life, and bring livelihood-giving suitable work and appropriately qualified worker together ¹

It may be noted incidentally that name of this country in far back times, was Aig-nabha (vide Bhagavata, V vii. 3). Then, because of two great sovereigns, both named Bharata, one of Solar, one of Lunar, Dynasty, it began to be called Bhārata. This name it continues to retain, even now, in all Samskrt literature and all religious Īrān-sans (Āryānsans, Āryans, also called Persians, who are only a branch of Arvan Race. as are inhabitants. Celts. of Eire or Ire-land, and indeed all Indo-Aryans or Indo-Europeans)-these Iran-ians called the great river Sindhu as Hindho. and inhabitants on both sides of it as Haindbayas, because of peculiar formation of their vocal apparatus Earlier Greeks (Ionians, Yavanas in Skt) called this river Indus, country round about it and beyond as India, and inhabitants an Indians By these names they are known to all world today

India, on 26th November 1949, declared itself a Democratic Republic, but decided to remain an independent member of the British Commonwealth of Nations; and chose Dr Rājéndra Prasād as its first President

Another fact, even more amazing than withdrawal of British Government, may be recorded here.

¹ See pp 643-701 infra, for an outline of such.

Cheiro, in his World Predictions, (published in 1927, by The London Publishing Co, 62, Oxford St, London, W. 1), foretold. "England... will give India her freedom, but religious warfare will rend that country from end to end until it becomes equally divided between the Mohamedan and the followers of Buddha and Brahma)"; (p. 160). No one in India had even dreamt of such a division, in 1927. He foretold a number of other events also, some of which bave come true, such as abdication of Edward VIII and assession of George VI, in England.

other. All are, by turns, now east and now west, of one another. None the less, Ex Oriente Lux, 'Light comes from the East' always, to every country, at Sun-dawn And Civilisation travels with Sun. It is therefore in nature of things that, having reached its culmination in U.S.A, for the present, Civilisation should seek a new life with a new form in Japan, China, India, Russia, and Asia generally And no other country than India, not even venerable China, provides fundamental principles, applicable everywhere and always, with suitable modifications of detail in accord with local and national conditions, of a complete Socio-Individual Organisation based on World-Religion.

BRAGAVIN DIS

NOTE

(Revised)

On Texts gainered in this Book, and certain other Matters

ELEVEN religions are usually regarded as great and living and current at present These, proceeding from east to west, are: (1) Shintoism born in Japan. (2) Tāoism (or Laotsism), and (3) Confucianism, in China: (4) Védism (or Vaidika Dharma, Sanātana Dharma, Arya Dharma, Manava Dharma, now commonly called 'Hinduism'), (5) Buddhism, (6) Jainism, and (7) Sikhism, in India, (8) Zoroastrianism (or Pärsism), in Iran (or Persia), (9) Judaism (or Hebraism, or Israelitism, or Jewish religion), and (10) Christianity, in Palestine, (11) Islām (or Mohammedanism), in Aiabia Parallel passages have been gathered in this work from universally recognised Scriptures, and also from some other generally and highly honored writings by revered Elders, of these eleven.

Well-known scriptures of Védism are four Véda-s with their Upanishat-s, Manu-Smits, Gita, Mahabhārata, Rāmāvana, Bhāgavata, several Purāna-s. and some less well-known Smrtis Texts have been taken from these, principally. They are regarded as sacred and authoritative in the order mentioned. But first four are practically of equal authority, and Mann. because of its compact conciseness, comprehensive completeness, high and austere tone, and terse clear language, is the most frequently referred to, in discussions over matters of religious practice. Védism is not connected with any one name as founder's, but Védic socio-religious polity of India has been based, from time immemorial, on 'The Institutes, or Laws, of Manu'. Manu is regarded as Primal Patriarch and Law-giver of Indian Aryans. and as having embodied, in his Laws, all that substance and quintessence of Véda-s which bears upon orderly planning and conducting of individual and and collective human life. Latest rescension of these Laws, in some 2700 couplets, is current under the name of Manu-Smits. It is said by critical Otientalist scholars, to be between 2000 and 2500 years old now. But all are agreed that it is based on, and includes, large portions of much earlier texts, Manaou-Dharma-Satra, Viddha-Manu. and others These are not now extant, and are known only through quotations and references in available later works The four Védas, Scriptures proper of Védism, on which Manu and all subsequent expounders base themselves, are said, by unanimous Indian trodition, to have been collected, edited, and given their present shape, by Kishna Dvaipājana Vjāsa, famous as Véda-Vjāsa, some 5000 yeas ago, re, about 3100 BC, just before beginning of Kali-Yuga era But some western Orientalists say that the oldest hymns belong to about 1500 B. C. New researches and fresh findings are, however, steadily pushing the period further and further back Véda-Vyasa is also author of Mahā-bhārata, in which Manu is often referred to and quoted from. Where excerpts are taken from works other than these above-mentioned, their names are given.

Christian Texts have been drawn from English Bible, New as well as Old Testament mostly Those of Jewish religion, from English Old Testament, chiefly

Texts of Zoroastrianism, have been taken from J M Chatterji and A. N Bilimoria's edition of Gätha

Scriptures of Islām, from which passages have been taken, are, principally, Qurān and Hadīs in Arabic, and, next, writings of great Sūfis, mostly in Persian These have been already referred to in Foreword. Founder of Islām, Muhammad, was born in 570 A. C., and died in 632 A. C.

Texts of Shintoism, Tāoism, and Confucianism. this compiler had no access to, in the original But there is one exception. All others have been taken from various published English translations of that primary scripture of Taoism, Tao Teh King, ascribed to Lao-tse; and of Shu King, Shi King, Analects, and other works of Confucius; many from that marvel of learned industry, Treasure-House of Living Religious, by Robert Ernest Hume, (pub 1933, by Charles Scribner's Sons, New York and London) Like Védism, Shinto is not connected with the name of any one person as founder. Laotse and Kung-fu-tse, se, Confucius, (as also Pythagoras, of Magna Graecia), were older and younger contemporaries of Buddha. 6th century B C. 15 remarkable for a great influx of religious thought and aspiration, in many countries, far apart from each other, but, as historical and archeological research is establishing more and more clearly year by year, not without communication with each other.

Buddhist texts have been drawn, in original Pālī, (a 'dialect' or popular form of Samskrt), current among the people in Buddha's time, mostly from two small books, Khuddaka Pātha and Dhamma-pada. They are collections, in Buddha's own words, of his most important teachings Dhamma-pada is to Buddhists what Gitā is to Védists (Hindū-s). A few texts in Samskrt have been derived from other works, authoritative in next degree, like those of Nāgārjina and Asanga. Of such works, full names are given. Years of Buddha's birth and death are given variously, as 624 and 544 B C or 568 and 488 B C

Jama texts have been derived, in original Samskrt or Prakrt, (a variant of, and contemporaneous with, Pālī), from works regarded as authoritative, whose names have been given in full, after texts quoted. No teachings of founder, viz, Mahavira Jina, also known as Vardhamāna Svāmī, (b 599 BC, d 527 B.C., or, b 549 B.C., d. 477 B.C.), definitely known to be in his own words, are extant Earliest collections are by Bhadra-bahu, of 4th century B C But in 1942, a small book has been published, titled Mahāvīra Vāṇī, 'The Words of Mahāvīra'. It was compiled by Shāntilāl Vanamālī Shéth, edited by Prof. Béchar Dās Jīvarāj Doshi of Ahmadābād College, and published by Sastā-Sāhitya Mandal, New Delhi. It contains 345 verses, which are believed to have been spoken by Mahāvīra himself, These have been arranged on different occasions in 25 chapters on the lines of Dhamma-pada verses are all very significant. Work has been very well done, and may well become a manual and text-book for Jama community, such as Dhamma-pada is for the Buddhist. At insistent wish of Prof Béchar Dās, present writer contributed an introduction to it. Two more editions have been brought out since; and also a bigger and better arranged work, entitled Tirthankara Vardhamāna, pub 1953 (See f n on p 691)

Texts of Sikhism, whose tenets are practically same as those of Gitä, have been taken mostly from its chief scripture, Guru Giantha Sāhab, in which are collected hymns and teachings of eight of the ten Sikh Gurus Two did not leave any writings. Guru Nanak, founder and first Guru, was born in 1469, fourteen years before Martin Luther Guru Govind Singh, tenth and last, passed away in 1708. He was great teacher, great warrior, great traveller, and great poet. Nānak was also all these, except warrior Most of the hymns and teachings are in a language which may be described as Panjābī form of Hindi or Hindustani. Many verses of other renowned saints, like Kabīr, have also been included in Grantha: which shows the broad-mindedness of the Gurus Nanak was a scholar of Persian and Arabic, is said to have visited Kā'ba in Mecca, and to have always kept a copy of Quran with him, this copy is said to be still preserved in Gurn-dvārā built by Gurn Har-sahāya, in Ferozpur, Punjab.

and Meditation, (27) Thankfulness, (28) Sincerity and Earnestness, (29) Truth and Truthfulness, (30) Temperance, (31) Happiness and Joy (32) Righteousness and Virtue, (33) Duty, (34) Self-dedication and Divine Benediction. Pt III, Man and HIS SOCIAL RELATIONS—(35) Anger and Hatred, (36) Work and Deeds, (37) Wealth and Prosperity, (38) Giving and Helping, (39) Justice and Judgment, (40) Obedience, (41) The Golden Rule, (42) Good for Evil, (43) Forgiveness, (44) Love, (45) Serving Others, (46) Friendship and Brothethood, (47), Associates, (48) Home and Family Relations, (49) Peace and War, (50) Summary Duties, Pt IV, A PROGRAM OF JOINT WORSHIP, arranged as a Responsive Reading

Another very noteworthy book is Dr. Frank L. Riley's The Bible of Bibles, (pub 1929, by J F. Rowny Press, Los Angeles). Author says in his Foreword "It is the concentrated essence of the Bibles of the world, extracted during nineteen years of study from sixty Sacred Books, dating back, according to some authorities, 13000 years" Dr. Riley has included, in his researches, Taoism, Védism, Judaism, Zoroastrianism, Buddhism, Christianity, and Islām, of the living, and Babylonian-Chaldeau, Egyptian, and Mithraist religions, of the past. He does not seem to have dealt with Shintoism, Confucianism, and Sikhism. He does not tell us the total number of passages he has extracted. They cover 343 pages of fine large print. A rough calculation gives 1400 These are divided into 12 chapters, which cover 387 topics, listed in a Table of Contents, (which is named Index), at beginning. Chapters are. (1) God, (2) Beneficence of God, (3) Creation, (4) Origin and Constitution of Man, (5) Problem of Evil, (6) World, Matter, the Unreal, (7) Works of the Flesh, (8) Kingdom of Heaven, (9) Fruits of the Spirit, (10) The Straight and Narrow Way, (11) Prayer and Healing, (12) Peace-Brotherhood-Heaven on Earth An Introduction gives brief accounts of the sixty Bibles of of the several religions studied. "A digest, or terse account, of excerpts from the Sacred Books which appear in" each chapter, averaging about a page and a half in length, is prefixed to it

Present writer could not make such use of Dr. Riley's book as it deserved. He came across it rather late Absence of an alphabetical Index, and of page-references in table of contents, hampered utilisation Preparation of copy, new edition of present work, from notes previously gathered, on margins and pasted-in slips of a copy of first edition, was begun in January, 1939, after resigning membership of Central Legislative Assembly of India First batch of 'copy' was sent to press in March, 1939 Thereafter, compiler had not leisure and vitality to spare nor peace of mind enough, for hunting up originals of a score or more of translated. passages, quoted in Dr. Riley's book, which appeared. very relevant Throughout that whole month, and first week of April, very serious communal riots, a small 'civil war', raged in Banāras, between bands of Hindus and Muslims, misguided and incited by evil-minded self-seeking politico-religious misleaders. despite all endeavours of a joint Hindu-Muslim Peace Committee, of which this writer had been elected Chairman, to his great unhappiness and helpless worry, the riots resulted in some 50 to 60 deaths, about 400 cases of serious and light hurt, very many cases of arson, loot, wanton destruction of property Much worse nots had occurred in Banaras and Kanpur in February-March, 1931; and six persons, three Hindus and three Musalmans, were appointed as a Committee with present writer as Chairman, by the Indian National Congress, then sitting in Annual Session in Karāchi, to investigate causes and report. The Spirit of Hatred, which has been stalking more and more proudly all over the human world, since beginning of 20th century, made its horrible presence felt acutely, thus, in Banaras, and showed that the 'Forces of Good. of Light, of Truth', have to struggle longer and harder against opposite forces, of the Enemy of Mankind, 'Forces of Evil, of Darkness, of Falsehood', before latter will be checked effectively. It is very necessary, for many workers, in all countries, to take up the task of establishing religious peace and good-will, for, from it, and not without it, will come economic and political peace and good-will.

Works of Dr Riley and Prof Hume possess not only outstanding merit in respect of scholarly industry, but are very praiseworthy for the philanthropic spirit of all-conciliating all-embracing Human Brotherhood and Solidarity which breathes throughout, in them Because of lack of knowledge of any European language other than English, and of very limited reading in even that, this writer has not come across any other works using a similar method, except those which will be mentioned presently. It is to be hoped there are others, for such, and many such, in every language, are greatly needed to promote Human Brotherhood, true Spiritual Liberty and Fraternity, and Material Equitability. No doubt, a number of books have been written and published, whose purpose also is liberal-minded reconciliation of creeds A fine recent work of this kind is World-Fellowship, edited by C F. Weller (pub. 1935, by Liveright Publishing Corporation, New York). But its nature and method are very different. And even such works are too few.

Dr Riley and Prof Hume do not give any texts in original, only translations, though these are mostly from works of recognised scholars. Present work, in its first edition, had only about 450 parallel passages from Scriptures of the several religions, and practically none from the three indigenous religions of China and Japan, nor from Zoroastrian Zond-Avesta Second edition brought together 1150 passages, which were increased to 1400 in third, in round figures.

Dr Riley and Prof Hume do not make it their purpose to trace out and supply any scientific and organic Scheme of Universal Religion, Religion in General, running through all religions All topics dealt with by them, are dealt with here too, also many others, but they are arranged in a different way, not as a collection of comparatively un-jointed parts, but as forming a system, a single organism, with all its members livingly articulated together, in accordance with the Science of Psychology Whether the arrangement is successful or not, reader will decide for himself Great majority of topics dealt with by Dr. Riley and Prof Hume, would be assigned to chapter on 'Way of Devotion, or Emotional (or Ethical) Constituent of Religion', in this work, and they do not touch many topics treated here in chapters on 'Way of Knowledge, or Intellectual Constituent of Religion' and 'Way of Works or Volitional (or Actional) Constituent of Religion', (see pp. 113 on 'The Three Aspects of Religion') !

Present work endeavours to provide, for the parallel passages, a setting of elucidative and connective comment, in the way of interpretation and illustration, so as to interlink them and make of them, all together, a continuous organic entity, without which the work would be only a collection of disjointed texts (or 'sacred bones', as a friend humorously said). a Universal Religion with a definite frame-work, not artificially eclectic, but a natural living growth; which may be readily discerned as present within outer garments of every religion, even as main features, general outlines, of human form, can be discerned in every human individual, behind his clothing. This Scheme is based on the psychological triad of knowing, desiring, acting, (see pp. 113-114).

Another work, somewhat similar to Dr. Riley's, was published in 1940, by Kegan Paul, Trench, Trubner and Co. London It is entitled The Bible of the World, and is a compilation by Robert O Ballow, Friedrich Spiegelberg, and Horace L Friess. It is a very large volume of 1400 pp. royal 8vo, and of fine large print Each religion is treated separately, in translated extracts There is no attempt at scientific comparison, classification, systematisation But it is a very prinstraking collection. Present writer has not found it necessary to take any extracts from it

EVOLUTION OF PRESENT WORK

This tripartite Scheme of Religion, based on Philosophy or Metaphysic and Psychology, is fundamental part of Indian tradition from time immemorial, (see pp. 357, 569-573) It was first utilised in the new way, required by the times, in 1904, for preparation of a series of Text-Books of Hinduism, for use in the Central Hindu College and School of Banāras.

First idea was to start a Theosophical College in which students would be taught the principles of Universal Religion, and be brought up in the atmosphere of a nucleus of Universal Brotherhood. But active workers in sufficient numbers were not forthcoming from folds of other denominations So it was decided to begin with a 'Hindū' College, which would endeavour to liberalise and rationalise at least 'Hinduism', and re-convert it into ancient Upanishadic ('philosophical') and Manava ('human ') Védism ('scientific religion'); would restore to it the main characteristics of 'Universal Religion', whereby rapprochement with other religious inhabiting this country would be facilitated, and solidarise the mutually repellant and fissiparous 2000 and odd castes and sub-castes and numerous sects and sub-seets, into a real living organic bodypolitic of interdependent parts

Very shortly after founding of the College, need for systematic compendious Text-Books of Hindusm was felt, mevitably, for teaching purposes. Dr. Annie Besant, "that high-souled woman" "the mother of Mother India," 2 " whose radiant spirit rekindled India's faith in her own ideals and destiny," 2 " the memory of the magnificent services rendered by whom to India will live as long as ludia lives", was President of the Board of Trustees and the Managing Committee of the Institution, and the present writer had the privilege and good fortune of working with her as honorary Secretary of the two bodies. "If Annie Besant had not been, Mahātma Gāndhī could not be '2, " if any three or four of the other great people in Indu were named, the sum of their achievements, the aggregate of the benefit that they had rendered to this country, would not exceed what stood unquestionably to her credit"2 Board of Trustees appointed a Committee, with Dr. A Besant and

² This is how Prof William James, renowned philo sopher of USA., speaks of her in his Varieties of Religious Baharienes.

These words were respectively said, in paying tribute to her, after her passing away, in September, 1933, by Dr. Mohammad Alam (a Muslim), by the famous orator and poetess, Mrs Sarojini Naidu, (afterwards Governor of UP, 1947-1949), by Mahātmā Gāndhi, again by Mrs. S. Naidu, and by the Rt. Hon'ble Shri V. S Shrinivāsa Shāstri, PC.

myself as Chairman and Secretary, to prepare Text-Books. They gave us general directions to the effect that the religious and ethical training. given to students, should be of "a wide, liberal. and unsectarian character, . . . inclusive enough to unite the most divergent forms of Hindu thought, . . . must be directed to the building up of a character, pious, dutiful, strong, upright. righteous, gentle, and well-balanced-a character which will be that of a good man and a good citizen, such as can be formed only by the fundamental principles of religion, governing the general view of life and of life's obligations. That which unites Hindū-s in a common faith, must be clearly and simply taught; all that divides them must be ignored Lastly, care must be taken to cultivate a wide spirit of tolerance, which not only respects differences of thought and practice among Hindu-s, but also respects differences of religion among non-Hindu-s, regarding all faiths with tolerance, as roads whereby men reach the Supreme "

As Secretary, the undersigned, placed before the Chairman, a Syllabus based on ancient tradition as to the three parts or Constituents of Religion. She agreed That Syllabus, with some slight later modifications, appears as Table of Contents of the Text-Book

These Contents, as finally published, are · INTRO-DUCTION. Pt. I. BASIC HINDU RELIGIOUS IDEAS · (ch 1) The One Existence, (2) The Many. (3) Rebirth, (4) Karma, (5) Sacrifice, (6) Visible and Invisible Worlds Pt II. GENERAL HINDU RELIGIOUS RITES AND CUSTOMS, (ch 1) Samskāras (Sacraments), (2) Shrāddha (Oblations to the Departed), (3) Shaucham (Hygiene and Purification), (4) Five Daily Sacrifices (Acts of Service). (5) Worship, (6) Four Stages of Life, (Planning of Individual Life), (7) Caste-system (Social Organisation) Pt III, ETHICAL TEACHINGS, (ch. I) Ethical Science, What is it?, (2) Foundation of Ethics, as given by Religion, (3) Right and Wrong, (4) Standard of Ethics, (5) Virtues and their Foundation, (6) Bliss and Emotions, (7) 'Self-Regarding' Virtues, (8) Virtues and Vices in Human Relations; in relation to Superiors, (9) in relation to Equals, (10) in relation to Inferiors, (11) Reaction of Virtues and Vices on each other

With this Syllabus we set to work on, 'An Advanced Text-Book of Hindu Religion and Ethics', in Shrinagar (Kashmīr), in summer of 1901. Some other members and I supplied Dr. Annie Besant with Samskrit texts, my book, The Science of Emotions, first edition of which was published in 1900, supplied bulk of material for third part of the work. She herself gathered some texts from English translations in Sacred Books of the East Series, and, great worker that she was, drafted, in English; within two months, whole of the Text-book, amounting, as subsequently printed with some additions and alterations, to over 400 pp., cr. 8vo.

After approval by the Committee, a hundred copies of the draft were printed and sent to leaders of the Hindu community, to Pandits famous for Samskrt learning, and to heads of principal sects, in all parts of the country, and suggestions for additions and alterations were requested. Those that were received were carefully considered by the Committee and duly incorporated. Then Advanced Text-book was printed off, and introduced in College classes, in 1904. Shortly after, an Elementary Text-Book was prepared by the Chairman and the Secretary, for use in upper School classes. This was a simplified abridgment of the Advanced; but a large number of illustrative stories from Mahābhārata and Purānas were added in its 3rd Part. Then a very small Catechism was drawn up by the Chairman for use in small children's classes. All these were in use in C. H. College and School until 1914, after which the Institution was converted into Banaras University and passed into the hands of new and elaborately constituted management. consisting of Council, Senate, Syndicate, Faculties. That new management dropped the use of the text-books and catechism. The graded series of Text-books had been welcomed all over India, after publication; translations of the Catechism were published in eleven provincial tongues; and of the Elementary also in two or three.

In October, 1924, a Hindu-Muslim Unity Conference was held in Delhi, in consequence of violent communal riots, engineered by political and politicoceligious mis-leaders, which had been breaking out, for some time, in scores of places, all over the country. At that Conference, present writer proposed that a Committee should be appointed, of learned and at same time large-hearted, broadminded, and philanthropic, not narrow, bigoted, fanatic, representatives of all main religions of India, i.e., eight out of the eleven mentioned at outset of this Note, to draw up a graded series of Text-Books of Universal Religion, with parallel passages from all Scriptures, which would be taught an all educational institutions of India, and thus brought to every home in the land in every way possible The proposal was not considered feasible The Conference contented itself with 'appeals' for the undefined, unexplained, word 'Unity', without any mention of the 'contents' of the word, its denotation and connotation and significance in concrete terms; as is the case with the words 'Sva-raj' and 'Self-government' and 'Freedom.' Communal mots

lxviii

continued to grow worse and worse in India, as politico-economic hatreds and war-'riots' in Europe, 'and indeed all over the world, in this 'Age of Discord', Kali-Yuga.

Next effort, of present writer, on these lines, apart from articles in Hindi and English newspapers, was made at the All-Asia Educational Conference, at close of 1930. Foreword to first edition gives rest of the story of genesis and development of this work.

- Two other books ought to be mentioned here, which have helped this compiler greatly in understanding something of the obscure, mysterious. puzzling legends in Samskrt Itihāsa-Purāna regarding nature of other worlds and planes of matter, and their denizens, and eonian course of cyclical. cosmic, inorganic, organic, human and other involvtions, evolutions, dissolutions. These matters are iust touched in present work; because compiler's knowledge of them is very far from sufficient: general public is probably not deeply or scientifically interested in them; extant scriptures do not supply clearly intelligible and parallel passages about them: and finally, because, though precise and correct knowledge of their details is highly important for specialist and advanced student of what has been called 'occult science', Yoga, Suluk, yet those features of Religion which are most vitally important for an average human being, are those which are dealt with plainly by all Scriptures, and therefore here, in Chs. II and III.

These two books, above referred to, are Madame Helena Petrovna Blavatsky's monumental works. Isis Unveiled (2 vols., 1500 pages), and The Secret Doctrine (latest Adyar edition, 5 vols., 2200 pages, plus a sixth volume of Indices, 500 pages). The two volumes of the former are respectively entitled 'The Veil of Isis' and 'Isis Unveiled'. The two parts of the latter are appropriately entitled 'Cosmogenesis' and 'Anthropo-genesis' respectively. They supply an immense amount of out-of-the-way information about so-called 'dead' religious; about the 'occult', 'super-physical', side of Religion, connected with other worlds and planes, and 'subtle' body and 'finer' faculties latent in normal man, but capable of being developed and made patent by 'mystic' disciplines and special 'education'; and about details of cosmic and human evolution, through vast eons and cycles. Two passages from these two works are reproduced below.

"Kapila, Orpheus, Pythagoras, Plato, Basilides, Marcian, Ammonius, and Plotinus, founded schools and sowed the germs of many a noble thought, and disappearing, left behind them the refulgence of demi-gods. But the three personalities of Krahna, Gautama (Buddha), and Jesus appeared like true gods, each in his epoch, and bequeathed to humanity, three religions built on the imperishable rock of ages. That all three . . . have in time become adulterated, is no fault of . . . the noble Reformers. It is priestly self-styled husbandmen of the 'vine of the Lord' who must be held to account by future generations. Purify the three systems of the dross of human dogmas, the pure essence remaining will be found to be identical": Isis Unveiled, 11, 536).

"Esoteric Philosophy reconciles all religions, strips every one of its outward human garments, and shows the root of each to be identical with that of every other great religion:" (The Secret Doctrine, I. 45).

This Note on Texts may be closed with a few other striking quotations.

"Every Scripture inspired of God is profitable, for teaching, for reproof, for correction, for instruction which in in righteousness, that the man of God may be complete, furnished completely unto every good work."

(B., 2 Timothy, 3. 16-17, THR. p. v.)

"We believe in what hath been revealed to us and revealed to you. Our God and your God is One, and to Him are we Self-surrendered." (Q., 29, 45).

"Alcott was the third most conspicuous member of the Concord Orientalists (Emerson and Thoresa being the other two) . . . As Dean of the Concord Summer School of Philosophy, Alcott worked to promulgate mystic lore . . He described, in his Tablets, the project which was near his heart all his life 'Very desirable it were, since the gates of the East are now opening wide, giving free commerce of mind with mind, to collect and compare the Bibles of the races for general circulation and careful reading . . Of the Bhagavata Purana, Emerson said. 'Ah. this is a book to read on one's Lnees!' . . . He used to keep a copy of an English translation of the Bhagavad-Gitā under his pillow at night . . . Thoreau wrote 'The reading I love best is the Scriptures of the several nations, though it happens I am better acquainted with those of the Hindus, the Chinese, and the Persians, than of the Hebrews, which I have come to, last'. . " Art. 'From Vedic India to Concord, U. S. A.', by Dr. Christy and Dr. Canby, reprinted in Hindustan Times (New Delhi, of 20-6-1944)

The Heart of Humanity is intensely a-search for the Gospel which embraces all gospels. This book endeavours to present it in the very words of the Speakers of all the Gospels. May They give it their blessing and speed it on its mission of service to Humanity.

SYSTEM OF PRONUNCIATION

System of pronunciation followed in the Roman transcript confines itself to simple differences More nice and subtle ones have not been taken account of Thus, there are three shades of 's' in Arabic-Persian; they are all transcribed by 's' here So four kinds of 'z', two of 'h' two of soft 't,' are rendered by one 'z', one 'h,' one 't'. So two kinds of 'sh' in Samskrt are both transcribed as 'sh'. Arabic gutturals of e, i, o, u, have also not been marked; that of 'a' has been as 'a'

Samskri letters are rendered as below

a, as in similar, solar, $ 6., 1, somewhat as in iron. the sound of u in fur, e as in get, jet, fetch cut. shut a. far. car. i. fit. sit I, elite, sound of ee in meet, feet, sheet. u, put, sound of oo in foot u, flute, sound of oo in shoot, hoot.

é, as 'a' in fate. al. somewhat like 1 in might, fight, right o, go. d, daughter, dame dh. madbouse.

ı

n, (n and d combined in a click-sound). t, petit, (soft t).

ixxiv

th, think (without sibil- 1h, bridge-head ance). d, there, that (minus sibilance) au, somewhat as in how, ph, lip-homage. COW. am, like um in jump, hump, bumper k, king, ken kb, buckhorn, inkhorn g, get, gain gh, big-horn, fog-horn, Bumingham. ng, bring, sing. ch, churn, chaste cbh. rich-house, fetchhım J. Joy, jam.

ñ, cañyon. t, tit, talk. th, get-home. b, bless, beam bh, hobhouse, abhor. m, musk. y, yes, you. r, run. l. lamb. v or w. win. sh, shine. dh, bid-him (soft d). n, nephew, niece. p, pan, pass. s. sun, son. h, hand, heaven.

Special sounds of Arabic-Persian are.

kh, aspirate of k, like the gh, guitural of g. German ach, or Scottish loch a', guttural of a.

f, fun. q, guttural of k. z, zephyr.

LIST OF ABBREVIATIONS

- (B), Bible, (O. T., Old Testament, Hebrew,
 O. T. and N T, New Testament, Christian).
- (BB), Dr. F. L. Riley's The Bible of Bibles, published in 1929, by J. F. Rowny Press, Los Angeles.
 (See pp. lvi-ly)
- (Bh.), Bhāgavata, one of 18 Purāna-s, sacred books of legends and traditional histories of Cosmos and of Human Race, which form part of the Scriptures of Vaidika Dharma, or Védism ('Hinduism').
- (Bu), Buddhist Sacred Books,
- (C), Confucian Works
- (Dh), Dhamma-bada, a Buddhist Scripture.
- (ERE.), Encyclopedia of Religion and Ethics, in 13 vols, edited by Dr. Hastings
- (G), Gitā, 1 e, Bhagavad-Gitā, the most widely known of Védist Scriptures.
- (Gr.), Guru-Grantha-Sähab, Scripture of Sikhism
- (H), Hadis, Sayings of Muhammad

lxxvi

- U). Jama Sacred Books
 - M. Vānī, Mahāvīra-Vānī, Collections of verses uttered by Mahāvīra Jina.
 - Tīrthankara Vardhamāna (also called Mahāvīra), biography as well as sayings of Jina.
- (Ju.), Sacred writings of Judaism, Hebraism, or Jewish Religion, like Talmād or Commentaries on O T, and Qabbālāh or Kabbala, a compilation of writings of Jewish Mystics.
- (R), Kabbala, 1.e, Qabbālah
- (M), Manu-Smit, oldest living law book of the world, revered by Hindu-s like Véda-s.
- (Mbh), Mahā-bhārata, 'Great Epic' of the 'Great War' between Pāndava-s and Kaurava-s, which ranks with Manu-Smrti in Hindū estimation.
- Quiān, often written in English as Koran;
 chief Scripture or Islām of Mohammedanism
- (R), Rāmāyana, 'Epic' of the War of Rāma and Rāvana, which is ranked, by Hindū-s, with Mahābhārata and Purāna-s These three make up 'Itihāsa-Purāna,' i.e., Aucient History of Cosmos and Man.
- (S), Saff writings.

lxxvii

- (SBE), Sacred Books of the East Series, edited by Max Muller.
- (Sh), Shintoism.
- (St.), Sikh writings, among which Guiu-Grantha-Sāhab is chief Scripture
- '(T.), Scuptures of Taoism, among which Tao-Teh-King of Lao-tse is chief.
 - (THR.), Treasure-House of the Living Religions, published in 1933, by Charles Scribner's Sons, New York and London (lii-lv)
- (U.), Upanishat s, philosophical and psychological parts of Véda-s
- (V.), Véda-s; four, Rg-Véda, Yajur-Veda, Sāma-Véda, Atharva Véda; chief Scriptures of Hindū-s
- (Z), Zoroastrian Scriptures, Zend-Avestā imparticular, of which the chapters known as Gāthā, are regarded as direct utterance of Zarathustra. Zend is regarded as main text, and Āvestā, as commentary, but inseparable. 'Zend' has also become name of the language in which that main text is written Skt. equivalent is chianda, 'metie', 'rhyme'

lyvin

Languages of Scriptures

Védic, archaic or modern Samskrt (Skt.); Zoroastrian, Zend; Jewish (O.T.), Hebrew; Buddhist, Pālī and Skt.; Jaina, Prākṛt and Skt.; Christian (N.T.), Aramaic; Islāmic, Arabic (Ar.) and Persian (Per.); Sikh, Gurmukhī and one or another dialect of Hindī; Laotsism and Confucianism, Chinese; Shinţoism, Japanese.

VERIFICATION OF REFERENCES

After first edition was published, some friends wrote that textual references should have been given more precisely, by chapter and verse. The difficult conditions, unfavorable to scholarly detail and exactitude, under which this compilation has been made, have been mentioned before. But the reader, who has inclination and leisure, will be able to verify most of the texts quoted, with the help of the following.

Jacob's Concordance to the Upanishats and the Bhagavad-Gitā

Vishvéshvar-ananda and Nity-ananda's Alphabetical Index of the Four Védas

Any good Concordance to the Bible.

Concordance to the Quran (Mifta-ul-Quian), by Rev Ahmad Shah, or any other good Kilid-i-Quran

Manu-pād-ānu-kramanī, Concordance to the versequarters of Manu-Smrts, (published by Gyānmandal, Banaras).

J M Chatterjee's and A N. Bilimoria's edition of Gatha

Treasure-House of Living Religions by R E Hume

ADDENDA ET CORRIGENDA

Some mistakes likely to perplex the reader, and their corrections, also a few additions, are noted below.

			3
Page	Lane -	For	Read
20	last	5-6	7 8
60	20'	nıddı	zıddı "
64	Page- In	eradicale	Ineradicable
94	24	he	ke _
126	9	(Q)	(8)
143	after		"He that hath seen Me
	1 22 add		(the I) hath seen the Father" John, XIV 9. "(The) I am (is) the Way, the Truth, and the Life"; John, XIV 6. "Your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost which is in you", I Corinthians, VI 19 "Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you?", I Corinthians, in 16

الملما	od II Coun. the temble of the n Ve are	od II Coun-
1741-0	. 16
fure	Parvulum 1 five hundred
14 Parulum thousan	Parvulum d and five bundred 31-32
167 - 45015811	-46
169 183 22 et seq	Badars Hastings, Ency.
	My-Self
art Liney	LE.
264 18 My-Selfs	' Lafatiel
297 ta -	Moulem
298 AS MORISE	Him
323 "Matter	enace
him 3	diadavita's
353 2 space 353 361 Page Mahavera's	_at
361 Page _at	ક્ષક
41	dhairi
الباب 7 -10	SAVITE
	Sahugi chit
~ 95 - 51
23 25	dadamanna.
102 Zo 1-18manay	Ā-varaņa. 406, 438
A PLANTAGE A MATAGE
.co ²⁷ 212, 230	41.49
41 180° 64. 30°	471 pm4
47-49	-le must
449 last tysis
والمالية والمالية	l
501 Page-
pear

haam

528	l jiva,	has jīva has
563	24 enwara	pt enwrapt
610	last but avara	-
-616	one Page- Babe heading	and Baba
617		ı- gurbah
642	last but Bishop	Abbé Huc
-663	20 form	from 678
688	last but braama
	two
7 04	18 all	all Rights and
748	last 455-'5	5 455-'56 Television is doing '
771	last fourth edition	edition
-828	col 2, after line 20, add	Ilescrables, la, by Victor Hugo, 196
829	col 2, after line 20, add	Ausomas, 189

CONTENTS

(If reader will glance through page-headings, he will find much supplementation to this table of Contents in them)

in them)
			PAGE
Preface to present Fifth Edition		•
Foreword to First Edition (Abrid	ged fo	or this)	7111
Letter to Reader (Revised) as F	refac	e to Seco	bro
Edition .			, XIX
Preface to Third Edition (Revise	d)	•	X\XIX
Note on Texts gathered in this	book,	and cert	ain-
other matters .		•	. xlıx
System of Pronunciation		•	, lxvn
List of Abbreviations .	•		vzki .
Languages of Scriptures .			layanı
Verification of References			rızıl .
Addenda et Corngenda .	•		lxxxi
Table of Contents		•	IXX/V
Appreciations by
(1) Shrī C Rājagopālāchārī		•	xci
(2) Sır S Rādhākrıshnan			. 70111
(3) Sır Zafrulla Khāń			XCV
(4) Foreword by H E Dr	Rājér	dra Pras	Ad xcv11

IXXXV1

					PAGE
The Unseen Power				•	CI
The One Family of God					CIP
· _		_
INVOCATION OF THE O	NE S	UPREME	Spir	T OF
Unity .	•	•	•		1
CHA	\PTI	BR I
Religious Science ani	SCI	entific I	RELIC	JON.	9
Asiatic Thought and	Euro	pean Thou	ight		9
Unity Underlying Bo	th	•	•		15
The One Way to Pea	ce or	Earth			16
Scientific Religion					19
Duty of Educationists	١.				33-
Golden Mean Betwee	n Tw	o Extrem	5 9		41
Duality of God's Nat	ure	•			49
Insuperable Need for	Scien	atific-Relig	non	•	64
Universal Religion-S	cieno	e—That	ın w	hich
there may be Unive	ersal .	Agreemen	ŧ.	•	69
Imperative Duty to	Tea	ch such	Univ	ersai
Religion .		•	•	•	69
Agreement of Religio	ns	•	•	•	75
Joy of Agreement	•	• •	•		88
The Essential and the	Non	-Essential	•	•	97
Nature of Religion	•	•	•		103
How Ascertain Divine	Wıl	1.		•	108
Three Aspects of Rela	gron	•			113
Their Relation to Edu	catio	n.			119

lxxxvii

		P	AGE
	CHAPTER II
WAY	of Knowledge, i e., Intellectual Con	-
	STITUENT OF RELIGION		121
1.	God and the Nature of God		122
	Conscience .		140
	Great Danger of a Great Misunderstanding		177
	Many Names of the All-Pervading God	,
	the One Self of All	•	185
2.		,
	Palingenesis, Rebirth		218
3	Karma—Reward and Punishment.	•	237
	Note on Karma, Rebirths, and Evolution	•	257
4	Other Worlds and Planes of Being		258
5.	Law of Analogy or Correspondences	•	277
6.	Long Line of Spiritual Hierarchy	•	284
7.	Goal of Life—To Feel Self in All .	•	295
	CHAPTER III
Way	OF DEVOTION, OR EMOTIONAL CONSTI-
	TUENT OF RELIGION	•	357
1	Five Principal Virtues and Disciplines		358
	Additional and Farther-reaching Virtues		368
	Control of Tongue, the Secret of All	l
	Control		376
2.	Reverence for Parents, Teachers, Elders		384
3.	Golden Rule of Christ		397
	Source of 'constituent' and 'ministrant'	•
	functions of State		397

TEXEVIII

Corollaries of Golden Rule Reason for Golden Rule Difficulties ré Golden Rule Immortal Virtues and Deadly Sins Two Main Sins 5. Single Seed of Two Root Sins One Seed of All Virtues 7. God in Man Great Danger of Great Misconception The One Safeguard Crowning Virtue of Humility A Reminder Duty Varies with Circum-	407 408 411 413 426
Corollaries of Golden Rule Reason for Golden Rule Difficulties ré Golden Rule Immortal Virtues and Deadly Sins Two Main Sins Single Seed of Two Root Sins One Seed of All Virtues God in Man Great Danger of Great Misconception The One Safeguard Crowning Virtue of Humility A Reminder Duty Varies with Circum-	408 411 413 426
Reason for Golden Rule Difficulties ré Golden Rule Immortal Virtues and Deadly Sins Two Main Sins Single Seed of Two Root Sins One Seed of All Virtues God in Man Great Danger of Great Misconception The One Safeguard Crowning Virtue of Humility A Reminder Duty Varies with Circum-	f11 f13 f26
Difficulties ré Golden Rule Immortal Virtues and Deadly Sins Two Main Sins Single Seed of Two Root Sins One Seed of All Virtues God in Man Great Danger of Great Misconception The One Safeguard Crowning Virtue of Humility A Rominder Duty Varies with Circum-	113 126
4 Immortal Virtues and Deadly Sins Two Main Sins 5. Single Seed of Two Root Sins 6 One Seed of All Virtues 7. God in Man Great Danger of Great Misconception The One Safeguard Crowning Virtue of Humility A Reminder Duty Varies with Circum-	126
Two Main Sins 5. Single Seed of Two Root Sins 6 One Seed of All Virtues 7. God in Man Great Danger of Great Misconception The One Safeguard Crowning Virtue of Humility A Reminder Duty Varies with Circum-
Two Main Sins 5. Single Seed of Two Root Sins 6 One Seed of All Virtues 7. God in Man Great Danger of Great Misconception The One Safeguard Crowning Virtue of Humility A Reminder Duty Varies with Circum-
6 One Seed of All Virtues 7. God in Man Great Danger of Great Misconception The One Safeguard Crowning Virtue of Humility A Rominder Duty Varies with Circum-	27
6 One Seed of All Virtues 7. God in Man Great Danger of Great Misconception The One Safeguard Crowning Virtue of Humility A Rominder Duty Varies with Circum-	28
7. God in Man Great Danger of Great Misconception The One Safeguard Crowning Virtue of Humility A Reminder Duty Varies with Circum-	138
The One Safeguard Crowning Virtue of Humility A Reminder 'Duty Varies with Circum-	149
The One Safeguard Crowning Virtue of Humility A Reminder 'Duty Varies with Circum-	68
Crowning Virtue of Humility A Reminder Duty Varies with Circum-	72
A Reminder 'Duty Varies with Circum-	77
_
	95
	98
_ ,	03
	19
	22
	43
CHAPTER IV
AY OF WORKS, OR VOLITIONAL CONSTITUENT
-	69
Resumé. The Triple Path 5	69
accommed the market and it	177
at a sugar
3. Discriminate Charity	73 96

XXXXI

		PAGE
4	Revelation	602
٠ 5	Shrines of God, Forms of Worship,
	Pilgrimage	604
б	Pageants, Processions, Festivals, Lamen-
	tations, Holy days	627
7	Sacraments .	629
8.	Aids to Meditation .	630
9.	Litanies, Liturgies, Fasts and Vigils .	631
10	Pure Food and Pure Sacrifice, Self-sacrifice vs. Other-sacrifice '	631
11	Outer Distinctive Marks of Faiths	638
12	Houses of God	639
13	Calls to Prayer	640
14	Prayers for the Dead .	640
15	Spiritual Relationships, Saint and Disciple, Priest and Parishioner	640
16	Rites and Ceremonies	640
17	Priests of Many Grades	641
18	Hermits, Monks, and Monasteries	641
19	Sects	643
20.	Social Structures	643
	Védic Scheme of Social Organisation	649
	Fourteen Main Tetrads	650
	(See also Appendix, pp 817 822) .
21	Similarity in Perversity, Corruption,
	Degeneracy, Evil Practices, also, like
•	Black Magic, Fanaticism, Intolerance,
	Pride of Superiority, etc .	701
	Great Truth Masked by Gleat Error	703

	PAGE
Great Danger-of Excessive Clinging to	ı
Formalism and Catchwords	707
Live and Die in and for the Universal
Life	714
Knowledge and Devotion Sterile without
Works	719
"Follow the Spirit, not the Letter" .	737
God's 'Eternal Memory', Omniscience,
Source of All Human Knowledge .
Mystic, Guostic, Yoga, or Suliik Discip-
'lines and Practices	752
CHAPTER V
THE ONE WAY TO PEACE ON EARTH AND
GOOD-WILL AMONG MEN	759·
CHAPTER VI
Education and Educationist	772
Note on Practicality, False and True	781
CHAPTER VII
Canar malan	809
CONCLUSION	817
Sthhoner	823
Things of Proper	835
M M Communit	851
77 19	867
" " Subjects / ·	90/

APPRECIATION

I

BY

BHĀRAT-RATNA SHRĪ C. RAJAGOPĀLĀCHĀRĪ

(First and last Indian Governor-General of India)

It is easy to perceive in a vague way the essential unity of all the great religions of the world and to hold that differences in forms of worship or in names do not matter.

Manager,
Theosophical Publishing House

^{&#}x27;Bhārat-Raṭna' is the highest of a series of four titles and distinctions created by the Government of India for bestowal on civilians for outstandingly distinguished work of some kind. Another series has been created for military men. So far, 'Bhārat-Ratna' has been conferred on six persons, Shrī C. Rājagopālāchārī (75 years old), Dr. Sir Rādhākrishnan, (67), Sir C. V. Raman (Noble Laureate, 67), Sir M. Vishvéshvarayya. (94), Dr. Bhagavān Dās (86), and Pandit Jawāharlāl Nehru (Prime Minister of India, 66).

But to arrive at this truth through actual research and analytical study requires the scholarship and untiring application of a man like Dr. Bhagavān Dās, the venerable philosopher of Banāras.

Newton simplified the complexities of the physical universe by formulating the law of gravitation. So did Darwin explain the existence of the myriad varieties of life on this planet by his principle of natural selec-But Newton and Darwin did not achieve this splendid simplification by a mere guess Behind the enunciation of their very simple looking discoveries lay laborious observation, deep thought, and accurate exammation. Dr. Bhagavan Das's book on the Essential Unity of all Religious is similarly the product of very laborious study and analysis and is not merely the formulation of a good and likely idea. It is a great book that the doctor has given to philosophers and pious men for reverent study.

C. RIJAGOPÄLÄCHÄRI

By Bharat-Ratna Dr. Sir S. Radhakrishnan

(Vice-President of India)

If the world is to be brought together it is only on the basis of mutual understanding. especially in matters of fundamental belief. Any book which points out that there is a transcendent unity of religions in spite of empirical diversity helps towards inter-religious understanding. Pursuit of wisdom i.e., philosophical understanding of the nature of ultimate reality and the practice of love irrespective of distinctions of caste, creed and community, these are the basic assumptions of all living faiths. Dr. Bhagavan Das with his encyclopaedic knowledge of the origin and growth of different religions has in his The Essential Unity of All Religions made a notable contribution towards the bringing of peoples together on the plane of mind and spirit. It is my earnest hope that his book will be read by young and old in all parts of the world.

S. Radharrishnan, (New Delha, 3-4-1955)

Ш

By Hon'ble Justice Sir Zafrulla Khan
(International Court of Justice, the Hague, Holland)

I VALUE The Essential Unity of All Religions highly, as I believe that the appreciation of the beauties of the great Faiths is one of the most potent means of promoting International understanding upon which the structure of enduring peace can be built. I trust means will be found to give the widest circulation to the fifth edition which you say is under preparation. I shall look forward to reading it again in the latest edition.

ZAFRULLA KHAN
(Letter to author D/. 25-8-1955)

FOREWORD

By His Excellency Dr. Rijendra Prasip

President of India

Religion, instead of binding mankind together in ties of love and brotherliness, has been a fruitful cause of discoid and strife between different groups of men. Time there was when there were not only crusades and schads fought in the name of religion between countries and nations but also persecution of individuals who had the courage to adopt and follow other religious or not to conform to the tenets and practices of the orthodox within the fold of the same religion. The reason was that people had not cared to study and understand the fundamentals of different religions, and, instead of appreciating their essential unity, laid emphasis on differences of form In modern times, religion may have lost some of its hold on the mind of millions of men and women, but its potentiality for mischief has not altogether disappeared.

While religion as a cause of war between nations and countries has receded to some extent in the background, nationality based on race and territory has taken its place. The desire for material well-being and prosperity of a nation added another important and significant factor—the economic factor—as an incentive and justification for one nation fighting against another. The world has not yet outgrown this phase in human history.

In the world of today another equally important, equally significant, and equally strong motive is supplied by different ideologies regarding the ideal to be pursued and the method by which it can be achieved for the well-being and prosperity of man. This has gripped mankind at the present moment.

These three dominant elements are not exclusive, and run into one another in determining man's actions, but also, in point of time and space, have been operating together with more or less force at all times and in all countries. The world today is not immune against them and in fact is witnessing their action, reaction, and interaction in many countries simultaneously.

Every rational and thoughtful human being-particularly after the experience of two devastating would-wars and on account of the apprehension of a third, even more devastating, war-believes that peace is indispensable and necessary for individual as well as social and collective prosperity and progress and general well-being. The causes, therefore, which lie at the root of conflicts which disturb peace between nations should be eliminated as far as possible. Religion being one such potent cause, which has led to bitter conflicts, wais, and massacies throughout history, and from which all countries, including India, have suffered and continue to suffer more or less even today, deserves to be studied so that the element in it which brings about conflict is eliminated. The animosities engendered should be allayed; and nothing would help this cause more or better than the study of the essentials of all religions This book. THE ESSENTIAL UNITY OF ALL RELIGIONS, clearly proves, by more than a thousand quotations of texts from the most honoured Scriptures of all the eleven living religions of the world, that all these religions are really identical in their essential teachings and injunctions. All these texts are arranged systematically in three parts: I. The Way of Knowledge, II., The Way of Devotion, III., The Way of Works, which also are shown to be common to all religions. It, therefore, behoves all well-wishers of humanity to study it and, if satisfied of its worth, to spread the Scriptural teachings embodied in it. I have no doubt that an authoritative exposition of the Essentials of all Religions, based on the most authoritative texts, can surely be counted upon as an effective means for eliminating conflicts, based very largely, as they are, on misunderstanding and ignorance. I strongly recommend a dispassionate study of this book as a solvent for many of the difficulties which confront man today.

20th June 1955.

RIJENDRA PRASID

Children of men I The Unseen Power whose eye For ever doth accompany Mankind, (Hath sent Man each Religion tenderly) That he did ever find.

Which has not taught weak wills how much they can?

Which has not fall'n on the dry heart like rain?
Which has not cried to sunk self-weary man—
Thou must be born again!

(Maithew Arnold)

God sends His Teachers unto every age,
To every clime and every race of men,
With revelations fitted to their growth
And shape of mind, nor gives the realm of truth
Into the selfish rule of one sole race.
Therefore each form of worship that hath swayed
The life of Man, and given it to grasp
The Master-key of knowledge, Reverence,
Enfolds some germs of goodness and of right,
Else, never had the eager soul, which loathes
The slothful down of pampered ignorance,
Found it it even a moment's fitful rest

([Russell Lowell, Rhacus).

Human beings, all, are as head, arms, trunk, and legs unto one another (Véda)

No man liveth unto himself. We are all parts of one another. God hath made of one blood all nations that dwell upon the face of the earth. (Bible).

All creatures are members of the one family of God. (Quran).

INVOCATION OF THE ONE SUPREME SPIRIT OF UNITY

AUM-ĀMĪN-AMEN

Eko Pévah sarva-bhūtéshu gūdhah Sākshī chétā sarva-bhūt-ādhı-väsah, Țam Ātma-stham yé-(a)nu-pashyantı dhīrāh, Ţéshām sukham shāshvatam, na-ıtaréshām.

Sarva-vyāpī sarva-bhūt-āntar-Ātmā,
Ekam rūpam bahu dhā yah karoti,
Tam Ātma-stham-yé-(a)nu-pashyanti dhīrāh,
Téshām sukham shāshvatam, na-itaréshām.

Nityo nityānām, Chétanash chétanānām, ' Eko bahūnām yo vi-dadhāti kāmān, Tam Atma-stham yé-(a)nu-pashyanti dhīrāh, Ţeshām shāntih shāshvatī, na-itareshām

Eko A-varno, bahu-dhā Shakṭı-yogād
Varnān, an-ékān nihit-ārtho yo dadhāti,
Vi-chaiti ch-ānté vishvam ādau, sa Dévah,
Sa no buddhyā shubhayā sam-yunaktu. (U)

¹ Please see, supra 'List of Abbreviations' and note on 'System of Pronunciation', as regards use of discritical marks and accented types

(The One God hidden in all living beings,

The Living Witness biding in all hearts—
The Wise who seek and find Him in them-Self,

To them, and None Else, is Eternal Joy

The all-pervading Inner Self of all,
Who from His Formlessness creates all Forms—
The Wise who see that One within them-Self,
To them alone belongs Eternal Joy.

Eternity of acons, Life of lives,

The One who all the Many's wishes sates—
The Wise who Him within them-Self behold
Theirs, and None Other's is Eternal Peace.

The Colourless, who from His secret store
Exhaustless, countless colours draws, to paint,
Efface, repaint, the worlds upon the face
Of Empty Space with Mystic Potency—
May He endow us with the lucid mind 1)

Turfa Bé-rangī ke dārad rang-hā-é sad hazār l Turfa Bé-shaklī ke dārad shakl-hā-é bé-shumār !

Ba nāmé Ān ke Ū nāmė na dārad,
Ba har nāme ke khwānī sar bar ārad,
Ba nāmé Ān ke Wāhid dar Kasīr ast,
Ke andar Wahdat-Ash Kasrat asīr ast ' (S.)

(What marvel! that a Being Colourless
Displays a hundred thousand hues, tints, shades!
What wonder! that a Being Void of Form
Enrobes in forms beyond all numbering!—
May we behold Him in all hues and forms!

Thus, in the name of Him who bath no name, Yet lifts to every name an answering head,

The name of Him who is the Changeless One Amidst the changing Many, and within

Whose Oneness all this Many is confined,
May we begin our loving work of Peace.)

Aum! Tat Savitur-varéniyam bhargo Dévasya dhīmahi, dhiyo yo nah prachodayāt. (V) Agné!, naya su-pathā rāyé asmān, vishvāni, Déva!, vayunāni vidvān Yuyodhi-asmaj-juhurānam énah. Bhūyishthām Té nama-ukţim vidhéma. (Isha Upanishat)

(Father of all!, may Thy supernal Light
Inspire, illuminate, and guide our minds!
We open them to let Thy Glory in Supreme Director! Lord of Warmth and Light,
Of Life and Consciousness, that knowest all!
Guide us by the Right Path to happiness,
And give us strength and will to war against
The sins that rage in us and lead astray!
We bow in adoration unto Thee!)

Bismiliāh-ir-Rahmān-ir-Rahīm. Al-hamdu lillāhi Rabb-il-ālimīn! Ar-Rahmān-ir-Rahīm! Mālik-i-yaum-iddīn! Iyyāka na'budū, wa iyyāka nasta'īn. Ihdi-nas-sirātul-mustaqīm. Sirāt-allazzīna ana'mta a'laihim, ghair-il-maghzub-i-a'laihim wa lā-azzālin. Āmīn (Q.)

(Lord of Compassion! All praise unto Thee! Creator and Protector of the worlds! Lord God! Beneficent and Mercaful! Master Supreme of the great Judgment Day! Thee do we serve and Thee beseech for help; Show us the Path on which Thy blessings rest; The Straight Path; not of those who go astray, On whom descend Thy wrath and punishment.)

Apāna daiégo jyāitīm, ā kahathrém vanghéush manaugho, ashāt ā éréjush patho, yaéshū Mazadāo Ahuro shaéti. (Gāthā)

(Grant us long life, Great Lord, and fortitude, And the right mind, and show us the Straight Path, O'er which Thou broodest, and which leads to Thee!)

Hear, O Lord!, my cry, give ear unto my prayer, that goeth not out of feigned lips. Hold up my goings in Thy Paths, that my footsteps slip not. Show me Thy Ways, O Lord!, teach me Thy Paths, and lead me in Thy Truth. Thou art the God of my salvation Open Thou mine eyes that I may behold wondrous things out of Thy Law. Quicken Thou me according to Thy word. Remove from me the way of lying. $(B_1, O.T)$

Our Father which art in heaven! hallowed be Thy name Thy Kingdom come Thy will be done in earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors. And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil, for Thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, for ever. Amen. (B, N.T)

O far great Heaven! We call Thee, Our Father and our Mother! (C, THR., 19)

(Ocean of Mercy 1 Ever, in our hearts, Dwell Thou, and so illuminate our minds That we may love, serve, worship Thee, Our God!, Ever Thy Presence may we feel near us! Thon art our Father, Mother, Teacher, all 1) (St., Grantha, THR., 31).

DEAR FRIENDS, SISTERS, BROTHERS!

In accord with the time-old traditions of the East, let us begin our work of love thus, in the words of the venerable Scriptures of the several religions; of Védas and Upamshats, the most ancient available records of passionately yearning and deeply searching human thought, of Quran, and of Stifis, the most poetical and beautiful exponents of that thought; and Zend-Avesta, Bible, the Guru Grantha Sāhab; begin with ardent invocation of. and fervent prayer to, the One Supreme Spirit of Life. That Supreme Spirit, out of its Unity, creates the infinite Many-ness of Nature; and, at the same time, It imposes Its all-pervading. all-embracing, Unity upon that countless Mul-By that Unity, It binds atoms and cellsinto tissues, organs, bodies, bodies into species, genera, kingdoms, ties these to planets; planets to suns, in solar systems, these to larger systems; chains these into vast star-galaxies; and makes of all the infinite World-process, a Uni-verse It entersinto these dead dolls of bone and blood and flesh that we otherwise are, and endows us with the mind that can encompass all these countless systems. That Spirit, indeed, dwelling hidden in the hearts of all, makes it possible for these dolls to understand, and sympathize with, and help each other, in the difficulties of life It is the One sole source of whatever Unity there is in all human thought. The realization of It alone, as eternally present, in one-Self and in all-selves, brings deathless bappiness and peace, as nothing else can do. May that Universal

Life and Light vivify and illuminate our hearts and minds! May It show to us the Right Path, and give to us the firm and Righteous Will to walk on it unwavering! Only after opening our hearts to it, may we commence all work with hope of full success!

Next, let us reverently salute the Rshis, Prophets, Buddhas, Messiahs, Nabīs, Rasūls, Messengers, Avatāras, Tīrthan-karas, Arhats, Gurus, the Spiritual Hierarchs of all times They have given Scriptures, age after age, to race after race, in order to keep alive the light of the consciousness of that Unity in the heart of Humanity They brood over the Humani Race and guide its progress, as benevolent parent-teachers watch over children in an educational home, leading the minds and bodies of their pupils onwards, from class to upper class, along the path of ever upward evolution

Let us also offer tribute of deep gratitude to all Societies, Associations, Leagues, Parliaments of Religions, World-Fellowships of Faiths, which have been endeavouring to hold up before the world, the need and the possibility of reviving the sincere worship of that Spirit of Unity, (1) by educing more and more clearly, through sympathetic, deep, large-hearted and open-minded, comparative study of the Sacred Books of all religions, the Essential Unity running through all these religions, past and present,

(2) by directing attention to the need for the study of the inner nature, as much as the outer, of the human being as such, and (3) by reuniting the peoples of all countries, without distinction of creed, caste, colour, race, or sex, in a Universal Brother-hood, which alone can give sincerity and real life and fulfilment to the work of the League of Nations Such Universal Brother-hood alone can do so, by supplying the Spiritual half of that Whole, of which the League of Nations represents only the Material (hence almost useless) half, by creating a League of Religious, and linking it with the League of Nations.

CHAPTER I

RELIGIOUS SCIENCE AND SCIENTIFIC RELIGION.

IT is common knowledge that Asiatic thought is emmently coloured by religion, as Laiatic modern European thought is by Thought and science All the great living religions Buropean Thought are of Asiatic origin, also almost all the historical great dead religions The personal, domestic, and social life of the Hindu is largely governed by the rules of what he regards as his religion So is that of the Musalman. So of the Jew So of the Confucian So was, and to a considerable extent still is, that of the Christian belonging to the Roman Catholic form of Christianity Such also is the case with the followers of the other forms and reforms of the Vedic religion, known as the Zoroastrian, the Buddhist, the Jama, the Sikh, though perhaps the element of ritual is less prominent, and that of ethics more, in the later of these, in accordance with the very principle of reform 1 Laotsism

"A religion which holds possession of our lives, which directs us at each step which we take, becomes part of our own souls. Unless, in some shape or other, is mostly a profound philosophy, the same in essence as Vedānta-Yoga and Tasawwuf, its practical side is Confucianism. Shintoism, nobly regarding man as it prescribes a rule of conduct, it inevitably loses its hold. The Catholic System source leaves an hour without its stated duties, such and such forms to be gone through. such and such prayers to be repeated Night and day. morning and evening, at meals and in the intervals between meals, the Catholic is reminded of his creed by a set form. Calvinism superseded these formal observances by yet more noble practical observances ever present with its behests in fixing the scale of permitted expenditure, in regulating the dress, the enjoyments, the hours of sleep and labor, sternly cutting short all idle pleasure and luxury, sternly insisting on the right performance of all practical work, the trade the handicraft, or whatever it might be. as something for every thread and fibre of which a man would one day be called to account . Religion is the wholesome ordering of human life, the guide to furnish us with our daily duties in the round of common occupation, the lamp to light us glong our road and to show us where to place our steps " Froude, Short Studies in Great Subjects, TII. pp 154, 198,

All religions endeavour, suitably to the conditions amidst which they take their birth and grow, to fulfil this ideal duty, but unfortunately, bye and bye, the custodians of each and every religion begin to do the 'ordering' too much, become over-conservative, rigid, narrow, domineering, greedy, immoral, despotic, lose elastic touch with changing times, forget the essentials, insist over-much on non-essentials, and thus corrupt the religion by their own excesses. Them 'politics' and 'science' begin to do the 'ordering', and go to perhaps even worse excesses and extremes naturally virtuous, teaches ritual mostly.1 In all these, the feeling is prominent, that the human being is under the ever-present influence of Something, is always in relation with Something, which is other than what is perceptible to the outer senses; that the life of the physical body is subordinate to the life of a Mysterious Something, Soul, Spirit, which has a life beyond this life Indeed, the tendency to what has been called other-worldliness has, in some communities, grown over-pronounced, even to the extent of becoming a disease 2

1 "There is a teaching which, if not confined to Shinto, is at least most emphasised in it, and that is the innate goodness of man. Shintoists consistently uphold the theanthropic doctrine of Kan-nagara, of man being essentially divine " Inazo Nitobe, Japan, (pub 1931. The Modern World Series), p 321

Incidentally, it may be noted that this excessive other-world-h-ness, (in the sense of neglect of this world), with which India is debited, (and not wholly wrongly either, by foreign as well as indigenous writers), has been prominent, mostly only during those periods in which political and economic oppression and exploitation have been rampant Subjected to cruel misery and heartbreak in this world, people sought hope of relief from the next, as they have done in every country of east and west, China, Eur-Asia, Europe, in convents and monas-Otherwise, India has always been sufficiently this world-ly to have won the reputation of the land par excellence of silver and gold and jewels, wealth and plenty and luxury of all kinds, flowing with milk and honey, filled with corn and cotton and cattle, fruits and silk and wool, tanks and temples and palaces of stone

Contrary to this, in the West, advanced thought was, until very recently, cutting itself off, more and more, from all concern with the possibility of things beyond the reach of our physical senses; excepting, of course, some very meta-physical 'abstract concepts', which, somehow, indispensably constitute the very roots of the various most positive sciences, and are a perpetual reminder, to the thoughtful, of inseparable connection between physical and metaphysical, concepts like arithmetical 'one, two, three, etc., and zero', geometrical 'point, line, surface'; dynamical 'force, energy, attraction, repulsion'; physical 'atom, electron', chemical 'affinity', biological 'life', psychological 'ego, I, we, will,

and of marble inlaid with gems-the country whose enterprising merchants supplied, by sea as well as land, the requirements of Persia, Palestine, Egypt, and Rome. in the west, and exchanged things of art with China. Siam. Burma and Japan, in the east Indeed, it was this wealth and luxury, and this reputation, which led to her degradation, brought invasions, oppression, exploitation, and, worse than all else, despiritualisation and demoralisation In happier times. India's other worldliness only illumined and softened, as with moonlight, her this-worldliness, transfigured it, filled it with reverence for God's Nature in all Its manifestations, and made her People see, not the things of the Spirit with the eyes of the flesh, but the things of the flesh with the eves of the Spirit To recover those days of peaceful and prosperous happiness, she must first recover her soul hy realising anew the Essence of Religion and the Essential Unity of all Religions.

memory, expectation, space, time'; and so on. That western thought, going to the other extreme, from excess of other-worldliness to excess of this-worldliness, brought about the greater disease of mind which resulted in the most murderous of historical wars, vis, World-War I (1914-1918) and II (1939-1945), and continues to thicaten a still worse

To find out, then, whether there is or is not any substantial unity in Asiatic thought, we have mostly to concern ourselves with religious thought; as, if we had to investigate whether there is or is not unity in European thought, we would chiefly compare the views of those who have devoted their lives to the various branches of science, mathematical, physicochemical, astronomical, biological, sociological

To the cursory view, of the person of one kind of temperament, it might seem that the unity of Western scientific thought is patent?; that the whole of what is known as science is a consistent body of theory and practice, that the unity of Eastern religious thought is an equally obvious myth, and that religions are born only to try to annihilate one another, and to induce their respective followers to plague and murder each other.

See, fr, works like Outline of Science, and Modern Book of Knowledge, quite a number of which have been published within the last two or three decades.

On the other hand, to the basty sight of another, it would appear that, eg, in such a vitally important science as that of medicine, doctors disagree very much, that the more expert and scientific they are, the more intensely they differ, and that radically conflicting systems of treatment kill and cure, with much the same average of results, on the whole the system which regards itself as most scientific and up-to-date, theories as to the nature and cause of disease, methods of treatment, and drugs in favour and fashion, change from year to year. In almost all other sciences, pure and applied, old views and appliances are being daily scrapped in favour of new; the greater and more rapid the scrapping, the louder the vaunt of progressiveness. even in a rock-bottom science like mathematics, self-evident axioms are now in peril of their lives from the attacks of new theories: and in sociological sciences especially, the war of ideas, of words, of 'isms', is maddeningly internecine

Indeed, Science has its ritual, its etiquette, its sacrosanct formalities, its mysterious technicalities, its sanctums, its oracular pomposity and superior standoffishness, its popish infallibility, its expertcraft, its jingoism and fanaticism, as much as Religion; its controversial animus as bitter as the odium theologicum, and, becoming religionless and Godless, it has, as debased servant of imperialism, statecraft, ruthless diplomacy, caused far more slaughter than Religion, becoming scienceless and reasonless, and degenerating into priestcraft, has done. But all such things are the fruit, neither of true science, nor of true religion, but of the evil in human nature. That evil falsifies and misuses them both, for its own selfish purposes.

Here as elsewhere, the wish is father to the thought. Those, who, for temperamental reasons, wish to see Unity, will see Unity. Those, who wish to see Discord, will see Discord only.

Those, who wish impartially to examine both sides of the question, will see both justly. They will discern the Truth, which always stands in the Mean between opposite Extremes; viz., the Truth of essential Unity in superficial Diversity, in religious as well as in scientific thought. Such Unity is established by the mediation of Philosophy; and the use of Philosophy, as such mediator, has begun to be recognized, more and more, latterly, by the more thoughtful and widely cultured scientists themselves, as well as by the more thoughtful religionists also. No two faces, no two bodies, no two voices. manners, gasts, tree-leaves, grass-blades, are exactly similar. Even so, no two minds coincide completely. The Principle of Multiplicity in Nature sees to that. But, all the same, there is a broad general similarity too, between all human faces, figures, voices, feelings, thinkings, actings, leaves, and grasses. This alone makes it possible for human beings to understand one another, and to live together as a civilised society The Principle of Unity, which governs Nature, is the source of such civilised association and sympathy To recognise that Unity in the Essentials of all Religions, is to promote the cause of Civilisation.

¹G B Shaw's Prefaces (Collected Works, 3 vols, 1938) are full of powerful attacks against the tyranny of modern science, as being much more pervasive and irresistible than the tyranny of religion ever was See, e.g., Prefaces to The Doctor's Dilemma and The Simpleton of the Unexpected Isles

The One Way to Peace on

Barth

Those who thus discern the Truth, will always make it their duty, as lovers of the menkind of East and West alike to do their best to maximise and glorify the Spirit of Unity, and sub-ordinate

(not abolish, which is impossible) the principle of Multiplicity to It. Such Spirit of Unity, in Europe, is witnessed by common science and culture, and, in Asia, by the fact that our brothers and sisters come from Tibet, Siam, Burma, and distant China and far-off Japan, to worship the boly memory of Buddha Gautama at the Deer-Park in Banaras. (which ancient-most of living towns is the most holy place of Pilgrimage for all Hindus), and at the Temple in Buddha-Gava, while pilgrims from all countries of Asia, and from many parts of Africa, gather at Macca annually, in obedience to the command of the Prophet Muhammad 1 Truthseeing lovers of bumanity will always work with all their might, to minimise the spirit of disunion and discord This spirit of discord, in Europe, has caused the two World Wars, and continues to intensify political, national, and racial jealousies and batreds there, in worse and worse form, even after the awful bloodshed and agony of those Wars. In Asia, especially in India, it is evidenced by the too well-known caste and creed dissensions, which have kept it under all soits of subjection, domination, and exploitation; whence arises, surely, great material as well as spiritual harm to the exploited, now, and to the exploiter, in the end Best means of

¹ Jerusalem, Rome, Lourdes, Kiev, Canterbury, and other towns are similar Centres of Pilgrimage for European Christians also, still.

^{&#}x27;In India, fierce 'political' dissensions have also grown up between large 'parties', and riots and strikes, engineered by 'leaders' of many sorts, have multiplied, within last four decades. The armed war of Japan and China (1931-1945), though their religion is, largely, the same, is matter of current history. Civil War slso went on between the Communists and the established Government, in China, for several years, until latter was overthrown and former came into power with Mao-tse as chairman of the Chinese Republic, formally established on 1st Oct 1949 promoting this so desirable peace, harmony, and unity between all countries, and between all sections of their populations, is to prove, and bring home to all, Unity between Science and Religion, and between religion and religion; and, secondly, to place, before the world, a Religio-Scientific Scheme of Social Organisation and Planned Individual Life, which will secure, for different temperaments, and different ages in each lifetime, appropriate occupations, and means of livelihood, and necessaries of life at least, for all Thus only can indispensable Spiritual Bread, as well as Material Bread, be provided to all.

Some persons, disgusted with religious conflict. speak hastily of absolishing religion to allay that conflict As well kill the body to cure disease To uproot religion successfully, they must first exterminate Pain and Death. So long as human beings experience and fear these, they will not cease to crave the consolations of religion. Also, so long as men and women are left, are encouraged, are even positively taught, to believe that religious differ, even in essentials, so long will they, as followers of such different religions, also necessarily continue to differ, to fight, to shed each other's blood If. ber contra, they are led to see that all religions are one in essentials, they will also surely become one in heart, and realise their common humanity in a loving Brotherhood.

The establishing of such union, between religion and religion, and between science and religion, in place of the conflict which has been raging between them so far, will make the beginning of a new and beneficent era, an era guided and governed by Scientific Religion and Religious Science.

Some signs are hopeful Slowly, with many setbacks, artificial barriers are breaking down between science and science, between science and religion, between religion and religion. It is beginning to be recognized and said more and more. that sciences are not many, but that Science is one. It is to be hoped that before very long, with the help of that same completely unified science, it will soon come to be recognized that religious, too, are not many, but that Religion is one, and, finally, that Science and Religion are but different aspects of, or even only different names for, the same great body of Truth and its application which may be called the Science or Code of Life If, formerly, every act was done in the name and under the guidance of religion, and, latterly, has tended to be done in the name of science, there is reason to hope that, in future, it may be done in the name of Spiritual or Religious Science.

History shows that new religions and their characteristic civilizations have taken birth, grown, and decayed, side by side. We may well regard the two as cause and effect. But what is regarded as the birth of a new religion, is really only a re-proclamation, and re-vivification even more, by the extraordinary personality, the intense fevour, 'divine fire', en-thusi-(Theos)-asm, 'God-filled-ness', tapas, janbah, self-sacrifice, high heart-compelling example, of the re-proclaimer. It is a fresh declaration, in new words, and a fresh en-live-ning thereby, of the Resential Eternal Universal Religion, and it is made necessary by the fact that the earlier proclamation had become covered up, beyond recognition, with non-essential, lifeless, misleading, harmful formalisms.

The fresh proclamation, needed for the present time, seems likely to take the form of Scientific Religion in a pre-eminent degree. And it apparently has to be made on somewhat 'socialist and democratic', rather than 'individualist,' lines; such lines as the Oversoul of the Human Race is taking in other departments of its vast life, that is to say, it has to be made, and, indeed, is being slowly, gradually, almost imperceptibly, made, by the large body of scientific and religious thinkers in co-operation as a whole, rather than by a single individual; though leaders are needed even by the most democratic movements '

Associations form, now and then, with such religioscientific objects as those indicated on pp. 5-6 supra.

Thus, some scientists have been working at 'psychical research' since 1882, when the Society for

Unfortunately, owing to inherent human weaknesses, they repeatedly stray away from principles to personalities, from humanitarianism to sectarianism, and to all the dangers and mischiefs of 'priestcraft' which that implies. They do not keep the main objects steadily in view, as beacon-light to guide all their efforts, do not work single mindedly and whole heartedly for the unification of the world's thought and practice in a Universal Scientific Religion, and a sincere League of all Religions as well as of all Nations. Varying the proverb, "Man proposes and God disposes", we may say, God proposes, and Satan opposes, and, but too often, successfully disposes'

But there is no cause for excessive regret, much less despair Instead, there is cause for greater effort in behalf of the Impersonal, and therefore All-personal. For the Principle of Good always re-composes and re-disposes Schisms, due to 'personalities', due to over-emphasis, with much animus, on the personal element, on meum and immi, and consequent violent disputes between followers, as well as violent opposition by persons outside the special fold, have been the experience, in their own life-times, of Krshna, Moses, Zoroaster, Conlucius, Buddha, Christ, Muhammad, Nanak-all, as also of 'leaders' in all other fields of human life. This 18 but another proof to the peaceful and discerning eye, of 'the Unity of all Religions', instead of the opposite, in respect of such unhappy experience too! We also see plantly, that such schisms do not at once destroy all the good work of the main religion. When, bye and bye. they do succeed in undermining it wholly, then the Principle of Good brings about a re-proclamation and re-viy-al of the Fundamental Truth in new ways Believers in and servants of Unity must therefore always keep their hearts high Psychical Research was founded. Sir Oliver Lodge, venerable veteran of world-wide fame in the realm of science, has said.

"The time will assuredly come when these avenues into unknown regions will be explored by science; and there are some who think that the time is drawing nigh when that may be expected to happen. The universe is a more spiritual entity than we thought. The real fact is that we are in the midst of a spiritual world which dominates the material. It constitutes the great and ever-present reality whose powers we are only beginning to realize. They might indeed be terrifying had we not been assured for our consolation that their tremendous energies are all controlled by a Beneficent Fatherly Power whose name is Love."

Some other older, as also more recent, declarations of faith by eminent front-rank scientists of the time may be cited.

Sir James Jeans, mathematician and astronomer, Cambridge and Princeton, secretary for many years to the Royal Society of Great Britain, says: "The Universe begins to look more like a great Thought

¹ Bno. Bist., 14th edn., art ¹ Psychical Research ¹ gives a fair and comprehensive account, up to 1928-G. N M Tyrrel's Science and Psychical Phenomena was published in 1938

³ At Bristol, on 7 Sep., 1930. He passed away in 1940, at the age of 89.

than a great Machine" And again, "The apparent objectivity of things is due to their subsisting in the Mind . . We reach . . the coucept of the universe as a world of pure Thought. . . . Mind no longer appears as an accidental intruder in the realm of Matter. We are beginning to suspect that we ought rather to hail it as the creator and governor of the realm of Matter Not, of course, our individual minds. but the Mind in which the atoms, out of which our individual minds have grown, exist as Thought." The same scientist, in The New Background of Science (1933), dealing with "the new knowledge", and surveying "the whole ground, from relativity, continuum, least interval, curved space, to quanta, wave-mechanics, waves of probability, indeterminacy and events-all concepts which we can neither picture, imagine, nor describe", says: "The law and order which we find in the universe are most easily described and . . . explained in the language of idealism . At the farthest point Science has so far reached, much, and possibly all, that was not mental has disappeared, and nothing new has come in that is not mental. The final direction of change will probably be away from the materialism and strict determinism which characterised . . nineteenth century physics "1 Again, in the last paragraphs of his book, The Mysterious Universe, (1937), he says "The new knowledge compels us to revise our first hasty impressions ... The old dualism of Mind and Matter . . seems likely to disappear . through substantial Matter resolving itself into a creation and manifestation of Mind."

¹ See Sullivan's Limitations of Science (pub 1938; Penguins), especially ch vi

Prof Eve, at p 65 of The Great Design, a symposium edited by F. Mason (1936), says · " Most men today are engrossed in some one particular profession or occupation. . . It is doubtful if any group of men, except perhaps a few philosophers is engaged in fitting together the jugsaw or patchwork puzzle of the mutitudinous discoveries and theories of all our diverse branches of knowledge, thought is thus divided into water-tight compartments, between which the communications are blocked."

Another scientist of note, Prof. Sir A. S. Eddington, has very recently confessed: "Something Unknown is doing we don't know what—that is what our theory amounts to " Elsewhere he says, "Modern physics has eliminated the notion of substance ... Mind is the first and most direct thing in our exprience ... I regard Consciousness as fundamental I regard Matter as derivate a from Consciousness." And again. "The stuff of the world is mind-stuff ... Consciousness is not sharply defined, but fades into sub-consciousness, and beyond that we must postulate or nething indefinite, but yet continuous with our mental nature. This I take to be the world-stuff;" The Vature of the Physical World, pp. 276-280.

¹ The philosophical, religious, and at the same time scientific principles, by means of which all possible, even contradictory seeming, views and things were reconciled by ancient Indian Seers, and 'scientific determinist causation' as well as 'free will' explained and combined in 'auto-matism'—these principles, of ancient Indian thought, are attempted to be set forth in the present writer's The Science of the Self (1938) and The Science of Peace (3rd edn 1948).

The venerable Herbert Spencer said, in the closing 18, 190, 191 of the last revised cultion of his First Principles (pub. 1900, which he was capitally years of age), that his "Unknowable," in no was conflicts with, but rather supports, religion. The Teacher-founders of the great religions have all taught, and many philosophers, ancient and modern, Western and Eastern, have precised that this Uninowable, is our very Self, the all-pervading, Universal, Supreme Principle of Consciousness or Life.

The equally concrable Mired Russell Wallace, co discoverer with H Spencer and Charles Darwin, of the Law of Evolution, has, in his book, Social Environment and Moral Progress, written when he was nearly minety years of age, expressly declared his faith in Spirit as governing Matter, and in the fact that the greatest discoveries have been due to special influxes of Spirit, (aveshass or avataras).

In The Great Design (1934), edited by F. Mason, an Introduction and a concluding chapter by Sir J. A Thomson, great biologist, fourteen renowned scientists have written short articles summing up their life's researches. All agree that the world is not a soulless mechanism, and is not the work of blind chance; that there is a Mindbehind the veil of Matter, give it what name we will. The scientists are R. G. Allen, Director of Lick Observatory, astronomer, J. A. Crowther, professor of physics, University of Cambridge, A S Eve. professor of physics, McGill University; Baillie Willis, professor of geology, Johns Hopkins University and University of Chicago; C. Lloyd Morgan, professor of psychology, University of Bristol, E.W. McBride, professor of geology, Imperial College of Science, London, C. S. Gayer, Director, Brooklyn Botanical Gardens, H. E. Armstrong, emeritus professor of chemistry, City College, London, M. M. Metcalf, emeritus professor of zoology, Oberlin College, and research associate, Johns Hopkins University, Sir Oliver Lodge (born 1851) emeritus professor of physics, Oxford and Cambridge; Sir Francis Younghusband, retired army-General, traveller, humanist. D. S Fraser-Harris, emeritus professor of physiology, Dalhousie University, Nova Scotia: Hans Driesch, Professor of Philosophy. Leipzig: and Sir I. A. Thomson, emeritus Professor of Natural History, Aberdeen.

Following extracts, of other famous living scientists' opinions, are taken from J. T. Sunderland's article. "Is Modern Science Outgrowing God?" in The Modern Review (of Calcutta), for July, 1936.

Albert Einstein, Mathematician, world-famous originator of the Theory of Relativity. "I believe in God . . . who reveals Himself in the orderly harmony of the universe. I believe that Intelligence is manifested throughout all Nature. The basis of scientific work is the conviction that the world is an ordered and comprehensible entity and not a thing of Chance." Again (in USA, in 1930) he said: "The religious geniuses of all times have been distinguished by this cosmic religious sense . . . It seems to me that the most important function of Art and Science is to arouse and keep alive this feeling in those who are receptive." quoted by Dean Inge, in an art. on 'The Philosophy of Mysticism', in Philosophy for October, 1938

J.B.S Haldane, physicist, Oxford and Birmingham Universities. "The Material world, which has been taken for a world of blind Mechanism, is in reality a Spiritual world seen very partially and imperfectly. The one real world is the Spiritual world. . . The truth is that, not Matter, not Force, not any physical thing, but Mind, personality, is the central fact of the Universe"

Sir Arthur S Eddington, astronomer, Cambridge: "The old atheism is gone... Religion belongs to the realm of Spirit and Mind, and cannot be shaken"

Kirtley F Mather, geologist, Harvard "The nearest approach we have thus far made to the Ultimate, in our analysis of Matter and of Energy, indicates that the Universal Reality is Mind"

Arthur H Compton, physicist, Chicago University "An examination of the evidence seems to support the view that there is no very close correspondence between brain-activity and consciousness. It seems that our thinking is partially divorced from our brain, a conclusion which suggests, though it does not prove, the possibility of consciousness after death" (As said in The Mahatma Letters, p. 267: "The flame is distinct from the log of wood which serves it temporarily as fuel" Yet solar heat is already present in the log also)

Robert A. Millikan, physicist Institute of Technology, Pasadana "God is the Unifying Principle of the universe. No more sublime conception has been presented to the mind of man, than that which is presented by Evolution, when it re-presents Him as revealing Himself, through countless ages, in the age-long inbreathing of life into constituent Matter, culminating in man with his Spiritual nature and all his God-like powers"

The sentences with which Sit J. A Thomson closes the book above referred to, viz. The Great Design, may be quoted here: "Throughout the World of Animal Life there are expressions of something akin to the Mind in ourselves. There is. from the Amœba upwards, a stream of inner, of subjective, life; it may be only a slender rill, but sometimes it is a strong current. It includes feeling. imagining, purposing, as well as occasionally thinking It includes the Unconscious Whether in the plant it dreams, or is soundly asleep, or has never awakened, who can tell us? . . . The omnipresence of mind in animals gives us a fellow-feeling with them. With Emerson we see 'the worm, stirring to be a man, mount through all the spires of form ' We see the growing emancipation of mind, and this gives Evolution its purpose . . In a continuous process, there can be nothing in the end which was not also present in kind in the beginning, we are led from our own mind, and the story of its enfranchisement, back and back to the Supreme Mind 'without Whom there was nothing made that was made' Facing, every day, things in the World of Life, around which our scientific fingers will not meet, what can we do but repeat what is carved on the lintel of the Biology Buildings of one of the youngest and strongest of American Universities. 'Open Thou mine eyes that I may behold wondrous: things out of Thy Law'." The greatest scientists are the most reverent towards the Ultimate Mystery, the Self in All.

Leader (Allahabad) reported in April, 1937 "The Court of the London University, after much discussion, has recently accepted a very valuable library, of Psychical and Magical books, collected by Mr. Harry Price, from all over the world, which is almost unique, and is one of the most comprehensive of its kind. In giving it to the University, Mr. Price, long keenly interested in the subject, said he hoped to stimulate a desire on the part of University authorities for a fully equipped department of Psychical Research to be installed in the new London University Buildings. . . It is a fact that a number of individual scientists, in many parts of the western world, have been for years past making serious investigations of psychic phenomena, and that the Universities of Bonn, Leyden, Leipzig-to name only a few on the Continent-are taking a serious interest in the subject. It is stated that in Levden, a recognised department dealing with psychical research is already established. If the phenomena are proved to be facts-and only the ignorant will deny their occurrence—then as facts they must be studied. . . . The new series of evening University Extension Lectures . . . comprise a course of ten lectures on 'The Literature of the Occult'. They start with the main principles involved in occult study, and roam over the subject from the Egyptian "Book of the Dead", and medieval Chinese occult lore, to Yoga and modern spiritnalism "

Thus is modern Science, fathered in its infancy. and persecuted in its youth, by Religion, in Europe. now endeavouring to repay the kindness, after having retributed the injury, by renovating Religion in what, let us hope, will be a finer, scientific, nonsuperstitious form.

A short and effective way of settling the whole dispute over 'Spirit' (or 'Mind') and 'Matter'. seems to be this You say, 'Matter-Chance' creates 'Spirit-Mind-Purpose': not the latter, the former. Very good. Let it be that way But what does that mean? Does it not mean only this-that the attributes, properties, faculties, powers, which have been so long associated, by mankind, with (the words) Spirit-Mind-Intelligence-Life-Consciousness-Will-Purpose-Design (-all undeniable facis, remember-), should now be attached to (the words) Matter - Unconsciousness - Inanimacy -Deadness - Chance - Blind Force - Inertia, etc : that instead of the (word) Subject ideating, imagining, cognising, desiring, consting, moving the (word)

Object, (—all these functionings are facts, remember—) the (word) Object, chance-ates, determines, knows, wishes, acts on the (word) Subject? Very well. By all means have your wish. The old way of speaking has become hackneyed, let us change it, by the simple process of reversing or ex-changing the meanings of the words, the facts remaining unchanged and unchangeable. The powers and functions we now ascribe to (the word) Spirit, we shall, in future, ascribe to (the word) Matter! God did not create Matter, Matter created God! Very well. But the duality and opposition of the two Things will not be abolished that way. The transcendence, reconciliation, of that difference and polarity is the subject of Metaphysic!

With the breaking of fences between science and religion, and by fuller scientific thought, will come demolition of hedges between religion and religion; then it will be possible for the artificial political boundaries, only which now separate country from country, to be obliterated, (for natural physical boundaries have been nullified by radio and aeroplane), and the barriers to be cast aside which divide nation from nation in head and in heart. Then may the new civilization dawn, dreamt of by the poet and the socialist, and idealised and also practicalized by

 $^{^{1}}$ See the present writer's The Science of Peace or The Science of the Self $\,\cdot\,$

Manu, then may be realized the Parliament of Man and the Federation of the World, the Organization of the whole Human Race in one vast Joint Family and Brotherhood, of which the League of Nations (now converted into the U. N. O. or United Nations Organisation, in 1946) has been the first small step and very feeble, because not quite sincere, not endowed with a soul in the shape of a League of all Religious integrated with it.

Educational institutions ought to take a leading part in the ushering in of this new proclamation of Scientific Religion and of the consequent new era of human history.

Many, if not all, of even the statesmen and the generals who were busiest in promoting and conducting the World Wars have been saying that war is not a glorious business at all, but, besides being horrible, is also something very useless, senseless, mean, sordid, shabby, and shameful, altogether due to the most evil motives. A Field-Marshal of England, one of the prominent figures in the First World War, said in a public speech 1:

"War as a means of settling international disputes is now more universally condemned as a failure than ever before, and every day it becomes more evident that there are really no fereign nations, but that the interests of all are so closely interwoven that if one nation suffers all will suffer to some extent. Undoubtedly, the maintenance of great and costly armaments is not the first essential measure required to prevent war. By far the most important requirement is less Jealousy and less Selfishness in the conduct of international affairs. That spirit is, we may hope, now gradually appearing, and when it is adequately forthcoming, and not till then, disarmament will follow rapidly and easily enough, and the nations will be at last on the road to peace and goodwill."

¹ Sir William Robertson, at Leeds, on 10th Dec., 1930.

¹ Such hopes were shattered by the second World-Wgr., Another soldier, Brig-General F P Crozier. CB, CMG, DSO, trying to imaggurate a movement called The Imperial Peace Crusade, in 1929, wrote "The World is slowly moving towards the desired goal of substitution of methods of Peace for methods of The future prosperity of the World depends on the formation of a World-opinion which will enable people to form a habit of always thinking in terms of Peace instead of in terms of War Having studied the matter very closely, it is my desire to encourage and stimulate this mode of thought Having spent most of my life in War, or preparing for war, I desire to devote the remainder of my life to the service of Peace" General Eisenhower, Supreme Commander of all Allied forces (except Russia's) and Marshal Montgomery. Commander-in-Chief of all British forces, were honored, after the fall of Germany, in May, 1945, by the Soviet. with an Order of Victory Marshal Zhukov pinned the stars to their coats, on behalf of Stalin In their reply

These are the words of a modern war-worn veteran Jeglousy and Selfishness are the important words in his speech Krshna, who had probably more personal experience of war than even a modern Field-Marshal, said long ago that . " Lust, Hate, and Greed form the triple gateway into hell." (Gitā).

to Marshal Zhukov's address, they both said that they would have been much happier if the war had not occurred, and they had not been recipients of war-honors General Douglas MacArthur of the US Army and Supreme Commander of all Allied Operations in the Pacific, after the fall of Japan in August, 1945, addressing the Alised Council for Japan, in Tokyo, on 5 4-1946, said "The Nations' Organisation can survive to achieve its purpose and sims, only if its members abolish war as a sovereign right. Such renunciation must be simultaneous and universal. It must be all or none It must be effected by action, not words alone With development of modern science another war might blast mankind to perdition, but still we hesitate, and in spite of the yawning abyss at our feet, cannot imshackle ourselves from the past." This shows how 'war-hardened' soldiers are no longer 'hardened' They no longer gloat in warsoftened ' but medals and and titles, but are thoroughly sick of it all. especially of the diplomats who persist in keeping the shackles on Miss Muriel Lester, philanthropist worker, of London, visiting India in January, 1939, spoke to press interviewers, in Calcutta, to the effect that "the present calamitous state of the world, when all the Powers are running a mad race in armament, preparing feverishly for a far worse World-War, is due to its ignoring the fact of God . that fact of God is the foundation which kept the world together When it was knocked away, the peoples floundered They recognised nothing, no power greater than themselves, there was

There can be no worse hell than war, and these three open the triple gateway into it. In accord. with the realization of this fact, which is indeed obvious to eyes not blinded by those same evil motives, youth movements were started in many western countries They were intended to bring up the new generation in a purer moral and spiritual atmosphere of internationalist and humanist feeling. in place of nationalism. This 'nationalism,' useful while simply defensive and self-helping, and while duly subordinated to 'humanism,' has degenerated into something very offensive, aggressive, other-harming. Indeed it is now nothing else than vulgar bullyism on a huge scale, inherently barbarous and unregenerate. and provocative of more and more murderous conflicts. It means lust-hate-greed on the nation-wide scale, instead of the small individual scale Because nothing left by which to regulate their lives. They had only themselves to please. They became bored with themselves, afraid of solitude and quietness. Many became obsessed with sex; and self-indulgence made them sick. They turned to any sort of dictatorship, the stricter the better, as a relief from self. There is also the evil of the present economic system. As some western writer has said. "If God did not exist, or belief, sincere belief, in God, i.e., a Spiritual Power, is man's only saviour from mutual destruction. Fortunately Science and Philosophy are combining to show anew to man that God does exist, within him even more than without.

this fact has come home to them, it is being suggested, very rightly, very wisely, by influential persons in that same West, that the tone and the nature of the teaching given in schools and colleges should be changed, that war-glorification and national boasting. self-concert, contempt and decreal of other nations, and expression of triumph over them should all be eliminated from that teaching, that, instead, there should be diligently inculcated the more trulyre fined and civilized spirit of 'humanism,' which began to manifest itself in the higher thought and feeling of the best and wisest persons of all nations, as a reaction against the horror of the senseless butchery of the first World War. Moral disarmament must precede physical disarmament. War can be abolished or reduced only in direct ratio to the abolition or reduction of War-Mentality This is possible only by systematic cultivation of Peace-Mentality and 'Organising for Peace.' 1 That can be done only through diligent Right Education, of youth as well

As regards 'Organising for Peace,' see the present writer's pamphlet, Psychological Principles of Social Re-Construction, The Science of Social Organisation, and Ancient vs Modern Scientific Socialism, (Theos.' Puby House, Adyar, Madras) For a fuller exposition of the inseparable connection between Religion and Social Organisation, see the present writer's World War and Its Only Cure—World Order and World Religion, which may be regarded as a supplement to this work as, the general public. Right Education is the foundation of all well-being, all good.

Educational institutions should not be subservient to political jurgoism. Instead, they should aspire to direct politics into the path of righteousness. The scientist-priest, custodian of Spiritual Power, ought to guide, nay, command, and compel, the ruler-soldier, repository of Temporal Power, into the right use of all civil, military, political power. All such institutions, therefore, should regard it as a sacred duty to help forward, to the best of their ability, this most desirable change of tone and teaching. Here comes the use of well-planned Religious Instruction as the most potent instrument for the Moral Regeneration of mankind. Humanism, internationalism, inter-religionism, go together, are only aspects of each other.

Men, according to their temperaments, may, with their head, their intellect, either admire great military heroes and conquerors of history, or condemn them as predaceous marauders and butchers; probably none will offer the reverence of their heart to them. But there are few who will not offer reverent homage, with their heart, to those truest and greatest educators of mankind, by precept and by example, whom we know as Founders of the great Religious; who have ever reproclaimed the One Eternal Truth of the Unity of all; who have illustrated by their lives, the Beauty and the Goodness of the concomitant Love and Sympathetic Self-sacrifice of human beings for one another.

Genuine Educators, who realize that it is their high spiritual duty to be Missionaries of the Supreme Spirit on this earth, who spend themselves in constant endeavour to uplift their fellowmen to the plane of Righteousness, and help to usher in anew, and maintain, the era of Peace on earth and Goodwill among men; such cannot do better than give to the teaching of the Essentials of Universal Religion, by example as well as by precept, a foremost place in their courses of instruction to the younger generation, and inculcate, in their hearts, the habit of seeking and practising 'In Essentials, in Principles, in great things—Unity; in non-essentials, details, small and superficial things—Liberty, in all things—charity'.'

Viscount H Samuel, President of the British Institute of Philosophy, in his lectures, in the Senate House, Calcutta, on 9-1-1938, and in the University Buildings, Allahabad, on 15-1-1938, said, "Bernard Shaw has declared that Civilisation needs Religion, as a matter of life and death. We all recognise that the mind of man, in our times, is confused. The present generation is beset by anxieties and perils. Our escape, our rescue, from these, depends upon our finding a new Synthesis between Philosophy and Science and Roligion Philosophy, coming out of its phase of classicism, Science coming out of its phase of materialism, Religion freeing itself from its servitude to dogmas that are outworn, may

The dining-hall of the great Feeder supplies edibles suited to all tastes, sweets for those who love sweets, saits for those who like saits, acids for those who want acids. Let all satisfy their tastes, each his own. Why quarrel with another for not jour in constructing a spiritual and intellectual framework for the future . Herel said that ideas had hands and feet There should be some Philosophy which would guide the nations . Conflict of religious could be solved by appeal to Philosophy.... The philosopher could go to the different creeds, one by one, and ask them to Embhasise the Common points and not the differences Philosophy would help to bring the religious together The World Fellowship of Faiths is working in this direction. Its first Conference was held (in Chicago, in 1933, its second) in London, in 1936, then in Oxford in 1937 .. We must Emphasise the Points of Agreement between the Religious, rather than the points of difference... What the world needs today, above all, is a Synthesis of Philosophy, Science, and Religion "

Véd-ānţa, 'Fınal Knowledge', Brahma-vidyē, 'God-Science', Atma-vidyē, 'Self-knowledge', the traditional Ancient Wisdom of India and of all countries, is just such a Synthesis. For a very brief but comprehensive presentation of it in modern terms, the reader may, if he is interested, see the present writer's Science of the Self The present work may also be regarded as such a Synthesis, though indirectly. Its main and direct purpose is to "Emphasise the Points of Agraement between the Religions". Some persons say that 'Morals' should be taught but not Religion; they are blind to the fact that Morals have no stable foundation without belief in a Power which inevitably, soon or late, rewards ment and virtue and punishes vice and sin and crime, in some future life if not in this.

41

having the same taste as mine, when his taste does not interfere with my enjoyment of mine? But we all have to drink water and breathe air in order to dissolve and assimilate our respective special foods. Even so are the Common Essentials necessary for even the due enjoyment of the Separate Non-Basentials

In the minds of some individuals, among some communities, or even perhaps in a The Golden large portion of a whole nation, there Maan Batwaan the Two Brmay be revolt against religion for iremes special reasons The Soviet Government of Russia is said to have set itself to abolish religion from the face of that country But this policy was changed some years ago. It was found that great masses of the people were clinging to their ikons and their churches, and refused to part with them despite grievous persecution The Soviet Government has decided to 'let alone' and 'let be'1

Maisky, Soviet Ambassador, speaking in London, in September, 1941, said "The Soviet Union considers that religion is a private matter for each citizen. Despite what is thought by many, religion in my country is not persecuted, every citizen having the right to believe or not, according to his conscience. Article 124 of the Stalin Constitution (of 1936 7) reads. In order to ensure the citizen's freedom of conscience, the Church in Soviet Russia is separated from the State, and the School from the Church. Freedom of religious working (? worship) and freedom of anti-religious propaganda is recognised.

All this only means that revolt against religion, as commonly understood and practised, may be local and temporary, due to special causes, as reaction against presicraft and abuse, but that permanent eschewal of Religion is impossible for the vast bulk of humanity.

The poet complained that "the world is too much with us night and day." Thoughtful Asiatics have good reason to complain that so-called religion has been interfering with our lives, private and public, far too much. But we also see that law, and science often misapplied by law, are now trespassing excessively upon our daily life and into our very homes, from birth to death, and that almost greater horrors are being perpetrated in names of science, art, and law, than ever were in that of religion.

Especially is so-called 'law' much too much with us, in private as well as public life. There are far too many laws already, and more are being manufactured every day by legislators who feel they must justify their existence thus. Every human being in for all citizens.' In 1940, in Soviet Russia, there were 30,000 (? 300 or 30) independent religious communities of every kind, over 8000 churches, and about 60,000 priests and ministers." Two non-official and one official Good-Will Missions went from India to China in 1951-1952. They have reported that there is complete freedom re religion, but few go to public places of worship, being too busy with economic reconstruction under the new communist regime.

a 'civilized' country to-day (and the more 'civilized' it is, the more is this the case) goes about in constant fear for his pocket and his liberty, through fines and jails, if not also for his life through gallows, as a consequence of a chance infringement of any one of a thousand local, special, general, municipal, sumptuary, social, fiscal, executive, procedural, substantive, civil, criminal, etc., laws, which envelope his life as tentacles of an octopus its victim. And 'public servants', ('servants' forscoth!, 'public masters' and 'monarchs of all they survey', rather!), of a hundred departments of the 'benevolent ' state are ever on the watch to grab a victim, with, and quite as often without, even merest technical cause. Behaviour of 'myrmidons of law' is now much more arrogant and troublesomet han that of 'myrmidons of religion'. A western statistician has calculated that one out of every ten, another that one out of every seven, human beings in a country like England, passes through the clutches of one penal law or another, and pays a fine or serves a term in jail. Surely this cannot be a mark of health in a civilization. Too much religion kills God, the God in Man; enslaves him to fear-pervaded trembling superstition, instead of bringing him Freedom from all fear. Too much law kills peace of mind and body, enslaves man to bureaucraft and experteralt, instead of giving him ordered liberty.

All this only means that excess of even a good thing is bad. Indeed, Rxcess is the one Sin of sins, and Moderation, following of the Middle Course, the one Virtue of virtues, in all concerns of life. The way that Buddha taught is expressly known as Majhima Pati-padd, (Skt. madhyama paripäti) the Middle Path. One of the schools of philosophy that arose later, among his followers, is known as Mādhyamika, the 'Middle Way School'. One of the treatises of his contemporary, Confucius, is entitled, The Doctrine of the Mean, (actual compilation of which is ascribed by tradition to his grandson, Kung Kei). A Samskit proverb says

Ashrayén madhyamām vṛttim, atı sarvatra varjayét,

(Follow the middle course; avoid extremes.)

Krishna expounds it thus

N-āty-ashnatas tu yog-osti, na cha-ékāntam anashnatah.

Na ch-āti-svapna-shīlasya, jāgrato n-āti cha, Ariuna!

Yukt-āhāra-vihārasya, yukta-chéshtasya sarvadā, Yukta-svapn-āva-bodhasya, yogo bhavati duhkhahā. (G.)²

Lin Yutang, in his book, My Country and My People, calls him Chung Yung

^{*}Charaka and Sushruta, best known and most studied works of Skt. Ayur-Véda (Medicine) devote special

(He who avoids extremes, in feed and fast, In sleep and waking, and in work and play, He winneth yoga, balance, peace, and jov.) Tesmād vidvān bhavati n-sti-vācī. (U.) Aţi-vēdāńs-ţiţikshėţa. (N.)

> (The wise man ever studiously avoids Extremes in speech and act. himself: and when Others press to extremes in beated speech. He passes by, in quiet, answering not.)

Lco-tze savs:

"Continuing to fill a pail after it is full, the water will be wasted. Continuing to grind an exe after it is sharp, will wear it away. Excess of light blinds the eve. Excess of sound desfens the ear. Excess of condiments decidens the taste. He who possesses moderation is lasting and enduring. Too much is always a curse, most of all in wealth." (T., Tao Tek King.)

Confucius savs:

"Commit no excess; do nothing injurious; there are few who will not then take you for their pattern. ... The will should not be gratified to the full: pleasures should not be carried to excess." (C. Shi Kirg; Li-ki.)

chapters to the injunction: 'Est ressured quantities'. ratific astrophym, est within suict limits. The Person phrase is takafur-i-hudad, observance, maintaines, of limits".

Muhammad has said

Khair-ul-umūré ausātohā (H)

(Only those acts are good and safe to do, The golden mean which studiously pursue).

Bible says

"Be not righteous over much; neither make thyself over wise. . . . Be not over much wicked; neither be thou foolish." (B., Eccles.)

"Give me neither poverty nor riches; feed me with food sufficient for my wants; lest I be full and deny Thee, and say, who is Jahveh?; or be poor, and steal, and profese the name of my God." (B., Proverbs.)

A Latin proverb says: Summum jus, summa injuria, 'excessive justice is excessive injury'. Other proverbs like 'Extremes meet,' 'Pride goeth before a fall', 'Too much wit outwits itself,' illustrate the same fact. Another Latin maxim is: In medio vertics, 'Truth is in the middle'

Shintoism embodies the same principles:

"It has ever insisted on ma-gokoro, by which it means freedom from inordinate passions. . All appetites are natural hence divine gifts; and the temperate enjoyment of them is a divine power. If man oversteps the limits of moderation, he pollutes his body and mind. To be godlike is to be natural; to be natural is to follow Nature . . .

(1 e, to keep) within the limits set by instinct and reason. This is the fundamental conception of Due Measure" (Sh., Inazo Nitobe, Japan, 321, 322).

As the teaching of Buddha is known as Majjhima Patipada, so the Jaina way, taught, by Mahāvīra Jina, is known as An-ék-anta-vada, the Doctrine and the Way of Non-Extremism.

Ekén-ākarshantī, shlathayantī vastu-tativam itaréna Anténa, jayati Jainī nītir, manthāna-nétram iva gopī (AMRŢA CHANDRA SÜRI), (E'en as the dairy-maid, pulling and slacking The two ends of the churning-string by turns, Churns out the golden butter from the milk, E'en so the sage, working alternately At both the two inevitable sides

Of every question, finds the perfect Truth.)

Muhammad enjoins the same

Lā ta'tadu ınn-Allāhā lā yohibbul ma'tadin. (Q) (God loves not those who go beyond due bounds)

"Courage is the mean between cowardice and rashness, discriminate liberality, bet. stinginess and extravagance, ambition, bet sloth and greed, modesty, bet humility and pride; honest speech, bet. secrecy and loquacity, good humour bet, moroseness and buffoonery, friendship, bet quarrelsomeness and flattery; self-control, bet indecision and impulsiveness." these thoughts are ascribed to Aristotle by Will Durant in his The Story of Philosophy, p. 86 (pub. 1938). Durant adds, on pp. 87-88:"

... This doctrine of the mean . . appears in almost every system of Greek philosophy. Plato (speaks of it as) harmonious action. . . . The Seven Wise Men had the motto, meden agen, 'nothing in excess', engraved on the temple of Apollo at Delphi."

A Greek philosopher has said: "Strive to acquire proper balance—courage without rashness, caution without timidity; mercy without weakness; justice without vindictiveness, silence without deceit; shrewdness without cunning, courtesy without fawning; firmness without obstinacy; deliberation without dilatoriness; patience without carelessness; friendship without favoritism, ambition without selfishness."

Maha-bharaia, Shanti-parva, ch. 70, says: "Be religious, not bigoted; virtuous, not self-righteous; devout, not fanatical; gather wealth, not cruelly; enjoy, without elation, speak gently, not insincerely; be brave, without boasting, be generous, not wasteful; give, not indiscriminately; speak boldly, not harshly; make friends, not with the ignoble; fight, not with friends, seek information, not from the unreliable; serve your interest, without hurting others; ask advice, not from the unwise; praise virtues, not your own; trust, but not the evil;

punish, not thoughtlessly, love and guard the spouse, without jealousy, be refined, but not supercilious; feed delicately, not unwholesomely; enjoy conjugal pleasure, not over-much; honor the worthy, not proudly; serve, without deceit; propitiate, without fawning; be clever, not out of season; be angry, not, without strong cause, be gentle, not to the mischievous; worship Deity, without display."

Every question has two inevitable sides. Wisdom consists in reconciling the two, by just compromise between them, in accord with the requirements of time-place-circumstance.

Duality of There are these two sides to every question, because

Sarvam dvam-dva-mayam jagat. S'arvānī cha dvam-dvānī (U.)

Dvam-dvair-ayojayat ch-émāh Sukha-duhkh-ādibhih prajāh. (M)

(The world is made of pairs of opposites; All things occur in pairs of two and two; The Maker fused Duality in all, Sorrow and Joy foremost of all these pairs)

Khalaqna min kulle shayin zaujain. (Q.)
(I, the Supreme and Universal Self,
Have made all things in pairs of spouse and spouse).

Male and female created He them. (B.)

Ishq-bāzī mī kunad bā khwésh-tan;

Shud bahānah dar-miyané mard o zan (S.)

(To play at Love the better with Him-Self He put on separate masks of man and wife)

Sa Ékākī n-āramata, Sa Ātmānam dvédhā apātayat,

Patish cha Patni ch-ābhavat, āpayato vai ṭāvanyo-nyasya kāmān sarvān. (U.)

(Lonely He felt, and all unsatisfied; So into Two He did divide Him-Self, To have a Play-mate; Man and Wife He was; All wishes of each other they fulfil.)

Chitta-nadī nāma ubhayato vāhinī; vahati kalyānāya, vahati cha pāpāya (Yoga-Sāṭra-Bhāshya, 1-12).

(The mind-stream in two rival currents flows, Heading to virtue and to vice it goes).

Bahr-e-talkh o bahr-e-shīrīn ham-enān, Darmıyān 'shān barzakh-é lā-yubghıyān, (S.) Qāyaman bil qıst (H.)

(Oceans of Sweet and Bitter surge abreast; Between them rests the razor-line of Rest. The Being of Godhead rests a-midst the Pairs, Maintaining balance betwirt Joys and Cares.) Yathā shīt-oshnayor madhyé n-aiv-aushnyam na cha shītatā, Tathā sthitam padam shānṭam, madhyé vai sukha-duhkhayoh. (Mbh.)

(There is a middle point, nor hot nor cold, On the two sides of which spread cold and heat; So, of the Middle point, where there is Peace, On the two sides, surge seas of Pain and Joy.)

Dvau éve chintayā muktau, param-ānandé āplutau, Yo vi-mudho jado bālo, yo gunébhyah param gaṭah.

(Two are the 'free from care' and steeped in bliss—The child with mind ungrown, and also he Who goes beyond the threefold attributes Of Nature and beholds the God of Nature, While in between the two, the staging Soul, Struggles with joys and sorrows, pleasures-pains.)

Ichchhā-dvésha-samutthéna dvam-dva-mohéna, Bhārata!, Sarva-bhūtāni sam-moham sargé yāntı, paran-tapa!, Yéshām tu anta-gatam pāpam, janānām punya-karmanām, Ţé dvam-dva-moha-nır-muktāh bhajanté Mām drdha-vraṭāh. Nır-māna-mohāh, jija-sanga-doshāh, aḍhy-ātma-nityāh, vini-vrtta-kāmāh, Dvam-dvair-vimukţāh sukha-ḍuhkha-sañjñaih Gachchhanti amūdhāh padam Avyayam Țat. (G.)

(They only who love Me with steadfast mind Can cross this glamour of Duality, And they who rise above this Dualness They only know Me as the One Sole Truth. Crossing beyond this ever-battling Pair Of Joy and Sorrow, mind now Proud now Low, Elation and Depression, they attain The state of Peace that knows not any change.)

Nir-dvam-dvah nitya-sattva-sthab
nir-yoga-kshémah Ātma-vān, Jūéyah sa nitya-sannyāsī
yah na dvéshti na kānkshati;
Nir-dvam-dvah hi, mahā-bāho', sukham bandhāt pra-muchyaté Samah siddhau a-siddhau cha, dvam-dvā-tītah vi-matsarah,
Yad-rehchhā-lābha-san-tushtah,
krtv-āpi na ni-badhyaté. (G.)

(Who is content with what lot brings to him, Who is not envious, who has passed the Pairs, Who in success and failure stands the same, His acts, being only duties, bind him not. Renunciation endless is his, who Neither desireth aught nor hateth aught. He who flings off the ever-wrestling Twins, With ease he breaketh all his bonds of soul. The Duads that take birth with Love-and-Hate-Intoxicate with these, all beings rush Into the whirlings of this wheeling world. They who with Virtues balance up their Vice. They leave them Both behind, and pass beyond Into the restful realm of deathless Peace. They who have cast aside all Pride and Fear. Conquered lusts of the flesh, its Loves and Hates. And tied their hearts to Me, the Self of All, They thrust aside the glamorous warring Pairs, Whose primal name and form is Pleasure-Pain; They come to Me. the Universal-Self. And enter into My eternal Peace)

To realise in mind, that the very nature of World-Process, of all life, of separate individuality, is necessarily, inevitably, a mixture of joy and sorrow, good and evil, that we cannot have gains without pains, nor pains without gains, so long as we feel identified with separate bodies; thus realising, to experience and bear both joys and sorrows with 'equable' mind, with 'peace' at heart, and to go on discharging duties without craving for selfish recompense; this is to transcend Duality, 'to fling off all

Twins,' and the threefold g u n a-s, functions of mind, cognition, desire, action, in which primal Duality is inherent, and which, in turn, are inherent in Duality.

Yasmın vı-ruddha-gatayo hı-anısbam patantı
Vıdyā-(ā)dayo vı-vıdha-shaktayah ānu-pūrvyā,
... Ţasmaı sam-un-naddha-vı-ruddha-shaktayé
Namah Parasmaı Purushāya Védhasé. (Bḥ)
(In whom opposéd Forces ever swirl
Against each other, whirling the whole world Unceasingly. Him we adore in heart.)

Prakṛtih ubhaya-koti-sparshīnī,
Purushah madhyasthah. (Bhāva-Prakāsha).
(Nature doth ever swing between Extremes, Holding the Balance, stands midway, Her God.)

An English poet has caught the idea well:
Joy and woe are woven fine,
A clothing for the soul divine;
Under every grief and pine
Runs a joy with silken twine,
It is right it should be so;
Man was made for joy and woe;
And when this we rightly know,
Safely through the world we go.

(WILLIAM BLAKE) 1

Greece) vis — Nothing too much and Know thyself' —were complementary. If you have too much of

Zarathustra says

At tā maīnvū po-uruvé Yā vémā khafenā asravātém manahi chā vachahi chā shya-othano-i. Hī' vahyo-akém cha, āos chā hudā-onghaho. Érésh vīshyātā no it duzhadā-ongho.

At chā hyat tā hém maīnyū jasa-étém paurvīm dazde ga-em chaajvā-ītīm chā. Yatha chā anghat apémém anghush achishto drégvatām at ashā-tiné vahishtém mano

Hamém tat vahishtā-chīt vé ūshurayé syas-chīt dah-mahyā, kshayāns, Mazhadā Ahurā I, yéhyā mā š-ithīsh chīt dva-éthā: hyatā a-énanghé drégvato é-é-ānū Ishyéng anghahyā (Z., Gāthā, 30. 3, 4; 32, 16),1 anything, you cannot know yourself . . . The moral equipoise-the Golden Mean-is the attainment of godhead. Freedom and restraint, the 'Dos' and the Don't-s' in the moral world, act like the centripetal and centrifugal forces in the physical, to keep a balance " Inazo Nitobe, Ibid.

Samskrt form of these, m prose order is:

Atha yau paurvyau [purānau] manyū yamau svaphanau [sva-fantrau ıva] ashruyétām tau manası cha vachası cha syothané [sadhané karmanı] cha [stah], Tau vahiyas [variyas, punyam] cha, agham [pāpam] cha. Anayoh su dhāh [su-dhib] reh_[rtam, sat, satyam] vikshati, no it dur-dhah [dur-dhih]

Atha cha yadā tau manytī paurvīm samajasétām (samasajatām or sam-ajasatam, tadā) gayam cha ajyātim cha (? cf. rayım cha prānam cha, vāk cha prānah cha) dadhé (dadhaté). Yathā (yadā) cha ason apamam

(These two Primordial Principles in One. Of Light and Darkness, Good and Ill, that seem Apart from one another, yet are bound Inseparably together, each to each-In Thought, in Word, in Action, everywhere Are they in operation; and the wise . Walk on the side of Light, while the unwise Follow the other until they grow wise These ancient Two, in mutual wrestle-play Give birth to Twin-Desires, high and low. That shape as Hate-Mentality in some, In others as the Better Mind of Love. O Mighty Lord of Wisdom, Mazada!, Supreme, Infinite, Universal Mind I. Ahūrā !, thou that givest Life to all !. ' Grant me the power to control this mind, This Lower Mind of mine, this egoism, And put an end to all Duality, (?asu-bhṛṭsu, jivéshu, upaṇṭām, ṭaḍā tau) ḍrug-vaṭām. (ḍhrug-vaṭām, droha-vaṭām) achistam (anishtam), ashāvatī (ashā-vaṭām, ? shubhāshā-vatām, usha-vaṭām, jyoṭish-mabām) vahistam (vaishtham, varishthām) manah āsat (āsṭām).

Hé Kshayan Ahura Mazda!, (? A.kshaya, asūn prānān rāti dadāṭi iţī Asurah, Mahat, Buḍdhi-tatṭvam, Bṛhaṭ, ṭam Mahānṭam daḍhāṭi, lṭi Mahā-ḍhāh) samam ṭaṭ chit (syāṭ) Vahistam, yat avasya ḍambhasya (aham-kārasya) Ishvarah chit (syam), yaṭ-a mé dvaṇṭaya aṭih (ṭṭih, anṭah, syāṭ), yaṭ énasā drug-vanṭah (aṇ) asunā (prāṇéna, hṛdayéna) evam éva ishyanti (ichchhanti).

And gain the reign of One—as is desired Unconsciously, by e'en the graceless ones. The evil sinners, in their heart of hearts)'

The fact of this all-permeating Duality is signified pre-eminently by the very Names, in opposed Pairs, given to God in Islam as well as Vaidika Dharma. He is Al-Awwal and Al-Akhir. Adı and Anta. First and Last, Alpha and Omega, Al-Batin and Az-Zābir, Avyakta and Vyakta, Inner and Outer, Unmanifest and Manifest, the Universal Un-Conscious. Sub-Conscious, Supra-Conscious, and the Individual and Particular Conscious, seed of tree and tree of seed; Al-Bādī and Al-Jāmī, Srashtā and Samhartā, Spreader-out and Gatherer-in, Al-Muhiyy and Al-Mumit, Bhaya and Hara, Giver of Life and Giver of Death: Al-Samad and Al-Muhammu. A-Kama and Sarva-kāma, the Ever-Perfect and Desireless and

All Gatha texts have been taken from the very painstaking and illuminative edition of Gathas, with Samskit, English, Guirāti translations and notes, by J. M Chatterjee and A. N. Bilimoriva . (Cherge Office. Navasari: pub 1932)

Words within square brackets, in the Samskit version above, have been added by the present writer, as suggestions, the English translation is a free version of that by J. M. Chattern, but care has been taken to preserve the sense correctly.

Creator and Satisfier of all Desires; Al-Muzil and Al-Hādī, Māyī and Tāraka, Mis-Leader, Mis-Di-Rector, Tempter, Degrader, Tester, and also Guide, Leader, Teacher, Rector, True-Di-Rector, Cor-Rector; Al-Qahhār and Ar-Razzāq, Rudra and Shiva, Angry Overwhelmer and Auspicious Nourisher; Al-Ghazzāb and Al-Ghaffār, Yama and Kshamā-vān, Punisher and Forgiver; Al-Jabbar and Al-Karīm, Ghora and Dayālu, Severe or Dire and Compassionate, Al-Jalīl and Al-Jamīl, Shāstā, Prabhu, Ishvara, and Madhu, Maḍhura, Sundara, Kānta, the Lord, Ordainer, Sovereign, Awesome, Terrible, and the Beautiful, the Beloved, the Friend of All.

The vibhūtis, glories, gunas, attributes, sifti, of the Supreme are all in pairs of opposites, classifiable under the two main categories of aishvarya and mādhurya, jalālī and jamālī, lordliness and sweetness, awesomeness and beauty, majesty and mercy, sovereignty and parentality, Saura-téjah and Saumya-dīpţi, Chāndramasa-jyōtih, Sunlike blaze and splendour and Moon-like softness and

The late Sir Ahmad Husain, Amin Jung, MA, LLD, KC.SI, (of Hyderabad Dn) suggested the following renderings Al-Muhiyy, the Supreme Maker (Brahmē), Al-Muhaimin, the Supreme Mender (Vishņu), Al Mumīt, the Supreme Ender (Rudra), Al-Samad, the One Eternal Becoming (Sanāṭana or Shāshvaṭa).

radiance; kalyana-guna-s and bhīma-guna-s, beneficent and terrific (punitive) attributes.¹

In the Jewish Kabala (Qabbālah), the attributes of the Supreme Being, which correspond to types or aspects or kinds of creation, are called the ten Sephiroth.emanations of Adam Kadmon (Adam-1-Qadim), the Ancient Man, the Eternal and Infinite Macrocosm The ten are Crown, Wisdom, Prudence, Magnificence, Severity. Beauty, Victory, Glory, Foundation, Empire Wisdom 18 called Jeh or Jah; Prudence, Jehovah, Severity, Elohim, Magnificence, El, Victory and Glory, Sabaoth; Empire or Dominion, Adonai Other names and aspects are mentioned, as, Sephira, the Androgyne (Ardhanāri-Ishvara, m Skt), Hakama, Wisdom, Bīnah, Intelligence, Hesed, Mercy, Geburah or Eloha, Justice Tiphereth, Beauty, Netzah, Firmness, Hod, Splendor, Jesod, Foundation Hakama, Hesed, Netzah are the three male Sephiroth, known as the Pillar of Mercy, Binah, Geburah, Hod, are femmine, and named the Pillar of Judgment, the four Sephiroth of the Centre, Kether, Tiphereth, Jesod, and Malkuth, are called the Middle Pillar. (H. P Blavatsky, Isis Unveiled, 11, 205, 213, 215)

From Zoroasiran scriptures, especially Ahura Mazada Yashi the learned have made up lists of twenty, fifty-three, eighty-one, and one hundred and one, names of Ahura Mazada, which is the most famous name, as Aliah is the most famous of the hundred names of God given in Qurān. Some of the more eminent names are Frakshiya, the Sustainer (cf. Védic Su-pṛksh), Avijanya, Ali-pervading, (V Abhi tanya), Vispa-vohu (Visha), Ali Good, Asha-vahishia, Supreme Truth Khratu, Supreme Knowledge, (V Kratu, Persian Khirad, Chishii, Supreme Wisdom or Consciousness, (V Chit), Spāna, Supreme Holmess, Sevishia, Almighty, Avanémna, Invincible, Vispa-hishas, All-seeing, Pāta, Creator, (Skt., Phātā), Thrātā, Preserver, (Ţrātā), Confucius says.

"Yang and Yin, male and female, strong and weak, rigid and tender, heaven and earth, sun and moon, thunder and lightning, wind and rain, cold and warmth, good and evil, high and low, righteousness and humaneness, . . . the interplay of Opposite

Dūrae-darshtē, (Dūra-drashtē), Far-seeing, Spashtā, Watcher, Pāṭā, Saviour, Znētē, (Jñēṭā), All-knowing; Isé-Kshaṭhroyoṭéma, Omnipotent Ruler, Vispo-van, Conqueror of All Vispa-ṭash, Architect of the Universe, Ahurā, Lord of Life, (V Asu rah), Mazadā, Lord of the Great Creation, Lord of Ideation and Wisdom (V. Mahaṭ-dhā), and so on These Zoroastrian names, corresponding Skt words and Eng explanations, have been kindly supplied by Dr. I J S. Taraporevala, Principal of the M F. Cama Aṭborvan Institute, Andhén (near Bombay), now retired and living in Bombay

Other epithets for the Mystery, that are to be found in the old books are, Le-Shariki-lah, A-Dvihyah, Without-Another, Lā middi-lah, A-Samah, the Without-Equal, La-Misli-lah, A-Sadrshah, the Incomparable; Le-Ziddi-lah, A-Praţi-dvam-dvah, A Sapaţmah, An-Anyah, A-Praţi-pakshah, Without-Opponent, Al-Ghani, Aţma-Trpţah, A-Sahāyah, Self-sufficing, Self-complete, Unsupported, Non-dependent; Al-Hayy, Chin-mayah, All-Consciousness; Al-Qayyūm, Niţyah, Shāshvaṭah, All-Consciousness; Al-Qayyūm, Niţyah, Shāshvaṭah, Ever-lasting, Al-Kul, Sarvah, All, Chaiţanyam, Pure Awareness, Praṇah, Life in and of All, Shuḍḍhah, Khālis, Pure, Al-Ahd, Ekah, the One

All these names, that have been given to the Supreme Spirit, the Mystery which runs the Universe, by the various scriptures, are mentioned here to draw attention to the identity of thought of all religions, as to the attributes of that Mystery, the Eternal, Infinite, Universal Principle of all Life and Consciousness, give it what Principles constitutes the universe" 1 "The final principle of an undivided One is Tai Chi, the great ridge-beam, out of it develop Yang and Yin".

"R1 is reason, or law, K1 is matter; the two give rise to all phenomena, physical and spiritual... There are two phases of K1—Y1n and Y0 (Chinese Yang). The latter light, is positive, active, male, the former dark, negative, passive, female All phenomena owe their origin to the action, reaction, interaction, and counter-action of these forces... Sometimes Y1n is spoken of as water, Y0 as fire; "2 in Skt., agn ī-sh om īyam jagat, "the world is made of fire and water, heat and moisture."

name we may Indeed, all names, in every language and every religion are His

Yār-é mārā har Zamān nām o nishāné digar ast Kulle yaumin hūfi-éshān yak nishāné digar ast (S.)
(In new and splendid state He shines forth every day, Bearing new names and forms Seeming opposed, yet One), Navo navo bhavati jāyamānah ahnām kétuh (V)
(Ever a-New doth rise the Flag of day)

¹ Suzuki, History of Chinese Philosophy, 15, 16, (pub: 1914)

Wilhelm and Jung, The Searst of the Golden Flower, a Chinese Book of Life (1931), 12, 13.

³ Inazo Nitobe, Ibid., 345.

Laotze says:

"Tao is divided into a principal Pair of Opposites, Yang and Yin Yang is warmth, light, masculinity; also heaven Yin is cold, darkness, femininity; also earth From the Yang force arises Schen, the celestial portion of the human soul; from the Yin force arises Kwes or Poh, the earthly part.
As a micro-cosm, man is in some degree a reconciler of the Pairs of Opposites. Heaven, Earth, Man" (God-Nature-Man, Ishvara-Jada-Jīva)" form the three chief elements of the world, the Sa-isas "1 (Samsāra, World-Process).

The Greek philosopher Empedocles (circa 440 B.C.), "extolled by antiquity as also orator, statesman, physicist, physician and poet, even as prophet and worker of miracles", expressly enounces Love

¹C G. Jung, Psychological Types, 267, quotes this from Lac-tse's Tac-teh-king He also quotes Goethe's Paust, to illustrate the familiar idea of man's dual nature, his two selves, higher and lower, altrust and egoist

Two souls, alas!, within my bosom dwell; The one doth hanker after love's delights, And clings with clutching organs to the world. The other, mightly, from earthly dust Would mount on high to the ancestral fields

Many other Eastern and Western poets have expressed the idea more powerfully Upanishads speak of dvasuparna..., 'two birds dwelling in this tree of life,' the human body.

and Hate as the two ultimate dynamic uniting and separating principles ¹

Another, earlier, Heraclitus (circa 500 B.C.) says:

"God is Day-Night, Winter-Summer, Love-Hate,
War-Peace, Repletion-Want, Heat-Cold, Death-Life,
Youth-Age, Waking-Sleep, Creation-Destruction"

Har kamālé rā zawālé, har zawālé rā kamālé.
(Persian proverb).

(Every virtue has its vice, Every vice its virtue, too).

Subūt-1-shay ba zidd-1-shay (Persian philosophical maxim).

(Each thing is proven by its opposite.)

Omnis determinatio est negatio

(All determination is negation of the opposite.)

Sarv-ārambhā hi doshéna
dhūména-agnir-īv-āvṛṭāh. (G.)

N-āty-anṭam guna-vaṭ kin-chit, n-āṭy-anṭam dosha-vaṭ tathā (Mbh.)

(As fire doth carry smoke within itself, So every action carries a defect; Naught is there wholly good or wholly bad.)

¹ Schwegler, History of Philosophy, (translated by J. H. Stirling), art. ¹ Empedocles ¹

Life is a perpetual choice between endless pairs of 'rival ills' Right choice, which will, in any given time, place, and circumstance, bring most happiness and least pain, which will reconcile antagonisms, is the choice inspired by the Spirit which stands permanently in the Middle between the two extremes of Nature, which impartially 'tastes and tests all things, and holds fast that which is good,' most good, vis, It-Self, which always avoids excess, excessive attachments, by loves or by hates, to the objects of the senses, things other than Universal Self. Such seems to be the teaching of all religions and all sciences.

Religion is as necessary as Science. As said

Insuperable before, so long as human beings
Reed for Scient suffer from, and fear, pain and death, and look before and after, and think about such things, so long will human heart and head demand, and will not be denied, the solace that only religion can give When anguish wrings the heart, then we overwhelmingly realize that it

If the reader cares to pursue the question—Why and How Duality, Trimity, etc., arise within the One; Multiplicity in Unity, Change within the Changeless, he may took into the present writer's The Science of Peace, or, for briefer statement, into the second and third chapters of The Science of the Self. Endeavour is made there to expound ancient teachings, on the subject, in terms of modern western philosophy and psychology, as far as possible.

shall not profit a man anything if he gain the whole world but lose his own soul. If they are not given true and scientific religion by the philanthropic and the wise, then men will inevitably swallow false and superstitious religion given to them by priestcraft.

Only those who cannot 'look before and after'. who cannot think at all about such things, as animals. such have no craving for religion. Also those who have thought very deeply and very far; examined all the before and all the after; seen all there is to see: found the Eternal Now and the Infinite Here, the Ever-present and the Omnipresent, between the Before and the After: found the secret in their own Infinite Self-thev also no longer crave religion. They have achieved the purpose of Religion Perfection of Religion alone can abolish need for it. At the present stage of human evolution, such perfected souls are not many. The vast mass of mankind feel that need acutely. intensely, perpetually. That is why Religion survives. If it decays and dies in one form, it forthwith takes a new birth in another.

> Yas-tu müdha-tamo loké, yash-cha buddheh param gatah, Dvau imau sukham édhété, klishyati-antarito janah,

(He who is wholly dull, without a mind;
He who has gone beyond the reach of mind,
And found that which gives being to the mind,
And is established in the Mid 'twixt Pairs,
These two are well, those restless, 'tween, are ill.)

As a western writer has observed, "mankind has one innate, irrepressible, craving, that must be satisfied... yearning after proof of immortality."

The end of Religion is to transcend Religion.

When the end has been found, means are dropped:

Nis-trai-gunyé pathi vicharato ko vidhih ko nishédhab. (SHANKAR-ICHIRYA).

(The soul which finds the path that goes beyond The 'three' that bind, knowledge-desire-and-act, It hath no further need for 'Do-s' and 'Don't-s'.)

Rab ras Rab shud, tamām Rab rā Rab nīst; Har jā Khurshéd ast, ān-jā shab nīst Sūfī shud nīst, nīst rā mazhab nīst; Bā Yār rasīdah dīgar matlab nīst. (S)

(Who findeth God becometh wholly God; And unto God there is no other God. Where the Sun shines, can there be any night? The 'knower' is non-est, his lower self, Of low desires, has been effected now; To such 'non-est', Religion is 'non-est.'

e. u. a. r] science & religion reconcilable 67

He who hath found the Loved One, hath no more Craving or need for any Object left.)

If it be true, as it obviously is true, that the human heart has an meradicable conviction that there is Something beyond this life, and yearns to know about It and Its relation with this life; if it be true. as it evidently is true, that science is for life, and not life for science; then surely man cannot and will not accept as final, the view that any possible conflict between Science and Religion is incurable. Such a view means that Truth is self-contradictory. that Science is not consistent in all its parts. But this cannot be It must not be Truth, Science, Véda, Haqiqat, Mā'rıfat, Gnosis, J ñ ä n a. (all meaning the same thing), must be all-inclusive, all-explaining, all-reconciling. Otherwise, it is not Truth. This common conviction shows forth from behind the most hostile-seeming words

The man of modern style piques himself on eating, drinking, bathing, sleeping, dressing, housing, travelling, doing all things, in short, in the name of Science and Law. The man of older style has been trying to do all these same things in the name of God and Religion. Yet the two modes are not antagonistic, not even really different. 'In the name of God's means, among other things, 'In the name of God's Nature'; and, therefore, of the Laws of that Nature in all its departments, physical as well as superphysical or psychical; whereas ' in the name of science and law ' means, at present, 'in the name of the laws of only the physical department of Nature as recognised and utilised in man-made laws'. Science, in the limited sense of physical science, is imperfect religion, is one part of religion. Religion, in the full sense, is larger science, is the Whole of Science. We owe debts and duties not only to our own and our fellow-creatures' physical bodies, but also to the 'souls', the 'superphysical bodies'. The rules of Religion, i.e., of the Larger Science, enable us, at least ought to enable us, to discharge all these wider debts and duties. They should also secure to us. all sinless joys which are rightly due to us.

Yato Abhy-udaya-Nis-shréyasa-siddhih, sah Dharmah. (Vaishéshika Sutra).

(Religion, Dharma, is that which brings Joy, In the Life Here, and the Hereafter, too.)

Religion has been described as 'the Command or Revelation of God'. This only means, in other words, 'the Laws of God's Nature,' as revealed to us by the labours, intellectual, intuitional, inspirational, of the seers and scientists of all religions and all nations. The obeying of these should obviously bring happiness in this life as well as the life beyond this life.

We have heard of the three R's long enough.

Universal Religion-Science— That in which there may be Universal Agresment. This fourth R', of genuine Universal Religion, is more important than them all, and ought to be added to them everywhere, in every school and college. But it has to be carefully discovered and ascertained first. It behoves all sincere educators to help in this work, by applying the scientific method of ascertaining agreements amidst differences.' What are the elements common to the great living religions? What are the agreements between them?

We may also call that method, in terms of the democracy in vogue at present, the method of majority-rule. Those truths which all the great living religious vote for—they should be prominently taught to the younger generation.

Some people, bewildered by the rival bigotries,

Imperative Daty to Teach such Universal Religion. fanatic cries, and bitter hostilities, indulged in by misguided persons, in the name of religion, ask: What right have we to impose upon our crief there are by religions as greater children, such evil things, such religions as create enmity between man and man, darken and make foblish the minds, and blind the eyes, of all? If religion were dispensable, the question might be answered readily in the negative. We have no right. But it is not dispensable, as indicated before have therefore to answer the question by saying that we have as much right, nay, as much imperative duty, to teach religion, as we have to teach arith-· metic, geography, history, science. Nay, more right and duty: for these other things, however desirable, however useful, are not so indispensable for comfort of soul. We teach these other things to our children for their good, out of our love for them. And we try to teach what we have ascertained, by our best lights, to be good and true and useful for them we make mistakes, it is because we are human and liable to err. Because food now and then disagrees, we cannot stop all eating. We must make only greater efforts to ensure its healthiness of quality and: quantity. So in Religion we must make the greatest efforts to ascertain what is most indubitable, most in accord with the best science, and, more than all else, is most approved and agreed in by all concerned. and most likely to promote good-will and active sympathy between all human beings. This is the very and only way to allay those dazing and amazing cries and bigofries and hostilities

Let us examine the matter in another fashion. It is indisputable that the vast majority of human beings are born into their religions, inherit them, and cling to them exactly in the same way and for the same reasons as they do to inherited property. If a new-born Muslim child and a new-born Hindu child were exchanged and brought up, the one in Hindu, the other in Muslim, surroundings, they would grow up and feel and think and behave as Hindu and as Muslim respectively, and not as Muslim and Hindu. The same would be the case if the landholder's baby were exchanged with a banker's or a peasant's. At the same time, it is equally indisputable that anyone and everyone can withdraw his faith from any religion and put it in any other, whenever be likes, can put off one and put on another at will. Yet also, the vast majority of human beings crave, indeed everyone in the secret depths of his heart somewhere yearns, for religion in its deepest sense—of contact with, assurance of, support by, refuge and rest in, the Immortal, All this clearly signifies that Religion is necessary to man; that no bartsoular form of religion is indispensable; that there are two alternatives open to us, either to reject all religions or to accept all religions; that both are impracticable; and that, therefore, the only practical, as also best, most satisfying, and wise course, is the third alternative, to sift out the elements of Essential Religion from the non-essential (though, for their time, place, and circumstances, useful) forms, of all the great religions extant, and feed the younger generation with those vital grains, instructing them that the husks are useful only for preserving and storing the grains in, and not for eating and assimilating.

Some others hold that the work that Religion did, or was supposed to do, in the past, and did badly, if at all, has been taken up and is now being done by Philosophy, Science, Law, and also Art, in three or four separate departments of life; and, therefore, no Religion, old, reformed, or new, is needed any longer. The reply to this is that man is not a trinity only, in three separate parts, but is essentially a Unity; something is needed to co-ordinate, to unify, to organise, to articulate with each other, Philosophy, Science, Law. That is Religion 're' and 'legers', to bind together anew, again, the hearts of all, to each other, and back again to God, from Whom the temptations of earth cause those hearts to stray away. Védanta-Tasawwuf-Gnosis is all three; it is a Religion which includes the essentials of Philosophy, Science, Art, or, if we prefer it so, it is a Philosophy which synthesises Religion, Science. Art. We should call to mind again, here, that the latest speculation of the most renowned scientists tends to reduce all matter to atoms and super-atoms, param-āņus, electrons, protons, neutrons, plutons, positrons, etc.; these to electrical energy; that, finally, to Mind-force; (pp 22-30 supra).

The most passionate advocate of the utmost possible 'liberty' for the younger generation, who urges that it should be allowed to grow up according to its own 'free-will', its own inner promptings, inclinations, likes and dislikes, still unavoidably, helplessly, actively teaches something to the young; and that something is necessarily what he thinks best and most useful for them to learn! Bolshevik Communists of Russia are teaching 'Communism' to their young, most intensively; Fascists of Italy, 'Fascism'; Democratists of Britain, U.S.A. France, 'Democratism'. Each, in words, professes 'liberty' for youth, but largely relies for its success, on imbuing youth with its own ideas! The element of truth, in the plea that 'the younger generation

Sa Brahma-Vıdyām sarva-vıdyā-prafishthām Atharvāya jyéshtha-puṭrāya prāha (Up) (Brahmā declared unto his son Aṭharva, The Science of the Self, the Infinita—Foundation, source, and synthesiser too, Of all the sciences of finite things.)

Aristotle defines meta-physic, meta-ta physica. that which is after physics, which transcends, is beyond, the physical or material, as prote-philosophia, the first and fundamental philosophy—the same thing as the foundation of all sciences. Obviously the Science of the Infinite ranks before, and is the basis of, all Sciences of the Finite. Compare.

should be allowed to grow up, in liberty, freely, according to its own inner promptings, inclinations. likes and dislikes'—the truth in this, and a very important truth it is, is that, each individual of the new generation, should be not only allowed, but carefully educated and trained, for the vocation which is most in accord with his particular temperament. his likes and dislikes, his tastes and interests,1 But over and above this special education, thereshould always be, for all individuals of the new generation, general essential cultural education in the four R's Of course, after the new generation has attained its majority, and stands on its mental as well as physical feet, it will be at liberty to change. modify, discard, forget, replace with something else. any or every part, essential or non-essential, general or special, which it has been taught during its minority. As a fact, we see hundreds of personschanging their religions everyday, as they changetheir 'minds' and 'parties' and 'schools of thought', in politics, history, science, philosophy, art, etc. Indeed, changes have become so numerous and so frequent that we have a maddening welter of 'isms' today The reason is that, in all these departments of thought and life, clear and definite, deliberate, knowledge of essentials, of psychological and philosophical basic principles, fundamental facts, laws, needs of human nature, has been largely lost sight of. To revive memory of Essentials is the only cure everywhere

¹ Fuller exposition of this subject is attempted in The Science of Social Organisation, by the present writer.

It has been said before that the new proclamation, of Universal Religion, has to be Agreement of made on 'democratic' lines, se, the Religions lines of 'majority-rule', speaking broadly and generally, (not quite fully and with scientific exactitude, which will be attempted latter). On these lines, those truths and practices which receive, not only the greatest number of, but unanimous, votes from the living religions, those beliefs and observances on which all are agreed, should obviously be regarded as constituting Universal Religion. That there is agreement between the great religions, that all teach the same essential truths, their promulgators themselves are all agreed. We have their clear assurances on this point.

Upanishats say:

Gavām anéka-varnānām
kshīrasya asta éka-varnatā;
Ksbīra-vat pashyaté Jūānam,
linginas tu gavām yathā. (U) (Cows are of many different colours, but
The milk of all is of one color, white;
So the proclaimers who proclaim the Truth

Use many varying forms to put it in, But yet the Truth enclosed in all is one.)

Jāma-é sad-rang z-ān khumm-é safā
Sāda-o yak-rang gashtah chūn ziyā. (S)
(Jesus put many cloths of many hues
Into one jar, and out of it they came With all their hues washed off, all clean and white,

As seven-colored rays merge in white light.)

Kṛshna says, and not once but twice:

Mama varṭma anu-varṭanté
manushyāh, Pārṭha l, sarvashah. (G.)
(To but One Goal are marching everywhere,
All human beings, though they may seem to walk
On paths divergent; and that Goal is I,
The Universal Self. Self-Consciousness.)

At turqu ıl-Allāhı kan nufüsı banī Ādama. (H.) (As many souls, so many ways to God.)

Ţrayī, Sānkhyam, Yogah,
Pashupaṭi-maṭam, Vaishnavam, iṭi,
Prabhinné prasṭhāné, param
idam, adah paṭhyam iti cha, Ruchīnām vai-chitryād,
ṭju-kutila-nānā-patha-jushām
Nṛṇām Éko gamyas-Ṭvam asi, payasām arnava īva. (Shīva-Hahima Sṭuṭi,)

(Véda, and Sänkhya, Yoga, Shaiva-view. And Vaishnava, and many others such, Men follow as they variously incline: Some thinking this is best; some others, that: Yet thou art the One Goal of all those ways. Some straight and easy, others crooked, rough, As of the countless streams, the one vast sea.)

Yath-éndriyash prthag-dvarash, artho babu-gun-āshrayah Ėko, pānā īvaté, tad-vat Bhagavan, shāstra-vartmabhih. (Bhāg., III, axxii, 33.)

(E'en as the several senses apprehend The different qualities of the same thing, So, many lines of searching sciences Show aspects, numerous, of the One Lord.)

Yathā nadyah, syandamānāh, samudré Astam gachhantı, nama-rüpé vihaya, Tatha vidvan, nama-rupad vimuktah, Parat param padam upaiti divyam. (Up.)

(As streaming rivers pass into the sea, Abandoning all separate name and form, So, he who sees the One casts off all name And form, and merges in the State Beyond.) Buddha said, on one occasion:
(Just as, O monks!, the rivers Yamunā
And Gangā, Achiravatī, Sharahhti,
And Mahī, when they fall into the Sea,
Lose distinct names and forms, and are, thenceforward,

Known as One Ocean only; even so,
All men of all four classes, when they come
Into the Doctrine and the Discipline
Of the Tathā-gata 'who knows the Truth,'
And pass from many homes to Homelessness,
They lose distinctive names, clans, nāma-gotra,
And are, thenceforward, known as Bhikshu only.)

Udāna, V. 5.

This is "the one far-off," yet also always very near, "divine event to which the whole creation moves" perpetually.

Zoroaster teaches:

"And we worship the former religious of the world devoted to righteousness" (Z., Yasna, XVI 3; SBE, xxi, 225-6)

At toī anghen Saoshyanto dasyunam. (Gāthā, 48, 12)

One of the Sun names of Aligh is La-Makan, the Homeless, se, not limited, by any house or walls. Bhikshu, beggar', ascetic, stands for the Bhikshu-Sangus, community of ascetics, Buddha's followers.

(Even the dasy us, tribes uncivilised, Will have Saoshyantas, apostles, sent To give them teaching and look after them.)

Kung-fu-tse (Confucius) was a younger contemporary of Lao-tse Buddha haed and taught in India, the younger sister of China, in those same days China has adopted Buddha together with Lao-tse and Confucius as her trinity of great Teachers Confucius says.

"I only hand on; I cannot create new things."
Buddha and Jina speak of past and future Buddhas
(s.c., the Enlightened Ones) and Tirthan-karas (s.e.,
'makers of the fords or bridges' by which men may cross safely to salvation) who reveal the same fundamental truths, again and again, for the benefit of humanity, only revivifying, confirming, enforcing them by the fire and fervour of their lives Bible, OT, says:

"Is there anything whereof it may be said, See, this is new? It hath been already of old time, which was before us . . . There is no new thing under the sun" (B. Eccles)

Christ (i.e., 'the anointed with Divine Wisdom') says

"I come not to destroy the law or the prophets, but to fulfil them" (B)

"Every Scripture inspired of God is also profitable, for teaching, for reproof, for correction, for instruction, which is in righteousness, that the man of God may be complete, furnished completely auto every good work." (B, 2 Timothy)

Great Teachers confirm, at most supplement, not supplent, one another.

Kṛshna says that the teaching he is giving to Arjuna was given by Vivasvān to Manu, by Manu to Ikshvāku, and then by many Rshis, age after age. All is always present in the Memory of God, the Omni-scient, Omni-potent, Omni-present Universal Self, the One Principle of all Life and Consciousness.

Évam param-parā-prāptam mam rājarshayo vidub: Sa év-āyam Mayā, té-(a)dya, yogah proktah, parantapa i

(The royal saints, the king-philosophers,
Of ancient days, from one unto another
Did pass this Wisdom on, from age to age;
That same eternal Yoga, Ancient Wisdom,
Have I declared to thee, this day, to strengthen Thy mind and heart for Life's perpetual Strife)

Muhammad (the 'praise-worthy', Paigham-bar, 'message-bearer', Rasūl, 'sent' by the Spirit) says;

Innahū la-ft zubūr ıl-awwalīu ; Le kullé qanmın hāḍ ;

e,u.a r.] all only Re-proclaim one truth 81:

In mın ummetin ıllā khalā fī hā nazīr. Lā nofarrido bainā ahadim min rusuleh. Wa mā arselnā min qablikā mir-rasūlio Illā nūhi ılaıhé annahū, lā ılāhā ıllā Anā, fa'budūn. (Q.) (This that I am now uttering unto you. The Holy Quran-it is to be found Within the ancient Seers' writings too: For Teachers have been sent to every race. Of human beings no community Is left without a warner and a guide And aught of difference we do not make-For disagreement there is none 'twist them-Between these Prophets All that have been sent. Have been so sent but One Truth to proclaim-"I, verily the I Al(I)-One, am God. There is no other God than I, [the Self, The Universal all-pervading Self], And I alone should be adored by all ") Quran makes this further quite unmistakeable: Wa mā arsalnā mir-jasūlin bi-lessāni quamehī.

Wa kazālika auhamī ilaika Qurānau A'rabi-yal letvnzera umm-al-qorā wa man haulahā .. Wa lau ja-a'lnaho Qurānan a'jamiyal la qālū lau la fussilat āyātohu (Q).

(Teachers are sent to each race that they may Teach it in its own tongue, so there may be No doubt as to the meaning in its mind An Arabic Quran is thus revealed,

That Macca and the cities round may learn

With ease the Truth put in the words they know.

For had we made them in a foreign tongue

They surely would have made objection thus—

"Why have not these revealings been made clear?")

The obvious significance of this remarkable text is that the essentials are common to all religions that Truth is universal and not the monopoly of any race or teacher, that non-essentials vary with time, place, and circumstance; that the same fundamental truths have been revealed by God in different scriptures, in different languages, through different persons born in different nations ¹

Muhammad calls previous revelations, through earlier prophets, also by the name Quran (from qira, to speak, to cry, Skt kr, to do, cre-ate, express by word-sound) He is said to have declared, khātim-un-nabūat, 'I am the last of the prophets.' Others read the word as khātam 'seal'. Some over-zealous fanatical persons. with their usual tendency to excess and extremism, interpret the expression as 'the closing seal', signifying that the line of prophet is closed, that there is to be no other prophet at all in future The true meaning, in view of the other declarations of Muhammad (O. and H), above quoted, whether we read the word as khātem or khātam, is obviously this, vis, 'I am only the last, at the present time, of a long line of prophets and I only put the seal of confirmation upon what my predecessors in prophetship have declared and taught, I do not say anything new . As Jesus the Christ said, I come only to fulfil the law and the prophets.'

And the Prophet adds the positive counsel.

Kui tā'lau elā kalematın sawāım baīn-anā wa baīna-kum. (Q.)

(Let all of us ascend towards, and meet Together on, the common ground of those High truths and principles which we all hold.)

Inn-allazīnā āmanu, w-allazīnā bādu, wan-nasārā, was-sabīnā, man āmana b Illahe, wal-yaum-il-ākhira, wa ā'mela sālehan fala-hum ajruhum inda Rabbehim, walā khaufun alaihim wa lāhim yahzalūn (Q. 11 62).

(Verily, all who faithfully believe
In God, and Day of Judgment, and do good,
Be they Jews, Christians, Sabians, or Muslims,
They shall have their reward from the Lord God.
There is no fear for them, nor shall they grieve.)
(We do believe that which has been revealed
To us, and also what has been revealed
To you Your God and our God is One,
For sure; and unto Him we both submit.)
(Q xxix, 49).

Wa tasému ba hubba llāhī jamīyan, wa la tafarraqu. (Q).

(Cling, all, to the strong rope of Love Divine —Love for each other, and of the One God—
And do not think of separation ever.)

So too does Véda enjoin on all,

Samānī va ākūtih, samānā hṛdayāni vah,

Samānam-astu vo mano, yathā vah su-saha-saṭi.

Samānī prapā, saha vo anna-bhāgah.

Samāné yoktré saha vo yunajmi,

Samyancho Agnım saparyata, Arā nābhım ıva abhıtah.

San-gachchhadhvam, sam-vadadhvam, Sam vo manāmsı lānatām. (V.).

(Your heart, mind, object—may all these be One, So shall you prosper, all, and live in peace, In common be your food and drink and work; God harnesses you all to the same yoke, The sacrificial Fire of Spirit tend Ye all with one intent, as spokes the nave, Walk ye together on the Path of Life, And speak ye all with voice unanimous, And may your minds all know the Self-Same Truth.)

"Be ye all of one mind." (B., Peter, First Epistie)
"We, being many, are one bread and one body, for we are all partakers of that One Bread." (Eucharist Ritual).

"Seek to be in harmony with all your neighbours; live in amity with your brethren" (C., Shu King)

"Be ye all like-minded, compassionate, loving as brethren, tender-hearted, humble-minded, not rendering evil for evil, or reviling for reviling, but contrariwise blessing.. Be of one mind, live in peace. (B., Corinthians) God is no respecter of persons. But in every nation he that feareth Him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted with him. (B, Acts). There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female; for ye are all one in Christ Jesus." (B., Galatians).

"He that doeth the will of God, the same is my brother and my sister and my mother " (to whatever creed or iace he may belong) (B)

Christianity, through the mouth of Justin the Martyr, declares:

"Whatever things have been rightly said, among all men, are the property of us Christians."
Süfis say.

Faqat tafāwat hai nāma hī kā
Dar asl sab cka hī hain, yāro!
Jo āb-i-sāfi ke mauj mén hai
Usī kā jalwā habāb mén hai.
(But the names differ, beloved!
All in Truth are only one!
In the sea-wave and the bubble

Shines the lustre of one Sun 1)

¹ Quoted by J E Carpenter, The Place of Christsanto in the Religious of the World Rüh bā a'ql o ı'lm dānad zīst, Rüh rā Tāzī wa Türkī n-īst (S., Aṛrīr)
Rüh bā a'ql-ast o bā ı'lmast yār,
Rüh rā bā (Hındō o Muslim) che kār. (S., Rōmī)
(By loving wisdom doth the soul know life.
What has it got to do with senseless strife
Of Hindū, Muslim, Christian, Arab, Turk?)

Védic Scripture repeatedly declares that the soulhas no creed, caste, color, race, or sex.

Indeed only the names, the words, differ. The thing meant is the same. Alläh means God, Akbar means greatest, Ishvara or Déva means God, Parama or Mahā means greatest; Allāh Akbar literally means Param-Eshwara or Mahā-Déva Zoroastrian Ahura-Mazdāo (equivalent to Samskrt Asura-Mahad-dhā), also means the 'wisest' and the 'greatest' God-Rahīm and Shiva both mean the (passively) Benevolent and Merciful; Rahmān and Shankara both mean the (actively) Beneficent. Dāsa and Abd both mean servant; Qādir and Bhagavān both mean Him who is possessed of Qudiat, Bhaga, Aishvarya, Might, Lordliness, Bhagavān Dās is absolutely the same as Abd-ul-Qādir, Servant of God the Almighty.

Such is a very simple but very clear illustration of the fact that differences between religions are differences only of words, names, languages, or of non-essential superficial forms; and sometimes of emphasis, on this aspect of the Truth, or of Virtue. or of Duty, rather than another: never, of Essential Ideas. Founders of Religions, ie., Re-proclaimers. in new forms, of the One Universal Religion, have laid greater stress, now on this, now on that other, aspect of the One Religion, as needed by the special times, places, circumstances, in which they lived. The Essential Relgion, Vidy &, Irfan, Wisdom, is eternal, universal, im-personal, all-personal, unchanging, in substance-like the facts and laws of mathematics; the tapas, 'fire and fervour', 'blazing heart-energy', 'passionate compassion', 'ascetic glow and inspiration ', of the 'magnetic personality' of each Re-proclaimer, is new, is his fresh 'personal' contribution, and gives a new form to the eternal substance.

In other words, the Founders, so-called, of new religions, are really only Re-proclaimers of the same Essential Truths, in new languages, new forms, amidst new settings, new conditions of life. Hence they may be said to be Re-form-ers only. There is never any really new Religion (in the singular); but always only the One Eternal Universal Religion, which is the Common Core and Essence of all particular religions. These are new religions (in the plural) in this sense, that, after each Re-proclaiming Re-former, his followers have gradually built up new rites, ceremonies, forms, around that core-teaching.

in consequence of new conditions of new times Thus each particular religion has put on the appearance of newness; and the more so because the new ritual gradually overpowers, covers up, hides away completely, the Ancient Core, so that the Means swallow the End, and begin themselves to pose as the end. The case of new civilisations, which grow up and decay side by side with new religions, is the same. The language, dress, food, housing, social conventions, manners-and-morals. marriage forms, domestic ways, art-forms, recreations, etc., of each, are more or less different from those of others; yet the essential urges, needs. appetites, mental and bodily faculties, which are lexercised in, and satisfied by, each, are the same. The God in Man, and in all Living Beings, fulfils · Him-Self in ever-varying ways; in every way is He Him-Self fulfilled.

To some minds, the work of pursuing, discovering, clasping to their heart, such agreements, is a great joy; and the opposite process of dwelling upon differences alone, a sheer pain.

- Khush-tar an bashad ke sirré dil-baran
 - ., Gufța ăyad dar hadise digarăn (S)
 - (It is a great delight to find
- or . One's own thought in another mind-
- The secret of the Lovely One,

Disclosed in others' narration, Giving Him meed of highest praise In delicately worded ways)

Iţı nānā pra-sankhyānam
tatţvānām kavıbhıh krṭam;
Sarvam nyāyyam yukţı-mat-ţvāţ, vidushām kim asāmpraţam? (Bh)

(In varying ways the sages have described The same unvarying and essential truths; There is no real conflict 'twixt them all; The knowers know the way to reconcile Many the words and ways in which the wise Have tried to teach One Truth to all Mankind Each way, each word, is right in its own place. There is no conflict 'twixt them all at all The sages see and say the Same in each)

The most beautiful face cannot see and appreciate its own beauty until it looks into a mirror. As Sūfis say, God had to look into the mirror of Non-Being, A'dam, A-sat, Shūnya, in order to behold and realise the infinitely varied beauties that lay hidden in Him-Self. A'yniyat-1-haqīqī, Ātm-ādvaiţa-saṭṭā, the Truth of the Self's Oneness, Ownness, is realised only by means of Ghairiyat-1-étabārī, Iţar-ābhāsa, Dvaiţa-mithyātva, the Falsehood, the Illusion, of hypothetical, suppositional, Otherness, which has no real existence

Dar āyīna gar-che khud-numāi bāshad, Paiwasta ze khwésh-ṭan judāi bāshad, Khud rā ba libās i-ghair didan a'jab ast, K-īń b-ul a'jabī kār-i-Khudāī bāshad. (S.)

(The vacant looking-glass doth show the Self, Yet in that Self there is an Otherness! Marvel! In mask of Other to see Self; This shiuing miracle of miracles. Than God's Own Self None-Other can achieve!)

The Play, Krīdā, Laīb and Lahw, of God is an Inter-play of love, Ishq-basi, Rasa-lila, between God's Self and His reflected image, an-Other: the same yet not the same; indeed reversed. We cannot realise the full significance of our own thoughts until we see them reflected in another mind. That is why speakers wish to be heard, authors wish to be read, artists wish to be appreciated, by others. To cognise an idea through the veil of one language only, is to see it with one eye only, as it were, from one standpoint, in one perspective only To see it through another language also, is to see it with both eyes from many angles of vision, through a stereoscope. A new fullness of meaning breaks out from the two sets of words, and stands forth in clear relief, almost independent of all words. Communion between two friends brought up in two different cultures, but able to realise the underlying identity of the spirit of refinement and enrichment of life, is more interesting than that between friends brought up in the same culture. It has the charm of a more diverse-sided novelty, of travel in a new country, full of friendly hospitality, with scenes, foods, drinks, dresses, manners, flowers, fragrances, as beautiful, as tasteful, as delicious, as gracious, as those of one's own, yet also different. That is why God's l-One-ly Self, to vary the mono-tony, broke forth into infinite multi-tony.¹

Tad eva rüpam ramaniyaṭāyāh Kshané kshané yan navaṭām vidhaṭṭé (Shri-barsha, Naishadham)

(Beauty, True Beauty, doth appear, new, fresh,' E'er different, ever splendid, every day,)

To be able to recognise the Dearest of Friends only if He is clothed in one dress and no other, is not to know the Friend at all, but only the Dress. Beloved! I will dress you in many dresses; in the kimono of Japan, the mandarin coat of China, in the ava-sīya and uṭṭarīya, upper and lower wrap, the golden shāta-pata, sāri, of India, in the shāls of Kashmīr, in the abā and chogha of Persia, in the burnous of Arabia, in the multiform hats, blouses, jackets, coats, petticoats, gowns, shirts, shorts, trousers, kilts, of the several countries of

¹ See f.n. (p. 61 supra). Yār-s-mārā . .

Europe, in the plumes of the Amer-indian, the toga of the departed Roman, the mail of the medieval knight of Asia and Europe! Beloved! will you not be able to recognise your own True Self, your own Beautiful Face, your own Gracious Goodness, in all these disguises, when a mirror is placed before you, each time your garments are changed? Beloved! you must recognise your own voice and your own meaning, surely, whether you speak in Samskrt, or Arabic, or Hebrew or Greek, or Latin, or Chinese, or Japanese or Zend or Pāli, or Prākrt, or Gurmukhi, or any of the thousands of languages you yourself are always inventing, and forgetting from time to time, in order to fashion new others for your Infinite Play and Pas-time!

Underneath, soaked through and through, permeating, pervading, holding fast together, all Multitude, remains ever the Unity This is the One Fact to be remembered always.

Pots, pans, jugs, jars, tumblers, decanters, kettles are many and of many shapes; the water in them all is one. Lamps and lanterns and electric bulbs are many and of many shapes; the light is one. Wood, coal, oil, fuels are many and of many shapes, the fire is one. Living organisms are many and of many shapes; the life in all is one. Religions are many and of many forms and formalines, the Universal Religion is One.

"In China, when strangers meet, it is the custom for each to ask his neighbour. 'To what sublime religion do you belong?' The first is perhaps a Confucian, the second a Taoist, the third a disciple of Buddha Each then begins a panegyric on the religion not his own; after which they repeat in chorus, 'Religious are many, reason is one, we are all brothers'." The critic of one temperament will exclaim, "Hypocrites!"; of another, may burst out. "Old fogeys, marionettes, idiots!"; of a third, unfortunately rare perhaps to-day, would say, " Just. wise, and courteous!". Experts of different sciences, of different arts, wedded, loyal, faithful each to his own favorite, can yet admire, nay, reverence, if they are real and thoughtful experts and not bumptious quacks, the same common factor of genius, skill, unremitting application, manifesting in all.

Those who see good in others, others see good in them. Those who see evil in others, others see evil in them. Those who see both the good and the evil in others justly, others judge them justly also 'The Science of Emotions' tells us that if we give credit to another for a virtue, even if it be not manifest in him, his mind, his waking mind, is filled with the idea of it, and thereby we stimulate the seed of that the Religious of the World, p 60.

^{*} See the book, bearing this title, by the present writer.

virtue, which is also necessarily present in the suband-supra-conscious deeps of his (sleeping) mind, to sprout and come to the surface and manifest. If one religion appreciates another, that other will further develope the aspect appreciated, and will also reciprocate, and appreciate the one and help it to develope similarly also ¹

The saintly statesman, Printe Regent Shotoku of Japan, "one of the best known figures in Japanese history, for whom, when he died in 621 A.D., the old wept as if they bad lost a child, and the young as if they had lost a parent," reconciled the indigenous religion Shintoism, and the newly come Buddhism and Confucianism, when conflict between the priests threatened to fill the land with dissensions, in this wise. "Shinto is the source and root of the Way, and, shot up with the sky and the earth, teaches man the primal Way, Classicism (Confucianism) is the branch and foliage

^{&#}x27;Compare the English adage, 'Give a dog a bad name and hang it'. This may be supplemented with, 'Give a dog a good name, and tame it'

A beautiful little Persian verse says
Yad dar! he waqte zadan-1-jo,
Hamān khandān budand o til giriyān
Chun Zī ke waqt 1-murdan-1-to,
Hamān giriyān buwand o til khandān
(When thou wast born, all laughed and thou didst cry:
Live so, that, when thou passest, all shall cry,
And thou alone shalt laugh, rising on High!)

of the Way, and, bursting forth with man, it teaches him the Middle Way; Buddhism is the flower and fruit of the Way, and appearing after man's mental powers matured, teaches him the final Way. Hence, to love one in preference to another, only shows man's selfish passion. The introduction of another foreign system of faith will add a new cubit to the stature of the Nation's mind, without depriving its predecessors of their authority; indeed each new creed enlightens the old." 1

The poet has well said.

Mockery is the fume of little hearts, And noble manners come from noble minds

And again,

Let knowledge grow from more to more
But more of reverence in us dwell,
For fear divine philosophy
Should shoot beyond her mark and be Procuress to the lords of hell (TENNYSON)

"'The teaching of sects,' said Lu Shun Yan, a distinguished Buddhist scholar, 'is not different. The large-hearted man regards them as embodying the same truths. The narrow-minded man observes only their differences'... The wisdom in all ages,

Dr Inazo Nitobe, Japan, 61, 370, (pub 1931, The Modern World Series), and Buc Brit, 14th edn., art. Japan, 930c entering into holy souls, maketh them friends of God, and prophets" 1

Ţafraqā dar nafs-1-hatwānī buwad, Rüh-1-wāhiḍ rüh-1-insāni buwad. (S)

(Separatism, difference, exclusiveness, Characterise at once the animal mind: The soul of oneness is the soul of man, The soul of all-inclusive Sympathy, Of Unity and of non-separateness)

The Arabic-Persian word for man, snsān, (from sns, uns, sympathy), means etymologically 'the friend of all,' 'the lover of his kind,' the 'gentleman'. So the Samskṛt word ārya (from ṛ, to go) means 'the person to whom others, when trouble befalls them, go for relief,' 'he who is approached for help'.

Sarva-bhūtéshu yéna ékam bhāvam avyayam īkshaţé,
A-vı-bhakţam vı-bhaktéshu
ţaj-jñānam sātţvikam smrtam.
Prţhakţvéna tu yaj-jñānam nānā bhāvān prṭhag-vidhān, Véţţi sarvéshu bhūţéshu
ţaj-jñānam viddhi rājasam (G.)

² J E Carpenter, 161d, 66, 67

Nivāran-ārṭham arṭīnam arṭum yogyo bhavéṭ ṭu yah, Aryaṭé saṭaṭam ch-ārṭaih, sa Ārya iṭi kaṭhyaṭé.

(Through all forms whatsoever runs One Life, Immortal, making indivisible
All those that seem divided endlessly—
The higher, sāttvih', wisdom seeth thus
But that which takes the separate-seeming many
As many only, separate for ever—
That sight is of the lower rājas' mind)
(He who is worthy to go to, for help,
For persons in distress, and unto whom Such ever do resort—true Ārya, he)

That all the creeds and practices, all the parts, of

The Resentation any religion, are not equally important and the tant, not essential, is patent. All

Ron-Essential religions themselves make distinctions between the obligatory and the optional, mohkamāt and mushābhāt, nīţya and kāmya,

ā vashyaka and aichchhika. That duty varies with time, place, and circumstance, is also obvious, and is plainly stated too in all religions.

Désha-kāla-nımittānām
hhédair-dharmo vibhidyaté;
Anyah dharmah sama-sthasya, vishama-sthasya cha aparah.
Na hi éva aikāntiko dharmah;
dharmo hi āvasthikah smrtah.

Nahı sarva-hitah kash-chid

Tasmād anyah pra-bhavatı, sah aparam bādhaté punah,

Achārānām an-aikāgryam

tasmāt sarvatra lakshayé

(Mbh, Shānti-parva.)

(Changes of time and place and circumstance Always cause changes in the duties too The law for men is one in time of peace, And quite another in calamity.)

Or circumstance. No special law and manner
Hath e'er been found which giveth only help
To all and everyone, and hurt to none;
Therefore 'tis changed for one that does seem better,

More suited to the different conditions Hence do we see the great variety In laws and customs of humanity.)

Anyé Krta-yugé dharmāh, Tréţāyām, Dvāparé, aparé, Anyé Kalı-yugé nrīnām, yuga-hrās-ānu-rūpatah. (M.) (As men change character and ways of life,
So change the laws their elders make for them;
Both vary, side by side, from age to age.
One law is for the Golden Age of Truth,
And ready 'doing' of loved Elders' words
Another for the Age of infant Sin,
Yet other for the Age of equal Strife
Twixt well-grown Vice and Virtue; and a fourth
Is needed for the Time when Discord reigns).

"To everything there is a season, and a time for every purpose under heaven;... a time to be born and a time to die; to plant, and to pluck up; to kill, and to heal, to break down, and to build up; to weep, and to laugh; to keep silence, and to speak; to love, and to hate; a time of war, and a time of peace" (B., Eccles)

Inna-kum sī zamānın man ţaraka mın-kum, a'shra mā omera behî halaka; summā yātī zamānun mın-hum be-a'shra mā omera behi naja. (H., Tīrmizī.)
(Ye now are in an age in which if ye Shirk even one-tenth of what is ordained Ye will be ruined After this will come A time when he who will do e'en one tenth Of what is ordered now will be redeemed.)

The greatest of all Süfi writers, Maulana Jalal-uddin Rümi, has used strong language in distinguishing between the essentials and the non-essentials, pradhāna and gauna amsha, ustil and furti', of religion. Describing the purpose of his work, the famous Marnawi, which is accepted by the Muslim world generally as next to Qurān itself in holiness, he says:

Man se Qur-an maghs ra bar-dashtam, Ustukhan peshe sagan andakhtam. (S.) (The marrow from the Qur-an have I drawn And the dry bones unto the dogs have cast.)

As regards the profound respect in which the Masnawi is held among learned divines of Islām, a verse is current among them.

Man che goyam wasi-ı-ān ā'lī janāb, N-īst paigham-bar walé dārad kiṭāb (How may we well describe this great soul's greatness i

He is not called a Messenger from God, Yet in his hands he holds a Holy Script)

Jesus has a blunt saying similar to Rümi's, about "casting pearls before swine", e., those as yet unable to appreciate them. Krshna condemns in very plain terms those who are always harping upon outer ritual and neglecting inner wisdom.

Yām ımām pushpitām vācham pra-vadanti a-vipash-chitah, Véda-vāda-ratāh, Pārţha, n-ānyad-asţ-īţi vādinah. (G.) (They who are always praising Védic rites And ceremonies, saying there's naught else Worth thinking of, are very foolish men.)

Even the benevolent Masters have, now and then, to use strong, even harsh, language, when it is necessary to shake very heavy mertia '

From another standpoint, for the purpose of gradually leading on the child-soul from the in-essential to the Essential, from the symbol to the Meaning, we are advised to "Give milk to babes and meat to the strong", (B) Even Moses and Muhammad are scarcely able at first to look on the Nür-z-Qähir, 'the blinding effulgence of the Face of God wholly unveiled.' Even Arjuna trembles when his eyes are first opened for briefest instant to 'That Glory greater than a thousand suns', 'Light of lights', Jyotishām jyotih, (Gitā and Up.), the Glory of the Universal Self; on beholding which, all small individual self-hood and self-ishness shrivel into nothingness. Therefore,

Apsu dévā manushyānām,
divī dévāh manīshinām,
Bālānām kāshtha-loshtéshu,
budhasya Ātmani Dévatā (Agni Purāna.)

(Child-souls may find their gods in wood and stone:

More grown-up souls in sacred lakes and streams;

The older-minded in the orbs of space; The wise see Him in all-pervading Self.)

"We speak wisdom among the perfect or initiated, not the wisdom of this world, nor of the archons of this world, but divine wisdom in a mystery, secret—which none of the archons of this world know." (B., Paul.)

Jesus says ·

"To you it is given to know the mysteries of the Kingdom of Heaven, but to them it is not given. For whoseever hath (the key) to him shall be given, and he shall have more abundance, but whosever hath not, (or is likely to misuse the key to the sacred secret knowledge), from him shall be taken away even that (which) he hath (B) 1

In the minor Eleusinian Mysteries of Greece, a sow was washed to typify the purification of the neophyte, as her return to the mire indicated the superficial nature of the work that had been accomplished H P Blavatsky. Isia Unveiled, II, 493 For many quotations from others, see H P.B., The Secret Doctrine, vol v, section iv (Adyar edition). See also the articles 'Mystery' and 'Eleusis' in Bita Brit. The rites and ceremonies of Védic yajña may be regarded as an earlier form of such 'mystery-initiations'

These minor and major Eleusinian Mysteries, into which only the select were initiated, are constantly referred to in Greek literature. All the great dead religious had their 'mysteries' and their ceremonial initiations of the worthy into them. They were dramatic ceremonies symbolising the psychical, moral, and also physical trials and tests of the progress of the soul from stage to stage

But in order to make our investigation, very brief and merely suggestive as it must be here, somewhat systematic, we should try first to ascertain, even though only rapidly, the nature of what is called Religion.

The word 'religion', which is in use in the Christian world, is derived from Latin words (re and legere or ligare) which mean 'to bind back'. Therefore it means that which binds human beings to each other in the bonds of love and sympathy and mutual rights and duties; binds them all also to God: endeavours to lead them back to that World-Soul, from Whom their lower nature makes them stray away again and yet again, in too eager following of the objects of the senses; and binds to, and keeps their minds fixed on, that Supreme Principle of Unity, amidst the press of all their daily work, in order to enable them to do that work with proper balance, righteously. The power to bind together the bearts of men to one another, by the common bond of God, the All-pervading Self, is the power to give birth to and to nourish and maintain, a in real evolution, through which the person undergoing initiation was passed. The intention seems to have been to prepare for real life's trials and tests. Sometimes, this preparation was so severe that nothing in real life could be more so, as, today, in the case of the physical endurance and other trainings, tests, and rehearsals of athletes, racers, aviators, swimmers, film-thrillers, and soldiers.

high civilization. It is noteworthy that every historic civilization has had, and has today, its specific religion, its worshipped ideal. Indeed, the birth of a new religion, i.e., a fresh re-viv-al of the Spirit of religion, whence united co-operation, has invariably preceded, and given birth to, a new civilization.

The corresponding Védic word is Dharma, from dhr, to hold and bind together, which has exactly the same significance

A Jama sage defines Dharma thus

Samsāra-duhkhaṭah saṭṭvān Yo dharaṭı uṭṭamé sukhé

(Samaņta-Bhadra).

(That which leads beings out of the world's woes.

And 'holds them fast' in highest bliss, is Dharma.)

We have seen (p. 68) that the Vaisheshika philosopher's definition is, 'That which helps to achieve a bhyu-daya, prosperity, here, and also nisshréyas, highest happiness, hereafter, that is Dharma', the joys of earth and heaven, and the bliss of realised Infinitude and Immortality, during the life on earth and thereafter too. Manu says, Dandam Dharmam vidur-budhāh.

(The Rod, resistless, of Compulsion, held By Royalty, which meteth good for good And ill for ill, and ordereth all things— That Rod is Dharm' embodied. Thus, the wise)

And here we see the etymological definition, given in Mahabharata.

Dhāranāḍ Dharma iţi āhuh, Dharmo ḍhārayaṭi prajāh. (Shānti-parva.)

(That which binds fast all beings, each to each, With bonds of rights-and-duties; binding these Also together, in unfailing law
Of Action and Reaction, whence arise
Reward for good and Punishment for ill,
And thus preserves mankind—Dharma is That.)

The Unity of the Universal Self is the Ultimate Dharma, characteristic property, quality, attribute, which is the obvious cause and source of all these aspects and meanings of Dharma.

The 'holding together' of human beings in a 'society' is not possible without perpetual 'give-and-take', 'right-and-duty', incessant little or great acts of self-sacrifice, yajña, qurbānī. The 'self-affirmation' of any one individual is not possible without corresponding 'self-denial' on the part of some other or others. And vice versa. More; each individual, to secure selfish self-expression, must impose upon himself some unselfish self-repression, self-restraint, self-denial, also. Egoism and altruism make each other possible. Each disappears without the other. Such is the Law of Duality, which pervades the Multiplicity of the World-Process, in subordination to the supreme Law of Sacrifice, yajña, qurbānī, of one's own smaller self's lower desires, in ever-growing degree, from birth to death of body.

Saha-yajñāh prajāh sṛshtvā
purā uvācha Prajā-patib—Anéna pra-savishyaḍhvam, ésha vo astu ishta-kāma-dhuk. (G.)

(By sacrifice of His own Perfect Being, His Else-denying 'Singleness of Self,' The Lord created countless Progeny Of 'Many selves', together with the Law Of Sacrifice; and gave them this command: 'By Mutual Sacrifice, by Mutual Help, Shall ye all grow, prosper, and multiply, This is the cow will milk you all rich things')

The self-sacrifice of each smaller self for the sake of the larger Self, which larger self is felt to be embodied in Society as a whole, and the corresponding self-sacrifice of that larger Self or Society for the sake of each smaller self, which smaller self is felt to be integral part of the whole—this mutual self-sacrifice, though internally motived by all-wise Philanthropic Love, has yet to be externally regulated by all-loving Wisdom, through Laws which lay down rights-and-duties, which bind rights with duties, and all human beings with the bonds The feeling, and the implicit and of both. explicit recognition, of the omni-presence of the larger Self; and of one's particular smaller self being a part of, and subordinate to, It, as a cell or a tissue in an organism, this feeling, this recognition, may be said to be the quintessence of 'religion' or 'religiousness'. Conscious conviction that every 'finite' is created, ideated, maintained, 'held together', and periodically manifested and indrawn, by the Infinite; this, and corresponding philanthiopic desire and action, may be said to make up the whole of Religion 1

The word Islam has a profound and noble meaning which is, indeed, by itself, the very essence of religion. Derived from salm, peace, shānţi, it means 'peaceful acceptance' of God, calm resignation, submission, surrender, pra-ni-dhāna, pra-patti, of the small self to the Great Self, letting out of egoism and letting in of Universalism; na-mas-kāra, na mama kintu tava īhā,

¹The idea is more fully expounded in other works of this writer, especially The Science of Religion or Sanājana Vandika Dharma

"Thy will be done, Lord I, not mine", whence only the mind, the heart, at peace with itself and with all the world

The significance of 'D h a r m a' is the same, for what else can 'hold together' living beings than mutual 'rightful-ness' and 'du(e)-ti-fulness', mutual righteousness and duteousness, mutual rights-andduties, through common 'submission' to the Will of the Divine Self? The very important question arises here at once, How may human beings ascertain what the Will of the Divine Self is, generally; and, even more, in particular cases. The answer, in brief, is. (a) Universal Essential Religion. Scientific Religion, Spiritual Science, tells us what that Will is, generally, (b) particularly, good-andwise laws, defining rights-and-duties, made by goodand-wise legislators, who know, love, fear God, se, the Supreme. Universal Self of All; who therefore disinterestedly wish well to all just interests of all sections, classes, vocations, who, as far as is humanly possible, are 'near God', are 'Sons of God', are embodiments of the Higher, Better, Nobler, Wiser, Philanthropic Self of the People, and who are sincerely trusted, honored, and duly selected and elected by the People to make laws, -such laws will represent the Divine Will, as nearly as possible for human beings
It is obvious that only good-andwise laws can promote the general welfare, and that such laws can be made by only good-and-wise persons. Legislation and administration by such only can establish 'the kingdom of heaven on earth'.1

The essence of Christianity is, thus, same as that of Pharma. 'Christos' means 'anointed,' 'bathed in Divine Wisdom', whence only replacement of the small self by the Great Self.

So 'Vaidika-Dharma' etymologically means the Religion of Knowledge; 'Sanāṭana-Dharma' means the Religion, the Way, of the Bternal Self; 'Mānava-Dharma', Religion of Humanity and Humanism; 'Bauddha-Dharma', Religion of Budḍhi, Wisdom, 'Ārya-Dharma', Religion of the Good, the Noble-minded The other Islāmic name for religion is Mazhab, which means the 'Way', ie, the Way of Righteousness, the Path to God and Happiness.

'Dharma' is also a triple Way, sub-divided into three intertwining Mārgas or Paths, of Knowledge, of Devotion, of Works. Buddhism, as we have already seen, also describes itself as the Middle Path, and, again, in greater detail, as the Ashtānga Ārya Mārga, 'the Noble Eightfold Path's But always the One and only Path is the Path of Non-Egoism, of Unselfishness,

¹ For fuller exposition, see portion numbered 20, on ² Social Organisation, of ch. 1v sufra, and Appendix

The eight are "Samyak drshti, . sankalpa . . väk, . . karmänta, . . äjiva, . . vyäyäma, . . smrti, . . . samädhi, right view, right resolve, . . . speech, . . .

Tark-t-khudi, Asmitā-iyāga, whence True Knowledge, Right Love, Righteous Action; and the only Light on the Path is the Light within, "the Light that lighteth every one," the Light of the One Self.

Jyotır-Ātmanı, na anyatra; sarva-jantushu tat samam (Bhāg.)

Christ has said: "I am (i.e, is) the Way, the Truth, and the Life" To know that (the) I (is) am all selves is to know the Truth. To love all selves as my-Self is the right Life To do unto all selves as to my-Self is the righteous Way.

Shinto, (the word is said to be Chinese), the ancient religion of Japan, now practically merged into Buddhism, is Kāmi-no-michi, (in the Japanese language), 'the Way of the Spirits,' 'the Divine Way,' 'the Way of God'. Kāmi are the indwelling spirits—all sparks of the One Spirit ¹ action, . . livelihood, . endeavour (healthy recreation), . recollection (mindfulness, alertness), concentration (collectedness of mind, meditation, reposefulness). These are readily classifiable under right thought-desireaction. Compare Christ's eight beatitudes. Blessed are the poor in spirit, . they that mourn, . the meek. . they which hunger and thirst after righteousness, . . the merciful, . . the pure in heart, . the peace makers, . . . thay which are persecuted for right-eousness's sake", (B., Matthew, ch. 5)

In Shintoism, Con-ton is Chaos, Yo is Heaven, male ethereal principle. In is Earth, female material principle Jin, is man; Amé no ani naka nushi no Kami

The name of the religion given by Lao-tse to China is Tāo, which, again, means the 'Way'.

is Divine Monarch of the Central Heaven, Tākā mi onosubi no Kāmi is Exalted Imperial Divine Offspring of Heaven and Earth, Kāmi mi nusubi no Kāmi is Offspring of the gods, Isu no gāi no Kāmi is male dark muscular being, Eku gāi no Kāmi is female fair weaker more delicate being

"The idea of the middle path, that lies between the opposites, is found in China, in the form of Tao. The meanings of Tao are (1) Way, (2) Method, (3) Principle. (4) Nature force or Life-force, (5) the Regulated processes of Nature, (6) the Idea of the World. (7) the Primal Cause of all phenomena, (8) the Right, (9) the Good, (10) the Eternal Moral Law. Some even translate Tao as God . Lao-tse, (born 604 BC), in Taote-king, says Tao seems to have existed before God . It is indefinable, perfected, . . formless, al-one, unchanging, mexhaustible beyond reasoning, unsergable. nameless. existing and non-existing also. Dwelling without desire, one perceiveth its essence, clinging to desire, one seeth only its outer form. . . The kinship with the basic Brahmanic ideas is unmistakable—which does not necessarily imply girect contact. The primordial image underlying both the Ria-Brahma-Atma and Tao conceptions is as universal as man, appearing in every age, among all peoples, whether as Energy-concept, or Soul-force, or however else it may be designated . The knowledge of Tao has therefore the same redeeming " l'freedom'-grving, 'salvation'-bringing, 'moksha'-bestowing] "and uplifting effect as the 'knowing' of Brahman

. The complete one "[the perfected son of God', kāmil, mukta] "is beyond intimacy or estrangement, profit or injury, honor or disgrace Being one with Tao resembles the spiritual condition of a child," [compare verses of Gita, to same effect]: C G. Jung, Psychological Types, 264-256. What else can

In every case what is meant is the Way which leads to happiness, to peace; to freedom from bondage to Egoism and thence to doubts, freedom from fear of pain and death; by leading to the God within, ie, to the realisation of the identity of the individual with the Universal Self, whence illumination, and assurance of Immortality. We have seen before that so long as men fear pain and death, so long will they necessarily crave religion. It is the climax of religion itself which, by proving that all our pain is self-inflicted, (since it comes only as consequence of our own selfish desire), and by the Essential Concept be than 'as universal as man', when it is the Essence of Man him-Self, is his very Self! What, in Véda-mantias, is named Satya and Ria, is mostly called Brahma and Dharma in Upanishads and Smrtis, or Purusha and Prakth or Sva-bhava in some of the Daishanas. The words Brahma and Dharma include all the meanings, ascribed above to Tao, it will be readily noticed that they are all closely allied aspects of the same thing, and shade off into one another

Dr Michiji Ishikawa, in his paper on 'Shinto Theology', (The Religions of the World, I, 371-377, pub; by the Ramakrshna Mission Institute of Culture, Calcutta, 1938), says "Shinto is the All-pervading Universal Way According to Shinto mythology Ame-no mi naka-nushi (Heaven-centre-ruling Deity) is the Absolute Universal Self, from which both Kankai (visible) and Yukai (invisible) worlds have come into existence through the activities of the three deities of Musubi, the Principles of Creation, of Completion, and of the Controlling Bond between," cf, Brahma-Shiva-Vishqu."

annihilating fear of annihilation, can abolish need for religion. When man has found God, his own Eternal and Infinite Self, and has thrown away his smaller self, he has himself become the Truth, the Life, the Way, and no longer needs any other way to God.

Whichever track we try, we always come round to the one and only way—of merging the small self in the Eternal Self, the dew-drop in the Sea.

We may distinguish three main parts or aspects in all the great religions. In Vaidika The Three As-Dharma, they are expressly men; peats of Relitioned [nana-Marga, Bhaktidian mārga, Karma-mārga Generally corresponding to these are, Haqiqat or Aqayad. Tariqat or Ibādāt, and Shariyāt or Mā'mılāt, of Islam Gnosis, Pietas, and Energeia, (a) Way of Knowledge, Illumination, Gnosticism, (b) Way of Devotion, Pietism, Mysticism, (c) Way of Rites and Ceremonies and Works of self-denying Charity. Activism, Energism, Practicalism—these seem to be similarly distinguished in Christian theology, and to have the same significance Via contemplativa, via unstiva, via purgativa, are Latin names for the same, in the writings of the Fathers of the Christian Church. In the Buddhist Eightfold Path, (see p 109 supra), the three most important, under which the other five may be classified, are Right Knowledge,

114 THE TRUTH, THE LIFE, THE WAY [CH. I

Right Desire, and Right Action—Samyakdṛshti, Samyak-sankalpa, and Samyakvyāyāma, which are same as the three Vaidika Mārgas Jama teaching is same.

Samyag-darshana-jñāna-chānṭryānı Moksha-Mārgah. (UMI-swīMī, Tatto-ārtha Sūtra)

(The way to Liberty is Right Desire, Right Knowledge, and Right Conduct—three in one).

These are known as the 'three jewels', ratnatraya, in Jamism.

Darshana here stands for ichchhā or bhaki, and chāritrya for kriyā or karma.

I am (s) the Truth, (b) the Life, (c) the Way. (B) Sharia't rā shaār-e-khwesh sāzad, Tarīqaţ rā wisār-e-kḥwésh sāzad, Haqīqaţ kḥuḍ maqām-é-zāt-i-Ū dān, Buwad ḍāyam miyān-é-kufr-o-īmān.

(S , Gulshan-i-Ràs.)

(His outer garment woven is of Works; His inner, of Devotion's ecstasy; Him-Self, Knowledge of Truth, that wears the two Standing between belief and unbelief.)

Yogās-irayo mayā prokļāh, , Jiiānam, Bhakitsh-cha, Karma cha. (Bh.) (Three Yoga-ways have I declared to men.— Of Knowledge, of Devotion, of right Deed).

Kāma-mayah éva ayam purushah; sa yaṭhā-kāmo bhavaṭa, ṭaṭ-kraṭur bhavaṭa; yaṭ-kraṭur bhavaṭa ṭaṭ karma kuruṭé; yat karma kuruṭé, tad abhì-sampaṭ-yaṭé. . . Taḍ éva sakṭah saha karmnā ṭa lingam, mano yatra nishakṭam asya; (Br. Up., 4. 4. 4-5-6.)

Ațha khalu krațu-mayah purushah; yațhă krațur asmın loké purusho bhavați, țathā ıţah préțya bhavați; (Chh. Up., 3. 14. 1.).

(Desire is core of individual man;
As is the strongest wish, such is the will;
As is the real will, such is the act;
As is the act, such doth becomes the man.
As is the craving which absorbs the mind
At the last moment, such the shape also
Which is assumed by the subtle form,
In which the sonl goes on to other worlds)
Tatha asya Shaktir vividha éva shrayajé
Sväbhavikī jāāna-bala-kriyā cha. (Skvéta. Up.)

(Threefold His Energy is said to be— Power of knowledge, of desire, of deed.)

As a man thinketh in his heart, so is be.
(B. Prov., 23-27).

Shraddhā-mayo ayam purushah Yo yach-chhraddhah sa éva sah. (G#4.) (Man is made up of faith : faith is the man.) Chiţţam éva hi Sam-sārah;
 Tam prayaţūéna shodhayét,
 Yach-chiţţas-tan-mayo bhavaţi;
 Guhyam eţaţ Sanāţanam.

(Masträyani Up., 1v. 4. 3.)

(The mind in all the world; then make it pure, As is his mind, such is the man always, Mind well this truth that comes from time of old;)

Väg-dando-(a)tha mano-dandah käya-dandas-tatha-ıva cha, Yasya-été nihitä buddhau, tri-dandi-ti sa uchyaté. (M.)

Kāyéna samvaro sāḍhu, sāḍhu vāchāya samvaro, Manasā samvaro sāḍhu, sāḍhu sabbattha samvaro, Sabbattha sambuto bhikkhū sabba-dukkhā pamuchchaṭi. (Dh.)

(Good is it to control the thought, the speech, The act, the wise man who will thus restrain All these, he will, for sure, cast off all pain; He is true 'thrice-ruled' blikkhu-san-nyāsī)

In these three words, knowledge—desire—action, jāšna—ichchhā—kriyā (corresponding with sattva—tamas—rajas), um—khudhish—fa'l, u'rf—madah—a'mal, we find indicated, in terms of psychological science, the reason why all religious have this threefold nature. The human mind has three aspects. Human life is one incessant round of conscious or sub-conscious knowings, wishings, and doings. Only if we know rightly, wish rightly, and act rightly, can we secure happiness here and hereafter, for ourselves and our fellow-creatures. Religious teach us what are the most important items under each of these three heads, and how we' may secure them.

A triad almost more frequently met with, is that of right thoughts-words-deeds; mano-vāk-karma; khayāl-qaul-fa'l; humata-hukhta-huvarshta, (Z.) Here, 'words' stands for 'desire'.

(Prof. Tan Yun Shan, Modern Chinese History, p 97).

[&]quot;In his pronouncement, initiating the New Life, Movement in China, (Feb 1934), Marshal Chiang Kan Shek referred to the four traditional foundations of Good-Character Li, I, Lyang, and Chih These seem to be equivalents of (1) Righteoneness in Action, (2) Non-separatism or Unionism in Desire, (3) Free Knowledge, or clear, plain, discriminate right course; (4) Self-conscioness, conscience which makes one feel ashamed to go against I and Lyang In other words, briefly, (1) karma, (2) bhakh, (3 and 4) man "

³ Humatz is, in Skt., su-matam, right-thought, well-thought, hu-khta is su-uktam, right-words, well-spoken, hu-varshtta is su-visham, su-varhitam, su-vitham, su-vartitam, su-kitam, well-done, well-worked, well-rained, right-deeds).

118 UNITY OF THOUGHT, SPRECH, ACT [CH. 1

Manası ékam, vachası ékam, karmanı ékam mah-ätmanām,
Manası anyad, vachası anyad, karmanı anyad dur-ätmanām (Mbh.)

(In the great soul, thought, word, and deed are one; In th' evil, all are different, each from each.)

Civilizations are also, correspondingly, made up of (a) bodies of knowledge, science, learning, (b) of special tastes, aspirations, ideals, arts, ruling passions, and (3) of characteristic ways of living, behaviour, forms of enterprise. The larger, the more varied, the more carefully ascertained the knowledge; the nobler, the more aesthetic, artistic, philanthropic, the ideals, tastes, aspirations, emotions; the more refined the ways of living and the more humanitarian and wide-reaching the enterprises and activities—the greater and higher the civilisation.

(To those who think good, speak good, and do good, And not to those who think ill, speak ill, and do ill, Do I belong—suth Ahurā Mazaḍā)

(Z. Yasna, 10-16, T.H.R., p 98)

Compare the Upanishad verse

Eshā daivī vāg anu-vadati stanayitnur, da-da-dā iti,— dāmyata-datta-dayadhvam. (U.)

(Heaven, with voice of thunder, counsels us Da-dā-dā '—Do deny your lower self, Do deeds of charity, and do take rath On all the weak and frail and innocent.)

Thus does the quality of every civilization depend upon its working out of the threefold principles of its religion.¹

Educationists in particular should always bear in mind the fact that the pupil is a unity of intellect, emotion, and physical body, and that that education only is good which informs the intellect with true and useful, cultural as well as vocational, knowledge, disciplines the emotions and the will into a

Various religious and sects, philosophies and schools, civilisations and enochs, emphasize various aspects, facets, parts of the same One Universal Way and Life and Truth, though all necessarily expound, implicitly, if not explicitly, all the aspects, for these are all inseparable. Thus, one emphasises knowledge more another. devotion, another, action, one stresses (comparatively changeless) Rest, another changeful effort, Evolution, progress, another, cyclicity and periodical balancing. one, the Shiva-aspect of the Absolute, Peace, repose, abstention from restlesaness, another, the Shakti-aspect of the same, Power, Libido, Elan Vital, another the inclusion of the latter within the former, one more prominently embodies and expresses Law and Order, another, Beauty, Music, Fine Arts generally, another Trade, Enterprise, Colonial activity, another, Martial ardour. Which religion or civilisation expresses and embodies which aspect most-opinion as to this will, again, at least partly depend upon the personality of each observer. Thus, one person may think Buddhism mainly philosophical, rationalist, Intellectual, another as compassionate, benevolent, philanthropic, bence Emotional; another as renunciant of comforts for the bhikshus themselves, but ministrant towards the general public, hence Actional strong, fine, righteous character, and trains the body into hardy health, active strength, handsome shape and occupational skill

This trinity is good, nay, very necessary, for educationists to bear in mind for another vital purpose also, if the indications in the old books be right In modern educational theory and practice, while, no doubt, some valuable additions have been made, in the way of tests of degrees and kinds of untelligence. attention does not seem to have been equally given to the testing of kinds of temperaments, se, whether the element of knowledge predominates in the pupil, or of action, or of desire Yet without such testing, the secret of the discovery of the vocational aptitude of the student, and of appropriate education and subsequent proper fitting into a society, is not likely to be found.1 Expert details too often swamp vital principles, in science as well as in religion. So, the wise priest, minister of soul and keeper of conscience will discriminately guide each parishioner along the way of either works, or devotion, or knowledge, according to his inner requirement. So, the wise physician, minister of body, will prescribe only after ascertaining the patient's temperament, constitutional peculiarity, personal idiosyncracy, diathesis.

¹ For fuller exposition of this point, the reader may see The Science of Social Organization, vol II, pp. 682-744 and III, pp. 745-766.

CHAPTER II

1

WAY OF KNOWLEDGE, I.B. THE INTELLECTUAL CONSTITUENT OF RELIGION

Haqëyaq, basic 'truths', Daqëyaq, 'deep' things, Mārifāt, 'knowledges,' A'gāyad, Way of Know-'beliefs', which form the object of Tedde the Inana-kanda of Religion, are but few Nav. there is but one ultimate Truth Errors are numberless. There is but one straight line, the shortest distance between two points Curved lines between them are beyond count. All that is true and right in knowledge, in feeling, in conduct, is but corollary of the one Truth. The whole of geometry is pre-contained in the definitions, postulates, axioms. A Samskrt verse says that the whole of arithmetic is contained in the Rule of Three.

Sarvam trai-rāshikam pātī.

And the whole of religion, philosophy, science, is contained in the 'Rule of Three' also, the Trimity-in-Unity, God-Nature-Man. God includes Nature and Man

1. Gop

The one basic Truth of truths is that Man is in essence one with God, that Nature is God's Nature. the unchanging Self's ever-changing garment, that the meaning and purpose of life is that God has forgotten himself into man, and man should remember himself into God again; that Spirit has entered into, put on body of, more and more dense Matter. along the Path of Pra-vrtts, (Pursuit of senseobjects, Av-āroha, Qaus-1-Nasāl, Arc of Descent), and has to rise again to It-Self along the Path of NI-vrtti, (Renunciation, A-roba, Qaus-1-Urus. Arc of Ascent), that Allah, Param-Atma, Universal Self, has individualised It-Self, has superimposed upon Its true Pure Selfness (or Ownness-One-ness, Pure Being, That-ness, Tat-tvam, Thingin-Itself. Self-in-Itself. Pure Identity. A'ymiyat-i, haqiqi, Shuddha-advartam), an illusive Supposititious Other-ness, (False Hetereity, Pure Nothing. Asat-tyam, Gharryat-s-étabari, Mithyastarata); that Brahma, (Param-Atma, Khudā-s-murakkab, 'All-including God') has imagined Itself by Māyāvic Will-and-Imagination, (Kāma-Sankalpa, Shuyānāt), into Jīva, (Jīvā t m ā, Khudā-s-muoyyan, 'particularısed god'), and has to realise Itself as Universal Self again. All religions state this Truth, in different ways. They also say that it is very simple, yet very difficult, too, to realize—because we are too strongly interested yet in selfish 'errors', and do not wish to turn to the un-selfish Truth of the All-One-Self Impism knows the descent and re-ascent of the Spirit as samiti and gupti, sanchara and prati-sanchara, ava-sarpinī and ut-sarpinī; Christianity, as Fall and Redemption, Sin and Salvation. Death and Resurrection; Süfism, as safar-ul-Haq and safar-ul-a'bd, qaus-1-nucul and qaus-1-urily, fisal and wisal, Vedist systems of philosophy, as bandha and moksha. Ihā and upa-rama, a-vidyā and vidyā, vyut-ţhāna andni-rodha, abhy-udaya and nis-shréyasa, sarga and apayarga, klesha and sysrūpa-pratishtihā, pra-sava and prațipra-sava, lila and karvalya, Buddhism uses many terms in common with Védism; western ethics and psychology might call the pair, 'pursuit and renunciation' or 'retirement'; and science, involution and evolution (of Spirit into and out of Matter)', or 'integration and disintegration or dissolution (of material form)' A Chinese proverb says: "Heaven's way always goes round"; (Lin Yutang, My Country and my People, p. 189).

As Stiffs say -

Chist dunyā? Az Khudā ghāfil shudan, Nau ke mā'sh o nugrah o farzand o zan.

124 SMALL SELF HIDES GREAT SELF [CH. II

Na gum shud ke rüy-ash ze dunyā be-tāft, Ke gum-gashtaé Khwésh rā bāz yāft Na koi pardā hai Us-ke dar par, Na Rüye Raushan naqāb mén hai, Tu āp apnī khudī se, ai dil !, Hijāb mén hai, hijāb mén hai! (S.)

(The 'world' is but forgetfulness of God; It is not spouse and child, silver and gold. Who from this world did turn his face away, He was not lost, indeed, instead, he found His long-forgotten and lost Self again. No bar guards His palace-gateway, No veil screens His Face of Light—Thou, my heart!, by thine own self-ness, Art enwrapped in darkest night.)

Lao-tse says.

"Knowing the Eternal means enlightenment, not knowing the Eternal causes passions to arise, and that is evil" (Tao te-king)

Krshna says the same:

Manushyānām sahasréshu
kashchid yatatı siddhayé, Yatatām cha sahasrānām kashchin mām vétţi tattvatah.
Shraḍḍhā-mayo-ayam purushah, yo yaţ-shraḍḍhah sa éva sah. (G.)

(One here, one there, from among myriads, setteth Forth on the quest of Me, hidden in all ! And, of the few that seek, fewer find Me; For many do not seek Me steadfastly. But he who seeketh Me with heart resolved, He surely findeth Me, his inmost Self!)

Ye cannot serve God and Mammon both . . . Strait is the gate that leadeth unto Life, And lew there be that find it . . . Few are chosen though many come (B.)

Ham Khudā khwāhī was ham dunyā-1-dūn; In khayāl-ast o muhāl-ast o junün! (S.)

(That thou shouldst seek for God and this world too, Vain is the wish, futile insanity i)

Samsāra-vāsanā-yuktam mano baḍdham vidur-budhāh, Ţad-éva vāsanā-tyaktam muktam iti abhi-dhī-yata. (U.)

(Bound by mundane desire, the mind is bound; Freed from that same desire, Spirit is free.)

But,

"If ye attain to God and His kingdom of rightcoursess, all things else shall be added unto you" (B)

126 for they seek half-heartedly [ch. ii

Etad éva viditvä ţu yo yad ichchhati tasya taţ. (U.) (Knowing the Truth, whate'er ye wish ye find.)

Khudā ko pāyā to kyā na pāyā,
Sabhī milā jo milā Khudā hai '
Zarā ṭtī soch-ai, kabhī bhi Khāliq
Se Us-ki khilqat huī juḍā hai ?
Sabhī to Main hūn, sabhī to Mérā,
Tuhī hai Khāliq, ṭujbī men khilqaṭ,
Khayāl-i-Khāyal, ṭuhī Khudā hai ' (Q.)

(If ye find God, then ye have found all things!

Just think! if the Creator thou dost find,

Can His creation still remain behind?

Is the One ever separate from the Other?

'Indeed I am this All, All This is Mine!—

This Word resoundeth ever from within!

Thou art Thy-Self the Thinker, and this world

But Thine own Thought, and God but thou thy-Self!)

The greatness of learning which constitutes expert medical science is very imposing and commands great respect. The simple counsel to use pure air, pure drink, pure food, does not. Yet, at the best, the former can only cure disease, and, at the worst, creates new diseases. The latter will promote health and prevent disease always. But pure air, pure drink, pure food, simple though they be, are not easy to obtain under artificial conditions of life.

So, as religions say, man having amerged from God, wanders round and round for long before he thinks of going back again to "God who is our home," nay, who is our very Self And knowledge, of many kinds, is needed before we can 'recognise' God, the God 'within'. Muhammad said: "He dieth not who giveth his life to learning. (H.) Ali said: "Philosophy is the lost sheep of the faithful: take it up again, even if from the infidel": (BRB. IX, 878).

Bé-ilm na tawān Khudā rā shinākht (S., SIPL) (Without right learning God may not be known.)

That Védānta, crown of Véda, 'final knowledge.' teaches this, is well known But Christian Scriptures also say to men:

"Behold, the man has become as one of us." (B, Genesis) "I have said, ye are gods; and all of you are children of the most High." (B., Psalms)

"Is it not written in your laws, 'I said, ye are gods'?... I am the son of God. (B., John.) Behold, the Kingdom of God is within you... Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and the Spirit of God dwelleth in you?... He is not far from every one of as. For in him we live and move and have our being... We are the offspring of God... The Spirit of God dwelleth in you... God is One... His Spirit in the inner man...

One God and Father of all, who is above all and through all and in you all." (B.)

Brahmanah kosho-ası. (Tast Up)
(Thou art the sheath, the tenement, of God Abiding-place and treasure-house of Brahm'.)
Maţ-ţah para-taram Na Anyat kin-chiḍ asti, Dhanan-jaya¹ (G.)
(There is No-Other-thing-than-I, in truth')¹

The word 'Upanishat', which designates the last portion of Véda, wherein final knowledge is imparted to the earnest seeker only, etymologically means, "sitting very close to the teacher," who solemnly whispers sacred secret knowledge into the ear of ardent, earnest, intense listener; for unless listened to with reverent and rapt mind, the 'psychic miracle' of spiritual conversion will not occur, the words will fail to convey their profound significance, even if trumpeted forth from tower-tops."

For metaphysical significance of 'I-Not-Another's reader may look into present writer's Science of Peace, or Science of the Self, if he wishes to pursue subject further.

Speaking in, and listening to, a whisper, necessitates strong concentration of intellectual attention and emotional earnestness, trumpeting cheapens the most valuable. Buddha, shortly before leaving the body of flash, said to his beloved and most faithful disciple, Ananda I have preached the truth without making distinction of esoteric and exoteric The Tatha gata has no such thing as the closed fist, baddha-muahti, of teachers who keep somethings back. How is this to be reconciled with the widespread belief between sacred and profane, occult and unhidden, arcane and open secret, mystery and public knowledge? Buddha himself is also reported to have said, on another occasion, to his gathered disciples: As is one leaf to the rest of the total foliage of a tree. such is the little that I have told you to that which I have not told'. Reconciliation seems to be this. So far as Meta-physical Truth, Védanta, is concerned. (and it is the deepest and highest Truth), the secrecy. mystery, estoricism, has only in the student's own mabilty to face and grasp it But there are facts and laws of suber physical science and art, as there are of physical land super-physical and physical shade off into each other), which are sought, by their knowers, to be kept secret, in order to avoid frightful misuse, witness, the two world-wars, and international excitement over closely guarded secrets of atom-bomb and hydrogen-bomb, now in the possession of USA, British, and Russian scientists.

Purport of the Arabic-Persian phrase, sim-i-sīnah, 'knowledge which is passed from beart to heart,' 'doctrine of the heart,' is the same '

'In all times and climes, within the fold of every religion, "a group here, a group there, has gathered together with no other motive than that of gaining a greater hold on the spiritual life than was prevalent in the ordinary circles of the people. They seem to have lived on the borderland of an unusual ecstasy, experiencing extraordinary invasions of the Divine, hearing mystic sounds and seeing mystic visions. "Among the Jewa the 'Essenes' were such They "were in possession the 'Essenes' were such They "were in possession fallowship, amounting to a kind of communism.", were fellowship, amounting to a kind of communism.", were Quran also says.

Wa fi anfusekum a fa-lä-tubserün. (2)

(I am in your own souls! Why see ye not? In every breath of yours am I, but ye Are blind without true eye, and see Me not?

apart "from the general people by reason of their sanctity", were devoted "to the knowledge of the existence of God and the beguning of all things", loved "allegorical interpretation" "Silence or secrety was gorical interpretation" frequently employed by the early Rabbis in their mystical exegesis of Scripture A typical illustration is the following, from Midrash Rabba (a Hebrew commentary) The sage said this in a whisher on Genesis, iii (B) . The other asked, Why dost thou tell this in a whisper, seeing that it is clearly taught in a scriptural verse? The sage replied, Just as I have myself had it whispered unto me, even so have I whispered it unto thee I. Abelson, Jewish Mysticism, (1913), 18-23 The meak, the pure in heart, the earnestly and intensely seeking, alone can see God, not the flupant, the noisy, the disputations. The laws of God's Nature are written on Nature's face, but it takes whole lifetimes of intense research by the ablest scientists to decipher one now, one again. Only the receptive open mind can receive. Even the Sun's light cannot come in through closed windows. Pre-occupied, pre-judiced, minds, closed by vibrant remetant active 'other'-ward, 'matter'-ward, thoughts, cannot perceive things of the Spirit.

Incidentally, it may be noted that derivation and meaning of the word 'Essenes' are in doubt; see Enc. Brit, art 'Essenes'. 'Buddhist influence' is mentioned, also 'gymno-sophists', but no western scholar seems to have thought of 'san-nyasi-s' in this connection 'Gymno sophists' were met with, and some taken away

E. U. A. R] 'REALISATION' NOT IN 3RD PERSON 131 Sufis have sung:

Bā wujūdé ke muzhḍa-e térā 'nahuo aqrab', Safahe Masahaf pai likhā ṭhā, mujhe mā'lūm na thā

(Although the great glad news of Thee is writ Plainly upon the Qurān's holy page: 'Nearer am I to thee than thy throat-vein'— Mine eyes, blinded with selfishness, saw not!)

The well known Kalemā of faith, Māhā-vākya, 'great word', Logos-word, of Islām, is in terms of the third person, vis,

Lā ilāh il-Allāh. (Q)

(There is no god but God.)

also, by Alexander, one named Kalanos, (Kalyāṇa) is specifically mentioned by Greek writers. The word seems compounded of 'gymnast' and 'sophist', meaning hatha-yogī plus rāja-yogī, 'holy men' versed in various bodily as well as mental disciplines. Jesus is said to have lived and studied among the Essenes. Graymuos means 'naked', gymnastics are practised everywhere with a minimum of clothing. Hatha-yogi-s perform their special 'exercises' (which exercise every muscle of the body, and many of which have now been taken over by enterprising U.S. Americans to their country), with only a tight loin-cloth. There are also digambara-s and parama-hamsa-s who discard even that.

132 'REALISATION' IN FIRST PERSON [CH. IE

Sūfis declare that it is meant only for younger souls who are not yet ready for the inner teaching; and that the real kalemā is in terms of the first person:

Wa mā arsalnā min qablikā mir rasūlin illā nūhi ilaihé annahu—
'Inni An-Allāhu lā ilābā illā Anā' (Q.)
(The prophets, all, that ever have been sent,
Have been so sent by Me, the Supreme Self,
For but one purpose, namely, that they teach,
That 'Men should serve the Supreme Self Al-one'.
That 'Verily the I, the Self, am God;
None Other than the Supreme Self is God'.)
Lā ziḍḍ-i-lah; lā sharīk-i lah. (Arab, sayings)
(There is no opposite to Him; there is no sharer
With Him; there is, indeed, None Else than He)

As commonly recited by the ordinary Muslim, the full kalemā is Lā ilāh il-Allāh, wa Muhammadin ar-Rasūl-Allāh. Some maulavis say that the first half is the essential half, and whoever believes in it is a Muslim; while he who believes in the second half of it also, vis, 'Muhammad is the prophet of God', he is a momin (bā-īmān, 'believer in the prophet,' one of the faithful to the prophet.') Also, the second part emphasises the fact that Muhammad is only a messenger of God, and is not God himself, so that no person may make the great mistake of substituting him for God, or raising him above God, as followers of b hak †1-cults are so apt to do. 10, raise the immediate object of devotion above even the Almighty. See pp. 80-81 supra.

Aham éva, Na Mat-to- (A) nyad— Iti buddhyaddhyam anjasā (Bh.)

('I, only I, Naught-Else-than-I at all'— This is the whole truth, understand it well)

Iti té jüänam äkhyätam guhyäd guhya-taram Mayä;
Sarva-guhya-tamam bbüyah
shrnu Mé paramam vachah;
'Man-manä bhava, Mad-bhakto,
Mad-yäji, Mäm namas-kuru;
Mäm-éva éshyası, satyam té
prati-jäné, priy-osi Mé,
Sarva-dharman pari-tyajya
Mäm Ekam sharanam vraja;
Aham tväm sarva-päpébhyo mokshayishyämi; mä shuchah! (G.)

(The Ancient Wisdom have I taught to thee,
Highest, most secret, sacred, yet again,
Hear thou the secret-most of mysteries,
The Final Word of all that 'I' can speak:
Place thy whole mind in Me, the Supreme Self,
And place Me, in thy mind, (and Nothing-Else);
Love Me, the Universal I, alone;
Perform all acts as sacrifice to Me,
- As Duty done for All-pervading Self;
Make salutation and submission, full,
Unqualified, of all thy heart and will,

To Me, the Self in Whom all selves unite.

Give up all other ways Come unto Me.

'I' is the one sole Reinge of all beings

The 'I' will save and salve thee from all sins,

All sorrows, prisonments of finitude,

By giving thee Its own Infinity.)

This is the one teaching of all prophets, rshis. nabis, rasilis, avatāras, messiahs It is given to carnest and seeking souls, akl-1-dil. 'the men of heart, genuine hermits, anchorites, bhikshus. faoirs, sannyāsis, durveshas, dīkshitas, initiates, miskins, to souls that are ready to receive. It is ilm-i-sind. 'doctrine of the heart,' 'of the spirit.' dagayaq, esoteric doctrine of the Mysteries. Para-Vidya, 'Highest Knowledge,' rahasya, guhya, gupța, 'Secret,' ādhyāţmıka artha. 'spiritual meaning,' as it is variously named in Védic Scriptures Distinguished from this is ilm-1-safind. doctrine of the page', 'doctrine of the eye', 'the letter', a-parā-vidyā, 'lower knowledge' This latter only, as yet, younger souls, ahl-s-daul, 'men that seek worldly wealth,' shravakas, 'lay disciples,' upāsakas, grha-sthas, householders, ordinary family-men-and-women, can apprehend and utilise 1

In Christian writings, sometimes, 'prophets' are contrasted with 'priests', as in Islam, 'suff auliyas' with 'shara': mullas', and in Vaidika Dharma, jfian Ibhaktas with karma-kandis Jesus rebukad

"We speak wisdom among them that are perfect... To you is given to know the mysteries of the kingdom of God, but to them (the polla, the worldly-minded mass) it is not given... Therefore speak I and cursed the latter, whom he called 'lawyers', se., priests of the 'ritualistic law' "Woe unto you, lawyers i, for ye have taken away the key of knowledge, ye entered not in yourselves, and them that were entering in, ye hindered" (B., Luke, x1, 52). Buddha distinguished between true brahmanas and false self-styled brahmanas. (as indeed does Manu-Smrts), gave out, to the public. some of the ancient secret wisdom; and thus aroused their hostility Among Christians it is believed that "the Apocalypse gives the key to the divine Gnosis, which is the same in all ages, and superior to all faiths and philosophies-that secret science which is in reality secret only because it is hidden and locked in the inner nature of every man . . and none but himself can turn the key "] M Pryse, The Apocalypse Unsealed, p. 5. Muhammad said "I am the city (of occult knowledge), and All is the gate into it " Among Mushim Stiffs, the tradition is that Ali first declared to the 'select', who were qualified and ready for it, this Ancient Wisdom, Ilm.-Rühänt, Tasawwif, Divys.-j fi z n a, 'Theosophy' proper, 'God-Wisdom', Soul-Science', 'Divine Knowledge ', Spiritual Science'. H. P. Blavatsky's Isis Unveiled and The Secret Doctrine contain a vast amount of astonishing information and profound instruction on the whole subject, but they are not easy reading. This Occult Science, Gupta-Vidy E, Ilm-1-Sinz, Ancient Wisdom, had to be kept secret, for long, (and the danger 18 not over yet), because, as Jesus said "Give not that which is holy unto the dogs, neither cast ye your pearls before swine, lest they trample them under their feet, and turn again and rend you"; (B, Matthew, vii 8) Such is the Law of Duality, God proposes, Satan opposes, and often disposes to them in parables and allegories, because, they, seeing, see not, and hearing, they hear not, neither do they understand "(B, Mat. xiii. 11, 13) (see pp. 102, 128 st seq., supra)

"Hear ye indeed, but understand not, and see indeed, but perceive not" (B., Isaiah, vi 9.)

Ashcharya-vat pashyati kashchid Énam, Ashcharya-vat cha Enam anyah shrnoti, Ashcharya-vad vadati tathā éva cha anyah, Shrutvā api Enam véda na cha éva kashchit (G)

(Men see, and hear, and speak of It also, But seeing, hearing, speaking, they see not; They simply wonder, and not understand)

Shravanto api na shravanti, jananto api na janaté,
Pashyanto api na pashyanti;
Pashyanti jijana-chakshushah. (U)

. (Hearing, they hear not; knowing, they know not, Seeing, they see not; the enlightened ones Alone do see with wisdom-lumin-ed eyes.)

Truly the Self is sun-clear, ever near, nay nearest of all, is our very Self, yet we see It not !

As Stifts say:

Ghāyab jo ho Khuḍā sé, ālam hai us ko hū kā, Apāniyat hai jis méb, mauḍā nahīh hai ţū kā Zāhidé gum-rāh ké main kis tarah ham-rāh hūn ; Woh kahé Allāh hai, au main Kahūn Allāh hūn ! (S.)

(He who is absent far away from God—
His heart can only say. 'God is', somewhere;
He who has found the Loved One in him-Self—
'For him God is not He, nor Thou, but I.
How may I take for guide upon the Way
One who himself away from it doth stray?
He is content to say "God is", while I Am desolate till I 'God am' can say!)

 This is only an expanded and more poetical version of the Samskri verse:

Astı Brahma ıtı chéd véda, paroksham jüänam éva ţat,
Asmi Brahma ıţı chéd véda, aparoksham taţ tu kath yaté (U)

(Who says only 'God is '—he sees a screen, He who can say 'God am '—he, sure, hath seen)

A gāthā of Zarathustra enjoins, in words which are equivalent to the Quranic Kalemā

Mazadāo sakhāré mairisto (Z, Gāthā, 29 4)

(The Great God only is to be adored)

Skt Mahā-dhāh, Mahā-dévah, ékalah, Kévalah, Sakri, sadā, smartavyah, 'the Great All-Wise Creator, the Great God, One and only, once for all, always, should be remembered, borne in mind'.

As Upanishats say:

Āţmā éva are shroţavyo, mantavyo, nididhyāsiţavyah.

, ... Na-Anyah ato astı vıjñātā. (U)

(The Self Alone is to be pondered on; None Else is there who knows or should be known.)

With reference to the distinction between paroks ha and a-paroksha, indirect knowledge and direct knowledge, Arabian philosophers have said.

Al timo ilmān, matbū'un wa masmū'; lā yan-fa al-masmū' ezā iam yakum il maṭbū'. (Phil: maxim.)

(Knowledge is of two kinds, that which is heard, And that which is felt direct in the heart; The heard yields not full fruit until it comes Home to the soul in own experience) Har ke ra dar jan Khuda bi-nihad mahak Har yaqin ra baz danad u ze shak (S) (A touchstone God hath placed in every heart; It separates, with surety, False from True) Al ilmu ilman, ilm-ul-abdan wa ilm-ul-adyan (H.) (Science is dual—science physical, And science spiritual, where alone Are firm faiths, based on knowledge, to be found.) "The Great God has conferred a normal sense

even on the lowiest people." (C. Shu-kang)

The Christian world knows this touchstone as Conscience, Intuition, Inner Monitor, the still small Voice of God, etc. Vaidika (now called Hindū, or, better, Sanātana or Ārya) Dharma refers to it as Antar-yāmī, 'Inner Monitor, Watcher, Ruler, Endo-censor', and in such expressions as:

Hṛḍayéna abhy-anu-jñātah; Manah-pūtam samā-cha-rét; Svasya cha priyam Āṭmanah, Paritosho antar-Āṭmanah; Svasya éva antara-Pūrushah; Āṭmanah ṭushtir-éva cha; Kshéṭra-jño na abhi-shankaṭé; Yamo... dévo.. hṛḍi sṭhṭah; Ṭaṭ sarvam ācharéd, yukto, yaṭra vā asya raméṭ manah (M.)

Satām hi sandéha-padeshu vastushu Pramānam antah-karana-pra-vṛttayah.

(KILI-DISA, Shakuntalā)

(That which the 'Heart' permits; which the 'Soul' likes:

The 'God within' approves; the 'Mind' holds pure;

Th' 'Eternal Witness' sees as free from doubt, Without misgiving, as straight-forward course; 'Which brings pure satisfaction to the 'Self'; Which the good mind rejoices in, while doing, That is the course to follow, for good men.

In matters wrapped in doubt, 'to do or not'— The 'Inner Organ' of the good is guide)

Sākshinam baţa kalyānam Aţmānam ava-manyasé!...

Na hṛṭ-shayam véṭsı Munım Purānam!... Hṛḍı sṭhıṭah karma-sākshī Kshétra-jño na asya tushyatı,

Ţam Yamah pāpa-karmānam nir-bharţsayatı pūrusham.

(Mbh, Adi-parva, ch. 98.)

(Why know'st thou not the witness in thy heart? Why slightest thou that Blessed Guide Within? He who ignores and does not satisfy, But disobeys, the One, auspicious, pure, Perpetual 'Inner Witness', the 'Own-Self', The 'Ancient Sage', all-knowing, who abides In every heart, recording every act, Him Yama doth award dire punishment.)

Istafteh qalab-ak. (H)

(Question your heart)

Na Yamam Yama iti-šhuh, Āţmā vai Yama uchyaţć.

Āṭmā sam-yamito yéna, Yamah ṭasya karoti kim, Yamo Vaivasvato dévo, yah ṭava-ésha hrḍi sṭhiṭah Téna chéd a-vivādas-té, mā Gangām, mā Kurūn gamah. (Mbh., M, viii. 92).

(Yama, the outer god, is but a name; The One Self, Inner 'Ruler', is true Yama; He who hath satisfied that Inner God,

E.U.A.R.] 'HEED THY INNER HIGHER SELF' 141

That Higher Self, by ruling his small self, No outer Yama can touch him at all. Consult thine own heart, if thou art in doubt.)

"In every heart, there dwelleth a Sajin (Sage); only man will not steadfastly believe it—therefore hath the whole remained buried." (WANG-YANG-MING) ¹ (Nowhere can any cover up his sin.

Thy Self in thee, man , knows what's true, what's false.

Indeed, my friend!, thou scorn'st the nobler Self, Thinking to hide the evil self in thee

From Self who witnessed it. Thus he who has

The Self as Master, let him walk with heed.)

(Bud.) 2

Our knowledge is obviously of two sorts, (1) that derived from personal first-hand experience, a very small portion, but the most certain, and (2) that based on the testimony of others, far the larger portion. In Samskri philosophy, the two are called praiy-aksha' immediately before the senses', directly cognised,' and shab da or agama, that

¹ Quoted from Confucian Laotsian writings of Wang-Yang-Ming, "the Chinese father of Japanese philosophy", by Jung, Psychological Types, 269.

[&]quot;Anguttara Nikāya quoted, in translation, by Mrs. Rhys Davids, Buddhism, p. 71 (H U L, new edn. 1934).

which has been described in 'words' by, has 'come' from, others, in Arabic-Persian, matbū' (taba', inner nature) and masmū' (sama', hearing), also, with a slight difference, mā'qulāt (aql, intelligence, intuition), and manqūlāt (naql, copy, passing on from one to another), in European, direct and traditional, first-hand and second-hand

L'Illähé al-annāsı hujjataın, zähıratun wa bātınah, hujjat-uz-zāhıra he-al-ambıyā w-ar-rasūl, hujjaţul-bātına he-al-u'qūl (Arab. philosophical maxims)

(Two proofs are there of Deity, for men; The outer is the prophets' witnessing, The inner is our own rational mind.)

In the case of one's own intelligence and praty-aksha or direct observation, again, two kinds (or rather degrees) are recognised by all 'Christians speak of intellection and instinctive perception or intuition, Vaidikas, of sādhārana-jāāna, (ordinary knowledge) and yoga-ja-jāāna, samādhi-ja-jāāna, prāţibha-jāāna (knowledge born of yoga, or samādhi, or prāti-bhā), Musalmāns, of ilm-t-ladunnī or ilm-i-wahbī or -wajdānī or-ilhāmī or -kashfā or -ishrāqī or -dīnī or -makāshifā, is, sudden, inspirational, illuminational, (risen like the Sun, by faith, by clear vision), and ilm-t-kasābī or

-ıktīsābī or -nazārī or -ıstıdlālī or maskhāı, (ı.e., labored, argumentative, inferential, pedestrian)

All kinds of cognition, as also of desire and of action meet and merge in the Self. It is Self-luminous and Illuminator of all others. It senses It-Self, perceives It-Self, infers It-Self, intuites It-Self, desires and loves and lives It-Self, 'acts,' wills, maintains, asserts It-Self, and also all things-other-than-Self—eternally

The well-known Sūfī exclamations, An-al-Haq, Haq-tu-ī, Qalab-ul-insān bait-ui-Rahmān, are exact equivalents of the Upanishat utterances, Aham Brahma, Tatţvam ası, Esha mé Aţmā antar-hrdayé, Hrdi ayam tasmād hrda-yam; 'I am the True, the Real, Brahma; That thou art, too; the heart of man is the abode of God'; and of the Biblical declaration. "Ye are the temple of God." Khalīfā Ali declared:

Qalab-ıl-momın a'rsh-Illāhī

(The heart of him who knows, and so believes With full assurance, is the throne of God.)

Ye are the living temple of God . Ye are Gods. (B)

Christ said "I and my Father are one" The Old Testament of the Jewish faith, especially the Book of Isaiah, also utters this same great kalemā, this mahā-vākya, logion, ten times and more, viz.,

"I am (i.e., the Self 1s) God and there is None-Else"

This is the Hebrew form of the Arabic Kalemā-s, Lā-tlāh il Allāh and Inns an Allāhu, lā ilāhā illā Anā, 'There is no god other than Allāhu, lā ilāhā illā Anā, 'There is no God other than Allāh', and 'Verily I am (s.s., is) God, there is no God but (the) I', and also the Zoroastrian logion, 'Mazadāo sakhāre mainsto', 'Mazadāo alone is to be always ever contemplated and adored' For an attempt at a philosophical exposition of the full significance of this Mahā-vākya, 'Aham-Eṭaṭ-Na', see present writer's Saience of Peace and Pranava-Vāda, or Saience of the Sacred Word, or the briefer Saisnos of the Salf

Gangā Prasāda, The Fountain-Head of Religion, p 12, says that Zoroastrianism has a formula, "N-isi Ezed magar Yazdān", which means exactly the same as "Lā ilāh il-Allāh".

A superphysical supplement to the metaphysical fact, that the Supreme Judge is within us as our Inmost Universal Self, is to be found in an old Puräna verse, quoted in a commentary (unpublished) entitled Paramäriha-Prapä on Griä by Paivajiia Suri, which was mentioned to me by a Pandit, now no more

Yamasya düğası cha, gapāb Shivasya,
Nārāyanasya api tathā éva pārshadāh,
Sūryasya rashmin avalambya sarvē,
Lokān niyachchban (tah) vicharanti sarvadā
(The myrmidous of Yama, Shiva's guards,
And messengers of Vishnu, ever flash
Along the solar rays, to-fro, beholding,
Adjusting, regulating, all that happens,
Within the Realm of Our Lord the Sun)

A mantra of Rg Véda elso says A krehnéna rajasa vartamanah, Niyojayan Amriam mart(1)yam cha,

E U A R] "WE KNOW THEE AS SUPREME" 145

Zoroastrian scriptural utterances, with the same significance, are:

Ajém tol āish pouruyo fravolvidé; vispéng anyéng manyéush spasyā dvaéshanghā Na échīm tém anyém Yūshmad vaédā Tém né vasnäish ärmaitoish mimaghio. Yé anméni Mazadão sravi Ahuro. Paré vão vîspāîsh paré vaokhémā.

(Z., Gäthäs, 44.11; 45.10; 34.5)

(Thee only do I know to be Supreme! All others I dismiss from this my mind! I know Him to be none except Thy-Self! He who is known as Ahurā-Mazadā-With duteous deeds we worship Him alone. We know Thee as Supreme above all lives.)

That the teachings of Buddhism and Jainism, on this essential point, are identical with those of Hiranmayéna Savitā rathéna Dévo yātı bhuyanāni pashyan.

(Along the dark-blue skies Our God the Sun Goes circling ever on His Car of Gold. Ordaining and compelling into Order All beings, mortal and immortal in His Realm)

Consider here the wonders of the photographic pictures which are being radiated away along light-rays every moment to infinite distances, and the Law of Action and Reaction, on physical as well as moral plane More on the subject will be found in The Science of Peace

Védānta, goes almost without saying, for those who do not revel in discovering minute differences. In one of his adānas (shuttahiyāt, as Sūūs call them, or, in Védic literature, yog-ārūdh-oktis), ecstatic utterances of ever-flowing joy joy of realization of identity with the Supreme Self of all—Buddha, arising from samādhi-trance, uses words which are the words of Upanishats, but in their Pālī form

Védānţa-gū, vushita-brahma-chariyo, dharména sa Brāhmano Brahma-vādam vadéyya (Udāna)

(He who successfully fulfils his vow

Of continence in body and in mind,

And has achieved the final knowledge, he

Acquires the right, high Brahma to declare

To others who would walk the Path, he may Give to himself the name of Brāhmana)

On another occasion, he exclaims 'I, O priests!, am Brahma, Great Brahma, the Supreme Being, Unsurpassed, Perceiver of all things, Controller, Lord of All, Maker, Fashioner, Chief, Victor, Ruler, Father, of all beings who have been and are to be.' (Kévatta Suita of Diggha Nikāya, Buddhism in Translations, p 311, BB, p 115)

In a similar mood of exaltation, Ashtāvakra, long before Buddha, cried out Aho Aham! namo Mahyam!, and, long afterward, Bāyazīd Bustāmī re-echoed him, Subhāns ma āzama shānī, 'How wonderful am I', Salutation unto Me', How great is My glory' Upanishats reiterate, overand over again, Aham Brahma asmi, Yas-tvam-asi So-(A) ham-asmi, Idam sarvam asi, Aham éva Idam Sarvam, I am the Infinite; What thou art that same am I, Thou art all This, I am all This'. I, the 'I', the Self, 'Principle of Consciousness', of Self-Existence, of 'I am', is the basis, cause, of all 'This' too, of all this Not-Self, Other-than-I, of all the Object-World, the whole World-Process

Ormand Yasht, scripture of Zoroastrianism, declares, "My first name is Ahms, (Samskyt, Asmi, 'I am'); the last is Ahms yad Ahms, I am that I am" Yedic Shatapatha Brāhmana has the same significant words, Yo-ham asmi so-smi, 'I am what I am', i.e., 'I am' ever the Changeless One, ever the same Self, at the end as at the beginning, for 'I have', i.e., the 'I' has, no beginning and no end Bible too says "I am that I am. . . I am hath sent me unto you" (Rxodus). The words "I am hath sent me" are very note-worthy " The sayings of Védānta and Tasawwuf are so similar as

¹ Kaushīţakı Up , i 6

[&]quot;Then spoke Zarathushtra Tell me, O pure Abura-Mazdā, the name which is thy greatest, best, fairest, most efficacious for prayer. Answered Abura-Mazdā My Trst name is Abmi, My twentieth name is Abmi Yad Abmi", Hang's Essays on the Pārsis, 195 "In the Hurmuzd-Yasht of the Zend-avestā, Abura-Mazdāo

148 WHY SEEK YE WHAT WAS NEVER LOST! [CH. II to be almost indistinguishable when translated into a third language. Thus:

(O pilgrims for the Shrine! Where go ye, where? Come back! come back! The Beloved is here! His presence all your neighbourhood doth bless! Why will ye wander in the wilderness! Ye who are seeking God! Yourselves are He! Ye need not search! He is Ye, verily! Why will ye seek for what was never lost? There is Naught-Else-than-Ye! Be not doubt-tost!)

(The wise see in their heart the face of God, And not in images of stone and clod! Who in themselves, alas!, can see Him not, They seek to find Him in some outer spot.)

enumerates twenty of his names. The first is Ahmi (Sixt., Asmi), 'I am,' The last is Ahmi Yad Ahmi (Sixt., Asmi), 'I am,' The last is Ahmi Yad Ahmi (Sixt., Asmi Yad Asmi, Yo-smi so-smi, Yo-ham So-bam, 'I am what I am'). Both of these phrases are also names of Jehovah in the Bible And God said unto Moses, 'I am that I am', Rhyeh ashar yehyeh And he said, 'Thus shalt thou say unto the children of Israel I am hath sent me unto you'" (Ganga Prasad, The Fountain-Head of Religion, p 47.) "In the Egyptian Book of the Dead, 'I am he who I am' is applied to a god", (M. Yesrsley, The Story of the Bible, p 79). Jesus says "Before Abraham was, I am", (B.), which can mean only that 'I am', the Self, the Principle of Consciousness, was before Abraham' and everything Else.

EU A.R.] YOUR BELOVED IS IN YOUR ARMS! 149

The originals of this translation are.

Aı Qaum ba haji rafţah kujā éd, kujā éd l Mā'shūq hamīn jā-st, bi-āyéd, bi-āyéd! Mā'shūqe-to, hamsāya-to, dīwār ba diwār, Dar bādiyah sar-gashtah cherā éd, cherā éd! Ānān ke ṭalab gār-i-Khudā éd, Khudā éd! Hājat ba ṭalab n-īst, shumā éd, shumā-éd! Chīzé ke na gardīd gum az bahre che jojéd? Kas ghair-i-shumā n-īst, kujā éd, kujā éd! (SHAMS TABREZ)

Shivam Atmani pashyanti, pratimāsu na yoginah, Atma-stham yé na pashyanti, tārthé mārganti tē Shivam!

(Sheva Purāna)

Sarvasya-ıva janasy-äsya
Vıshnuh abhı-antaré sthıţah ;
Ţam parı-tyajya té yäntı bahır-Vıshnum nar-āḍhamāh.

(Yoga Väsishtha, 5. 34. 26)

(The 'All-pervading' Self, 'Who bindeth all', 'Knits them together', bides in every heart—Who turn from Him, the Inmost Deity, Seeking outside, their eyes are yet thick-veiled)

Sarva-bhūţéshu yah pashyéd Bhagavad-bhāvam Āţmanah,

150 to doubt thee is to doubt my-self! [ch. ii

Bhūṭānı Bhagavaṭı Aṭmanı, asau Bhāgavaṭ-oṭtamah. (Bh)

(Whose 'in sees' Divinity everywhere, Godhead in every living thing, and all In God—he only is true devotee And servant of the Omni-present Lord.)

A'ın Hashi khud tu i, pas az to chün munkır shawam?

Hujjaté hasfi-é-Tu-st th hujjat-o-inkār-i-Mā i (Niyāz)

(When Thou, the whole of Being art Thy-Self, How can I be so dull as to deny Thee? To doubt thee is to doubt my-Self, indeed!)

The Upanishat-expression, Ekam eva A-dviffyam, "One—not a Second," is to be found in Bible (Ecclesiasates) also and is echoed in Tasawwuf exactly:

Har giyāhé ke bar samīn 10yad, Wahḍahü lā sharīk-1-lah goyaḍ (S)

(Each single blade of grass that sprouts from earth, Proclaims His word that 'I Al-One am He, There is No-Other anywhere than I,' That he, you, I are all One I, One Life)

The words of Zoroastrian Scriptures are

Na échim tém anyém Yüshmat vaédā

(Z Gāthā, xxxiv 7)

E. U. A. R.] CONSCIOUSNESS WAS NEVER BORN 151

(None Other do I know than Thee.)

Mazadão sakhāré mairisto (Z, Gāṭhā)

(Mazadā, the One Alone, we bear in mind)

That only is True, Real, Haq. Sat, Sure, Certain, which holds true and abides the same in all three times, past, present, future, and in all three spaces, behind, here, before, unchangingly. That which is not, but is imagined or said to be, as if it is, that is Unreal. That which at one time is and at another is not, or was not and now is, or is and will not be—is half-true and half-false. That which always is—such alone is True, Real, wholly. Naught-Else than I is such. I is I, in all times, all spaces, all conditions

"I am (is) the Lord, I change(s) not
(B, Malachi 3 6)

"Tao is unchanging, bath no name"
(Tao-te-king, BB, The Texts of Tao-ism, pt I, p 74.)

Māsa-abda-yuga-kalpéshu gat(a)-āgāmishu an-ékadbā, Na udéti, na astam éti éshā Samvid ékā Svayam-prabhā

(Pancha-dashi, 1 7.)

Samvido vyabhichāras-tu na éva drshto (a)stī karhi-chit, Yadı drshtah tadā drashtā shishtah Samvid-vapuh svayam
(Devi-Bhāg III. xxxii)

(In all the months, years, ages, eons, cycles, Past and to come, countless, infinitely, What doth not ever rise nor ever set Is this Self-lit Self-Consciousness al-one. Break of this Consciousness was never seen. If it was ever seen, then he who saw, The witness, he him-Self remains behind Embodied as that Self-same Consciousness.)

"I find my boy still hardly able to grasp the fact that there was a time when he did not exist, if I talk to him about the building of the Pyramids or some such topic, he always wants to know what he was doing then, and is merely puzzled when he is told that he did not exist" This is what Mr. Bertrand Russell writes of his son and himself in his book, On Education, p. 171. He is reputed to be a brilliant philosopher and also a great mathematician, yet he told the dear boy that he (the boy) "did not exist" a few years earlier The child's soul, his Self, knew better, as did Wordsworth, in his Ode to Immortality. Consciousness, Salfconsciousness, the Self simply cannot be conscious of a time when it, the Self, it-Self, Consciousness, is not, was not, will not be It is a contradiction in terms Immortality is indelibly stamped on the face of Consciousness, the face of God When 'I's say that the solar system was born so many hundreds or thousands of millions of years ago and will last so many more—the whole system with all its thousands of millions of years of life-time and all its thousands of millions of millions of miles of body-space is in My Consciousness, 'now 'and 'here', otherwise, my statement were wholly meaningless As Suff Sarmad well says

Mulls goyad kı bar falak shud Ahmad , Sarmad goyad kı falak ba Ahmad dar shud. E U. A.R.] IT IS NOT CREATOR NOR CREATED 153

N-Ātmā jajāna na marishyati na édhaté (a)sau. (Bh)
(The Self is never born nor dies nor grows.)

Lam yalıd wa lam yulad ...

Kullu shayin hālikun illā Waih. Q) (Neither begetter nor begotten He ...

All things are mortal but the Face of God,

His Self, the primal moveless Cause of all.)

Yad-aparınamı tad-akaranam. (Nyaya maxım)

(What changes never, never has a cause.)

"What is incorruptible must also be ungenerable"
(Western Scholastic philosophical maxim)

(The mulia—learned in the Scripture-word But not its sense—says Ahmad went to Heaven; But Sarmad says that Heaven came into Ahmad!)

Compare the following

We sit as in a boundless phantasmagoria and dreamgrotto, boundless, for the faintest star, the remotest century, lies not even nearer the verge thereof the Unslumbering, whose work both Dream and Dreamer are, we see not, .. and sleep deepest while fancying ourselves most awake . The Where and When," [desha and kālal, "so mysteriously inseparable from all our thoughts, are but superficial adhesions. The Seer may discern them where they mount up out of the celestial Everywhere and Forever Have not all nations conceived their God as Omnipresent and Eternal, as existing in a Universal Here and Everlasting Now? Space is but a mode of our human sense, so likewise Time. There is no Space and no Time We are . like sparkles floating in the Ether of Deity . This so solid seeming world is but an air-image, our Me the only reality, and Nature . the phantasy of our Dream" Carlyle, Sartor Resertus, Bk I, ch viii

This Self is Self-luminous because, clearly, nothing else can illumine It. It illumines all else Eyes see sights and ears hear sounds, but who sees the eyes and who hears the ears? They obviously do not see and hear themselves I am conscious of the eyes and of their objects, of the ears and their objects Indeed I see and hear, rather than eyes see and ears hear They are only the instruments I use. The 'I' is Haq ul Yaqin, the Truth in and of Truths, the Certainty in and of all certainties

Lā tudrīkul-absār, wa Fluā' yndrīkul-absār (Q.)

(Eyes do not see Him, but He sees the eyes)

Shrotrasya shrotram, manaso mano yad, Vācho ha vācham, Sa u prānasya prānah, chakshushah chakshuh. (U)

(Hearer of ear and Speaker of all speech, Seer of eye and Mentor of the mind, The Self is verily the Life of life)

Kuntu sama'-ul-lazī yasma'n bihī, Wa bisārat-ul-lazī yubsiru bihī (Q)

(I do become the ear by which he hears, And I become the eye by which he sees)

Yo véd-édam shrnavān-īti sa Ātmā shravanāya shrōtram; darshanāya chakshuh, gandhāya ghrānam .(U)

The Self, wishing the wish to hear, became The ear; to see, the eye, to smell, the nose . . .)

Na tatra väg-gachchbatı, as chakshuh, no mano, na vidmo, na vijānīmo, yathā Etad anu-shishyād; anyad-éva Tad viditad atha aviditād adhi. (U).

(Speech reaches not the Self, nor eye, nor mind; We know not how we may describe our-Self, It is not known, nor is it yet unknown, The Knower, nor unknown nor known can be.)

Na Abam manyé su véda iti, No na véda iti véda cha; Yo nah Tad véda Tad véda, No na véda iti véda cha. Yasya amatam tasya matam, Matam yasya na véda sah; Avijñātam vijānatām, Vijñātam avijānatām. (U.)

(Who thinks he knows It, he does know It not; While he who thinks he knows It not, knows It. We do not know whether we know or not, We know the Self; and yet what do we know! Then do we know it not?. But, sure, we know! How can we say we do not know our-Self! Indeed It is the only Thing we know Most positive, most doubtless, here and now!) Iyam vi-srshtir yata-z-babhūva, Yadı vz dadhé, yadı vz na,

Aı bar-tar az khayāl o qayās o gumān o wabm W-az har che gufta-ém o shanīḍ-ém o khwānḍaém (S)

(Thou art beyond all thought, conception, guess, Imagination, yea, and far beyond All we have spoken, heard, or read in books, These deal with Objects—Thou Subject of all!)

Ashrayatva-vishayatva-bhāginī Nir-vibhāga-Chitir-éva kevalā (Sankshéba-Shārīraka).

(This marvellous Unique Self-consciouness Al-one is Subject-Object both at once It knows It-Self and knows all-Else also.)

The Universal I, the Supreme Self, God, is indeed Unique, Al(1)-one One-without-a-second, Advitīya, Lā-sāns There is No-Thing Else like It,

B.U.A.R] 'I AM FIRST AND I AM LAST ALSO' 157

or beside It, or except It, nothing mā-siwā-Allāh, ghair-as-Khudā, Ātmanah itarat, Brahmanah anyat, 'other than God,' 'else than Self'. It is Majmua'-i-ziddain, Sarva-virudāha-dharm-āshrayah, 'locus, focus, reservoir, of all contradictions, all opposites'.

Êkam éva Advıţīyam. (U.)

(One only, always secondless, am I.)

Lā ilāh il-Allāh. (Q.)

(There is no god in truth other than God)

Lā flāhā iliā Anā (Q.)

(There is no God other than I my-Self.)

Aham éva, na mai-to-(a)nyad, iti buddhyaddhyam anjasā. (Bhāg)

(Know well-There is No-Other-than-My-Self.)

"I am the Lord, and there is none Else; There is no God beside me. . I am the first and I am the last: and beside me there is no God." (B. Isaiah.)

"To Ahura Mazadā, the Secondless . . I sing the song of Glory." (Z., Ahunavad Gāṭhā, xxxvii. 3.)

"There is One alone and there is not a second; yea, He hath neither child nor brother; yet is there no end of all His labor" (1.5, the World-Process is unending). (B., Eccles., iv.)

Tasmai sam-un-naddha-viruddha-shaktayé
Namah parasmai Purushaya Védhasé (Bhāg)

(To Him who wieldeth, in th' eternal Play
Of the World-Drama, mighty, turbulent,
Opposed, and ever-battling wondrous powers
—We offer salutation to that Self.)

Aham Ātmā, Gudā-késha! sarva-bhūt-āshaya-sthitah, Aham Ādish-cha, Madhyam cha, bhūtānām Anta éva cha. (G)

(I am the Self abiding in all hearts, I am Beginning, Middle, End of all)

Hu-wal-Awwal, Hu-wal-Ākhir, Hu-waz-Zāhir, Hu-wal-Bātin, wa Hu-wā be kulle shayīn Alīm (Q.)

(He is the First, He is the Last also, He is the Outer, He the Inner too, The Manifest and yet Unmanifest, The Lord, Ordainer, Knower of all things)

"I am (16) the first and the last. I am the alpha and the omega." (B.)

"I am (1s) the Light which lighteth every man. ... without Me" (the Supreme Self in all) "thou canst do nothing" (B)

"The Lord, before and beyond whom there is No Other." (Z., Yasna, xxvii. 3.)

"My name is He who hath shaped everything" (Z., Ahura-Mazda Yasht, 14)

At hos dāmām, thvahms āḍām, Ahurā ¹ (Z, Gāthā, 487)

(Ahura I the Beginning Thou, and End I)

All these great words describe, befittingly, the I, the Self, the Principle of Consciousness Al(I)-One, and Nothing Else

'I' is the Ahad, of which nothing can be predicated, not even existence or non-existence, Zāt
2-sādij, Zāt-1-mutlaq, Munqata'-ul-1shārat, Lā-bashart-1-shay, Shuddha, Nir-guna, Nir-vishésha, Nir-ava-chchhinna, the Ab-solute, Pure Being (same as Pure No-Thing), Attribute-less,
Un-particularised, Un-conditioned

N-Āsad-āsīn-no-Sad-āsīt. (Rg Véda).
(Neither Non-being was, nor Being then)
Na San, na ch-Āsan, na tathā, na ch-ānyathā,
Na jāyaté, vyéti, na cha avahīyaté,
Na vardhaté, n-āpi vishuddhyaté punah,
Vishuddhyaté Tat Param-ārṭha-lakshanam.
(Bu., Asanga.)

A-nırodham, an-utpādam, an-uchchhédam, a-shāshvatam, An-ék-ārtham, a-nān-ārtham, an-āgamam, a-nırgamam, Na san, n-āsan, na sad-asan, Na ch-āpy-anubhay-ātmakam,
Chatush-koti-vi-nir-muktam
Tattvam Mādhyamikāb vidub.
(Bu, Nāgārjuna, Mādhyamika-Kārikā.)

(It is not non-existent, nor existent,
It is not thus, nor is it otherwise,
It takes not birth, nor grows, decays, or dies,
It has no stain to purify away,
It is the ever Pure—such is the mark
Of that which hath no mark, the One Supreme.
It cannot be suppressed, nor yet expressed,
It cannot die, nor yet be brought to birth,
Nor is it slayable, nor everlasting,
It means not any one thing, nor yet many,
It cometh not, nor ever doth It go.
Not being, nor non-being, nor yet both,
Nor free from both! This wondrous Mystery,
Void of these four conditions, is the Truth
Which those that tread the Middle Path declare)

Syād astı, syān n-āstı, syād astı cha n-āstī cha, syād a-vaktavyah, syād astı ch-āvaktavyah, syān n-astı ch-āvaktavyah, syād-astı cha n-āstı ch-āvakta- . vyah (J, Syād-Vāda)

(Perhaps It is, or may be It is not; Or it may be that It both is and not, Or It is only Indescribable; Or though unspeakable It perhaps is; Or It both is not and unspeakable; Or, seventhly, it may be that It is And is not and unspeakable also!)

A-pra-hīnam, A-sam-prāptam,
An-uch-chhinnam, A-shāshvaṭam.
A-nı-ruḍḍham, An-uṭ-pādam,
Eṭan Nir-vānam uchyaṭé.
Asṭi, n-āṣṭi, asti-n-āṣti-iṭi,
N-asti-n-āṣti-iṭi wā punah,
Chala-sṭhir-obhay-ā-bhāvaih
Ā-vṛnoṭi éva bālishah
Kotyash-chaṭasrah étāh ṭu,
Grahaih yāṣām sadā-vrṭah,
Bhagavān ābhir-a-spṛshto
Drshto yéna sa sarva-dṛk.

(Bu . NAGARIUNA. Madh. Ka.)

('Tis never lost, nor is it ever found;
It never ends; nor is it ever-lasting,
'Tis ne'er suppressed, nor is it ever born;
Such is the state that is Nir-vaṇa called.
Is, is not; is and is not both at once;
Is not, is not at all; these are the four Alternatives that wrap all for child-minds.
He who has seen the Lord beyond them all,
He has seen All; he has touched Omniscience.)

Taḍ-ējati, Tan-na éjaṭi, Taḍ-ḍūrē, Tad u antīké, Tad anṭar-asya sarvasya, Tad u sarvasy-āsya bāhyatah. (Isha-U)

(It moveth and It moveth not at all,
It is the farthest of the far, It is
The nearest of the near, It is within,
And yet it is without all that we know.)
"Alone It standeth and It changeth not,
Around it moveth, and It suffereth not,
The Mother of the World It may be called."

(T., Tao-teh-king, THR, 6.)

"I am the Lord, I change not" (B., Malachi.)
An-Eka mānhi Eka rējai, Eka mānhi an-Eka-no,
Ek-Ānéka kī nahīn sankhyā!, namo Siddha
Niranjano! (J., Bhū-phara.)

(That which is One in many, Many in One, Yet Neither One nor Many—I bow to That ')
"The Tao hath no beginning and no end " (BB, 88)

At i ke dar héch jë na dërī jë i
Bu-l-a'jab mëndah am ke har-jë-ī i
Ba-jahën dar hamésha padë-ī i
Lék dar chashm-1-man na mi ëyi i
(S., WRSĀLĪ, Mā-muqīmān.)

(O Thou that hast no place in any place, And yet, O wonder !, art in every place !

EUAR TORMLESS THAT WEARS ALL FORMS 163

That art appearing perpetually,
In every place within this wheeling world,
Yet cannot be encompassed by my eyes!)

"The Tao cannot be heard; what can be heard Is not the Tao; the Tao cannot be seen;"
What can be seen is not the Tao at all.
By words the Tao may not be well expressed,
What can be thus expressed is not the Tao.
The Formless gives to every form that form;
Can we know It as else than Void of Form?
The Nameless gives to every name that name,
It-Self may not be named but by all names."

(BB., 87; SBE., vol. 40, p. 69.)

"The Tao is not exhausted by the greatest,
Nor is It ever absent from the least,
In all things is It found, complete, diffused.
How wide Its universal comprehension!
How utter Its unfathomableness!
Embodiment of Its great attributes,
In Righteousness and in Beneficence,
Is but a small result of Its pervasion,
Its subtle working in the heart of man,
Only the perfect man knows this for sure,
And only such can hold charge of the world.

(BB. p. 93, 'The Texts of Taoism'; Kwang Tse, S.B.E. vol. 39, p. 342) Chakra, chihna, aru varna jāti, aru pāti nahina jihu. Rūpa, ranga, aru rékha, bhékha, koi kahi na sakata jihu. A-chala-mūraţi, Anu-bhava-prakāsa, Amit-oia kahijai i Kotı Indra-Indran Shahashāhāna ganijai l Tri-bhuyana Mahī-pa, sura nara asura, N-éti, N-éti vana trna kahat, Tava sarva nāma kathai kavana. karma nāma varnata sumat i Eka müratı an-éka darshana. kīna rūpa an-éka, Khéla khéla a-khéla khélana anta ko phira Eka !

(Si, Guru Govinda Sinha, Jap)

(O Thou! that hath no mark, sign, caste, or creed,
No clan, tribe, form, or color, or outline,
No special shape or dress, Thou Movelessness!
Self-luminosity eternally!,
Measureless, fathomless, All-Potency!
Lord of the three worlds—Waking, Dreaming,
Sleep—

Angels, men, titans, forests grasses, all, Only 'Not-This', 'Not-This', of Thee declare! Who may recite Thy Names and Works in full, Since every name and every work is Thine!

One art Thou, countless yet Thy Multitude!

All forms are Thine through which Thou makest

Play:

All merge back into Thee at End of Day l)

A-nır-vachanīyam (Védānţa)

(This Self indeed is indescribable In words, though indefeasibly Self-known.)

Yan na duhkhéna sam-bhinnam, Na cha grastam an-antarā, Abhi-lāsh-opanīṭam cha, Ṭaṭ padam Svah-paḍ-āspadam.

(Kumarila, Mimamea-Shloka-Vārţika.)

(That which is not alloyed ever with pain, Nor liable to come to sudden end, And has been brought to us by our desire, That is the state known by the name of Svah, True Heav'n where reigns the Supreme Self alone.)

Whom else can all these 'descriptions' which are 'non-descriptions', proclamations of inability to describe, fit, except the Self? This so indescribable 'I' cannot be proved by anything else The 'I' proves whatever else is provable Nobody saw the I' being born or dying. Bodies are seen being born and dying, never an 'I,' the 'I'. 'I' only can see 'I' being born or dying, Consciousness only can be conscious of consciousness originating or ceasing; which is a self-contradiction. 'Another's consciousness,' 'another-conscionsness', cannot be consciousof 'My consciousness,' of 'I-consciousness', beginning or ending, that again is a self-contradiction. The fact is that the Principle of Consciousness, the Self, is One, Universal, all-pervading, a Plenum without parts, without break The appearance of separate individual selves, of separateness, iafraqu, bhéda, is an illusion, is the great Ja'l of the Ja'el Māyā of the Māyī, as the appearance of countless bubbles, ripples, waves, billows, in the ocean, separate-seeming yet inseparate from the ocean and from each other. There is no 'Another-consciousness.' 'Consciousness' is always only 'I-consciousness', 'My-consciousness'; never 'an-other-consciousness'. One Consciousness only animates all material forms The methods, degrees, kinds, of manifestation are infinitely different in the pseudoinfinite forms. That One Consciousness appears as now sleeping, now waking, in this form, or as giving up that form; or as taking up another. It never can conceive itself as beginning or deasing. Whatever the point of time, in the past, or in the future, a few seconds away, or trillions and quadrillions of years distant, at which it may try to conceive itself as ceasing or beginning-it is already present before and beyond that point of time, it includes that point of time, with all the intervening period, within its vast embrace, and reaches infinitely farther still, beyond, on both sides. Truly is this Self-consciousness Unique, vaster than the vastest, smaller than the smallest.

Universal Being, Hasti-1-mutlag, Satta-samanya, is the logician's summum genus, iins-i-a'la, parā-jāţi. At the other end are the smallest particles, atoms, electrons, protons, ions, superatoms, param-āņus, or whatever else they may be called, (-and neither the largest nor the smallest can ever be reached in any given time and space, the infinitesimal is also infinite-), anu, zarra, the summum individuum or parvum or parulum or minutum individuum, (infima species), tashakkhuse-adna, para-vishesha. This I is both Universal Being and, ultimately, finally, particular in-divis-ible In-devid-nal Being. It is Infinite as well as Infinitesimal. What is the proof of Universal Being, of "Is," est, hast, as t1? Is it not I, My Consciousness, 'Am'? Am I not present everywhere and everywhen? Whatever significance, smallest or vastest, can be assigned to these two words, is already within My Consciousness. 'Am' is the proof of 'Is'; not 'Is' of 'Am'. The only Being that we know, for certain, without a possibility of doubt, is My Being, 'Am', all other beings, all other existences, have only such and so much existence as my Consciousness of them gives to them What is the proof of the most utterly 'particularised' being? Again, nothing else than 'Am', 'I am' For, obviously, nothing is more 'a-tom-ic', in-divis-ible, more immediately, positively, definitely other-repudiating, nothing more completely distinguishes itself off from all 'other', than 'I', my feel of 'personality,' here and now Yet this so extremely compressed and limited 'here and now and thus' is infinitely expansible to 'anywhere and anywhen and also anyhow' Whatever stretch of space or time or wealth of experiences I bring into my consciousness, my imagination, I envelop it all Wasea' Rabbonā kulle shayīn ılmā...

Huā alā kulle shayīn muhīṭ

Huā mākum yanama kuntum. (Q)

(God's Consciousness envelopeth all things...

He doth pervade, include, all things and beings...

Wherever you may be, He is with you).

"Saith the Lord Do not I fill heaven and earth?" (B)

Anor-anīyān, mahato mahīyān (U)

(Greater than greatest, than smallest more small).

So-yam Ātmā... ésha mé Ātmā... sarva-karmā, sarva-kāmah, sarva-gandhah, sarva-rasah, sarva-gatah, sarva-prān-āspadah, sarvato-mukhah, sarva-jāah, sarvatah-pānı-pādah, sarv-ānana-shiro-grīvah, sarvat - okshi - shiro-mukhah, sarvatah - shruti - män, sarva-bhüta-sthah, sarv-bhüta-guhā-shayah, sarva-bhūta-damanah, sarva-bhūt-ādhi-vāsah, sarva-bhūt-āntar-Ātmā, sarva-bhṛt, sarva-vyāpī, sarv-ājīvah, sarva-sam-thah, sarva-srk, sarva-smit, sarva-harah, sarv-ādhi-shthānah, sarv-ānu-syūtah, sarv-ānu-bhūh, sarv-āntarah, sarv-āparah, sarv-āshī, sarv-6shvarah, sarv-Āham-mānī, sarv-ābhi-dhānah Aham-iti, sarvamayah (Upanishats)

(This Self, My-Self, does all acts that are done; Feels all desires that are felt anywhere, Smells, tastes, sees, hears, and touches everything; All heads, eyes, ears, arms, legs, mouths, hands, and feet.

Are Mine, My Self's, the Self's, It dwells in all, Creates pervades, preserves, and wipes out all, All life of every living thing is drawn From Its infinite life, all death—Its sleep, Whoever knows, and whatsoe'er he knows, Is known by It, by Me, by the One Self, It is the Lord of All, Its Final Name Is'I', the Universal Name of All, That svery living 'one' gives to 'one-Self')

I say, 'I am a human being', I become identified in interest and sympathy with the whole of the human race, some two thousand million individuals. 'I am an Indian'—my consciousness at once contracts to three hundred and eighty million 'I am Bhagavan Dās alsas Abdul Qādir"—it shrinks immensely with amazing rapidity to a single lump of a few score pounds of bone and flesh and blood. 'I am a living being'—it suddenly expands infinitely to embrace all the universe, for there is not an atom of matter that is not alive, not pervaded by the Spirit, by Consciousness, by Life 1

How it expands consciousness, broadens mind, enlarges heart, and promotes science and philosophy, if we look for similarity amidst diversity, and unity amidst similarity, and how it contracts outlook, narrows intelligence, warps sympathy, hinders appreciation of rational knowledge, if we look for differences rather than agreements, dividing features instead of unifying ones, may be illustrated thus A greatly esteemed Manlavi friend. wrote to me that the 'essentials' of Islam are (a) Belief in (1) Allah, (2) Muhammad as His Chief Prophet, and other prophets, (3) Quran as God's word, (4) Day of Judgment, (5) God's omniscience, and (b) Practice of (6) salat or namas, prayer, (7) saum or rosa, fasts, (8) sakāt, charity, (9) haji, pilgrimage, (10) jehād, war in defence of Islam, (11) three festivals, Id-ul-fifr, Iduz-zohā, Muharram. An equally worthy Pandit said, the 'essentials' of Hinduism are (a) Belief in (1) Paraméshyara, (2) Krahna as His Chief Avatara, and other goathras. (3) Véda as God's word, (4) Judgment of Yama, in accordance with the Laws of Karma and Re-incarnation, (5) omniscience and accuracy of Yama's recorder, Chitra-Gupta, and (b) Practice of (6) sandhya, prayer, (7) opata-upa-vasa, fasting, especially on skadashi, eleventh day of the lunar fortnight, (8) dana, charity, (9) tsrtha-yūtrā, pilgrimage, (10) dharmaraksha, defence of Dharma, (11) a number of seasonal

The sense of the 'separateness' of each personality, 'Ego-1sm', the sense that 'I am I' and 'you are you', is so strong; this bhéda-buddhi, ghairiyat, created by separateness of bodies, is so overpoweringly ascendant; that the concept, feeling, and historical festivals, e.g., Holf (spring), Nir-jala (summer), Déva-shāyanī (beginning of rains), Shrāvanī (middle of rains). Dev-otthana (end of rains), Dipavali (autumn), Makara-snana (winter), etc., and Rama-nawami (birthday of Rama), Krshn-ashtami (birthday of Krshna), etc., and (12) Varn-ashrama-dharma (the system of four 'class-castes and four stages of life') Here are two sets of 'essentials' And there are two ways of interpreting them. If we see them with the eye of difference, which sees particulars only—the stage is set for a mutual breaking of heads and feuds descending from century to century But if we see them with the eye of agreement, which discerns the common features, the genera, behind the particulars, clearly—then we have irresistible inducement for hand-shakings and embracings and resoscing of hearts

Sarvadı sarva-bhāvānām sāmānyam vridhi-kāranam; Hrāsa-hétur-vishéshas tu, pravṛṭṭar-ubhayasya cha (Charaka)

(If we look at the common elements, Which make the genus, then all entities Expand from more to more, but if we look Exclusively upon the differences, Then all things shrink to ever narrower limits Both tendencies are ever at their work The wise man sides with the inclusive one)

Muhammad has been quoted before (p 83) as appealing to all to meet on high common ground We have sense, of a common I, a single I, running through all bodies, and vitalising, energising, moving, controlling them all—is very puzzling and difficult to apprehend at first. Yet it is the very heart, the foundation, of all Religion. Like lesser but also difficult concepts, in all sciences, it becomes more only to translate the two sets of 'essentials' into general terms to see the essential unity of them Thus (a) Belief in (1) the Supreme Being, (2) highly advanced philanthropic souls, appearing from time to time in various races, as great teachers and lovers of mankind, (3) sacred scriptures, embodying knowledge which is of most help to mankind. (4) the law of cause and effect, of action and reaction, whereby sin unfailingly meets punishment, and virtue reward, in its own proper time, here or hereafter. (5) the omniscience and impartial justice of the Supreme Being; and (b) Practice of (6) prayer, (7) self-denying restraint of the senses, especially of the tongue, (8) discriminate charity, (9) pilgrimage and travel, in the spirit of reverence for all manifestations of God's Nature, (10) defence of the right against the wrong. (11) disciplines, festivals, public rejoicings and mournings for expression and promotion of fellow-feeling, (12) a rational Social Organisation, with a just division of the social labor, of the means of living, and of the necessaries, the comforts, and the luxuries or prizes of life, in accordance with the vocational temperaments of the different types of men, as indicated by the principles of psychology Incidentally, Yama is the same as Al Qabiz, the Regulator, Judge, Punisher; and Chitra-gupta is Al-Muhsiv. the Recorder, Counter, Accountant, the Hidden Picture. Lauh-1-Mahfüz, 'Preserved Tablet' of Hāfizā, Memory, Universal Mind, in which all is ever recorded and preserved, past, present, and future, Skt, Chit or Chit. gatherer'.

and more clear, by dwelling upon, reflection, meditation. Analogies, as always, are very useful. My toes and fingers, my limbs, my sensor and motor organs, the billions of living cells, which make up the 'I' or 'me' that is my living body, are all separate from each other, and have independent lives. Yet, are they wholly separate? Have they completely independent lives? My 'I' runs through them all, holds them all together. The word 'we'; the feel 'sympathy'; the fact 'common interest'; the thing 'common property', 'public property'—all these would be impossible, if there were no unity, running latent, through the patent diversity and multiplicity of the world

To make this latent Unity less latent, to make human beings more conscious of it, is the main purpose of Religion. To make it fully patent, vairagya, mujānibat, vi-shāda, bézārī, mahākarunā, rahm, change of heart, altruism, disgust with our own egoism in general, dis-illusion-ment, world-weariness, world-sadness, satiety, surfeit, nirvéda, sérī-az-dunyā, dil-bardāshiagī, and great compassion for the world, a ciaving, yearning, that all these other helpless souls as well as our own, wandering in the dark, may see light, may find the way out of this terrible labyrinth—all these are needed. They create the state of mind, the condition of soul, in which the finite dissolves into the Infinite, emotional and intellectual egoism is broken by emotional and intellectual altruism, and leaves behind Universalism. Some prefer to call this mood as Spiritual Consciousness, Super-mind, yoga-ja-jāāna, a state transcending ordinary Intellect, a peculiar state of exaltation and realisation, like the rising of the sun upon a world of darkness, though, bye and bye, the exalted glories of the many-hued splendours of the dawn settle down into the steady light of day, and are utilised for the world's work, are made 'integral for life', are 'integrated into the daily life', as some would say

In a sense, it is perfectly true that there is a special descent of the 'supra-mental' Divine, in such a condition; that God comes in, because ego-1sm has gone out and made room, and the whole life is transformed. But it is also true that in the case of the 'lower knowledge' of any special science, the same process of 'yoga', though on a lower level, always takes place Every discovery and invention is followed by an elation and exaltation in the inventor's and discoverer's being 'Yoga is performed in all states and stages, on all planes of mind ' thus declares Yoga-Sütra-Bhāshya (1.1). 'Change of Heart', from hard to soft, from sarāgya to vai-rāgya from krūra-tā to karunā, from takabbur to hilm, from gharrah to inkisar, from 'pride' to 'humility', from mada to vinaya, namra-tā, is absolutely necessary, before God can come into it. Sympathy, Fellow-feeling, is of, from, by, Love Spiritual, and such Love is God

God is very near the simple, innocent, guileless, unselfish, loving child—unconsciously, or better, supra-consciously. He is very near, the wise man in his second childhood—who has become as children, 'simple of heart'; but deliberately so, because he has realised the evils consequent on crookedness; 'natural' again, because he has experienced and put aside artificial-ways, 'unsophisticated', by voluntary de-sophistication.

"Except ye be converted, except ye be born again, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven." `(B)

Brāhmanah pāndītyam nīr-vidya bālyéna tishthāsét, bālyam cha pāndītyam cha nīr-vidya atha munih, a-maunam cha maunam cha nīr-vidya atha brāhmanah. (U.)

(The learned priest—let him feel sick of all That load of and learning, argument Endless, and bitter odious debate,
Let him become again as simple child,
Next let him take to ways of silent thought,
Prolonged communing with him-Self, within;
And, finally, let him pass from that too,
And be the natural duteous Man of God)

Such are the stages on the 'return-journey' of the soul 'back to God', on Qaus-1-Uril, or Safar-1-Abd, as also, Süfis call it, 1.e., 'the journey of the servant' back to 'God-hood'. The opposite journey, of Qaus-1-Nazil, is correspondingly called Safar-1-Haq, 'the journey of God' towards 'servant-hood'. Briefly, the hard in heart cannot see God because they cannot feel that Love which is an integral and essential aspect of God' Ego-ism hardens the heart, Altru-ism softens it. This mood of altruism, bê-khudî, nis-sv-ārtha-tā, nir-aham-kāra, comes to every soul, in its own good time, in the course of evolution'

[&]quot; Herachtus says that the road up and the road down are the same . . But the road down, from the Creator to the creatures, is no business of ours, and, frankly, we know nothing about it. It is wisest to admit that we know neither how nor why there is a universe . . The upward path, the return to God may be traced" Dean Inge, (see p 27 supra) Some Sufis have also expressed a similar view To those who do not feel the craving to know 'the road down', 'the how and why of the umverse', there is nothing more to be said, of course But to others, who do, Scriptures give the answer, in broad outline Modern science tries to see the how , in terms of Evolution, Integration-and Dis integration Krahna says in Gifa 'Self-realisation is completed only when the many is seen rooting back into the One, and also the One sprouting and branching into the Many

Other ways of expressing the truth are these Man must neither any longer feel separate from fellowcreatures, nor feel any separateness between different component parts of his being, he must become a whole,

There is a danger, a great danger, lurking here,

Man, in trying to find identity with God, the inner Spirit of all, may deliberately identify himself with the Satan of the outer flesh of our body. This is illustrated by the story of Indra and Virochana in a unity, consistent in all parts, there must be no in-consistency between his thought, his word, his deed, between bis intellectual, emotional, and active being s. his religion must not be Lept in a water-tight compartment, carefully preserved from contact with his daily life in the world; his religion must pervade his whole being, guide his thoughts, as well as words, as well as actions; his weekdays must be as his Sundays, he must be conscious in feeling as well as in intellect, se., he must not allow himself to be run away with, swept off his feet, by his feelings, he must deliberately choose, and feel, only the right and appropriate emotions, his personal life, as a separate-seeming individual, must become subordinate to his impersonal life as really one with the Universal: the centre of egoism, the hardness of heart, must be dissolved, by nir-veda, vishāda, vai-rāgya, deep dispassion, plus mahā-karuņā, passionate compassion for all suffering Truly, the hard in heart cannot see God', and 'the meek', the soft in heart, 'shall see God', shall become sovereign ruler and king over their earthly bodies, and, some day, over the whole earth. literally, also, when the majority of human beings have learnt the great lesson of Evolution, have subordinated ego ism to altru-ism and universal-ism, and have thereby brought the longed-for millennium, Golden Age, Safya-yuga, again, to Earth "Seek in the heart the source of evil, and expunge it. . . It is a plant that lives and increases throughout the ages. . . He who would enter upon must tear this thing out of his heart. Then the heart will bleed and the whole life of the man seem Opanishats, and of the fall of the archangel Azaz-iel into the state of Satan in Christian and Muslim legened. The consequences of such subtle error are utterly dissolved This ordeal must be endured. Each man is to himself absolutely the Way, the Truth, and the Life. But he is so only when he grasps his whole individuality firmly, and, by the force of his awakened spiritual will, recognises this individuality as not himself, but that thing which he has with pain created for his own use, and by means of which he purposes, as his growth slowly developes, to reach to the life beyond individuality " (Light on the Path, Theosophical Publishing House, Adyar, Madras) This opening out of the individual soul to and into the Universal Spirit, takes place, in each case, in its own good time. It cannot be forced It begins from within The soul grows as the flower grows, by its own vital force, and in accord with the cyclic laws of life But the gardener can make the conditions which are most favourable to the growth, The old generation teaches the outlines of general geography to the younger generation The actual visiting of any of the places of the earth has to be done by the grown-up So has the message of Essential Religion to he given by the father to the child, and to remain in his mind as seed, to put forth root and shoot, branch, leaf, bud, blossom, and fruit, in its own good time Then the heard' will become the seen'.

Al'zāz-1-El seems to mean 'the Supreme Greatness of God'. Majesty of Benevolence, inverted, becomes Pride of Malevolence Denion est Deus inversus There is another, and fine, conception of Satan in Hebrew theology. God commands his highest angel to 'act' as his reverse and adverse, as Satan, deliberately to test and strengthen and advance souls to salvation, through sin and suffering When they fail to stand his tests and temptations, Satan rejoices—outwardly; inwardly he endlessly disastrous, as when the public screant commits the grievous mistake of regarding himself as public master; or the trustee makes himself proprietor, or the hasis of social organization is shifted from rocational temperament and aptitude to hereditary caste; then all duties are forgotten, and all rights are grabbed, as by divine birth-right, without need of any worth. The most supernal blessing then becomes the most infernal curse. In earlier times, this sacred truth, of the identity, in essence, of Man and God, was not always preached publicly, weeps Ultimately, when they spurp him, he gnashes his teeth-outwardly, mwardly he rejoices greatly. Mane Corelli's fine novel, The Sorrows of Satan, is based on this idea Nara da (nāram, moksham, dadā ti, he who brings release, salvation) is a very different yet similar figure in Puranic my thology. He is a well-know n devotee and favourite of Vishipu, and his chief 'sport and pastime' is to cause wars between Lings, by subtle praises of one to another, to arouse their jealous pride Khnājā Khizr is yet apother, different yet similar, hgure in Islamic legend. In Puranic mythology Indra, king of deras, gods or angels, also discharges the duty of tempting and trying rahis, yogis, aspirants for psychical and spiritual perfection and moksha, through the agency of a psarfi-s, nymphs In Buddhism, Mara is the great tempter. Etymologically, the word means · 'slayer', but actually it is used as synonymous with Kama, Eros, Love-Lust, because carnal love lust mars,' leads to death Birth of physical body necessarily means death of it, later Also, Lust precedes and generates all the other evil passions, which 'mar', slay', good spiritual emotions and affections. This will be expounded, later on, more fully.

lest it be not understood, but turned away from, and so put to shame, by those not interested in and not ready for it; or, becoming cheap, be treated with levity and ridicule by the light-minded, in whom familiarity breeds contempt, or, worst of all. being disastrously misunderstood, breed arrogance instead of humility, hateful scorn instead of love. But conditions are different to-day General level of intelligence is much higher. The opposite error, of sensual and proud egoism, is rampant. Corrective counsel is greatly needed and is perhaps more easily applicable. Argument has perhaps greater chance Finally, there seems no other resource, no better alternative, for fighting the forces of 'darkness', whose chief weapon is viciously false propaganda, than to spread 'light', right knowledge, by true propaganda. The very purpose of genuine religion is to guard man against such perversion, to lead him from small self to Great Self, from sinner to saint, from selfishness to selflessness, from Darkness to Light, from Untruth to Truth, from Evil to to Good, from Satan to God, from Khudi to Khudi, from Angra Mainyu to Spenta Mainyu, from Matter to Spirit, from the Third person to the First, from . Jīv-ātmā to Parama-Ātmā, from Egoism to Altrustic Universalism.1

¹See f n , pp 59-60 supra Buddhist Sūtras distinguish between mahā-āṭmā and alp-ātmā, kalyān-ātma and Mazadā Ahurā! .. Ma-ihyo dāvot ahvāo aspavat chā hyat chā manangho āyaptā.

Hyat tā ūrvētā sashathā yā Mazadāo dadātā . . . khītī chā anītī chā . . . at anpī taīsh anghahatī āshtā

Yayāo spanyāo tītu mravata yēma angrēma no-īt nā manāo, no-īt sénghā no-īt khratavo, na édā varanā, no-īt tīkh-dhā, no-īt shyaothnā, no-īt daénāo, no-īt tīrvāno sachanţé (Z., Gāṭhā, 28. 2; 30 11; 45. 2.)

(Lord Mazadā Ahurā!, grant unto us
To realise the difference between
Our two selves, the physical lower one,
And th' other, higher, of the better mind.
Of these two selves that Mazadā gave to us,
The higher Self points ever to the Right,
The lower one misleads towards the Wrong;
Determined by these two are all our acts
The Brighter Self unto the Darker says:
Neither our minds, nor well-cognised beliefs,
Nor duties, manners, words, nor our deeds,
Nor our religions, nor our souls agree)

Dvā suparnā sayujā sakbāyā Ekam vrasham pari-shasvajāté;

pap-aima, 'great soul' and 'small soul', 'good soul' and 'svil soul'. Confucius distinguishes between 'the princely soul', chun-izu, and 'the petty man', hano-jan

Tayor-ékah pıppalam svädu attı, An-ashnan Anyo-abhı-chākashītı. (U)

(Two birds do nest upon the self-same tree; One tastes the fruits—now bitter, and now sweet; The other looketh on eternally)

Manas tu dvı-vıdbam proktam Shuddham ch-äshuddham éva cha; Ashuddham käma-sakalpam, Shuddham käma-vıvarjıtam. (U.)

(The mind is of two kinds, one good, one bad; Motived by selfish egoist desire, Is the bad mind; inspired by altruism, Free from all foul desires, is the good mind)

Ashā and Druj (Love and Hate, Ichchhā or Rāga and Droha or Dvésha), Armaītī and Tārmaītī (righteous activity and wrongful activity); Spenta-Mainyu and Angra-Mainyu, good or bright Spirit or Mind and bad or dark one; Vohu or Vahishto Mano and Achishto Mano, pure mind and impure mind, such are other words, in Zoroastrian Books, for the same pair of opposites, the two aroātā 1, given to us by Ahurā Mazadā, the One

¹ Qurān mentions two angels, Hārūt and Mārūt Shrī J. M Chatterii, The Bihical Conceptions of the Gāṭhā, suggests that these are the same as those known to Jews and pre-Christian Armenians as Horot and Morot, to Zoroastrians as Haurvāṭā and Ameretā, to Vaidikas as Rṭam and Amṛtam But the Yunchons of the two are changed in the theology of each religion

183

'Great Wise all-ideating all-creating' Principle of Consciousness 1

² Sea 'Duality' and 'Opposites' in the subject-Index entra It is a well-known maxim of Vedanta that manifestation is impossible without 'opposites': Avyaklam vyzjyate dvam-dvaih, 'by pairs of opposites is the Unmanifest manifested . Grid makes repeated reference to dvam-dva-s, and says that the seeker of Peace must transcend these pairs (in mind) Maulana Rumi has some good verses on the point. Indeed, all thinkers, of east and west alike, have recognised the axiomatic nature of the maxim, with their heads, though the hearts of many have continued to wish, as do the hearts of all non-thinkers, that pain and evil were abolished, and only pleasure and good remained > Pas, bad é mutiag na bāshad dar jahān . Bad, ba-nisbat bashad, īn ra ham bi-dan. Bas nıhāni-hā ba zıd paıdā shawad . Chữn ke Hao rã n-ist zid, pinhãn shawad; Pas binā é khalq bar azdād būd . Lā-jiram mā jangiy-am az zarr-o sūd (RUMI) (No evil, absolute, is in the world, Know well, all evils are but relative That which is hidden, comes out into light, 'Gainst a relieving darkness opposite, Because there is no Opposite of God-For all such opposites are lost in Him-His Supreme Status ever hid remains Very foundation of this varied world Is the Duality of Opposites. Inevitably therefore must we strive And struggle for the gain, against the loss)

N-Etyanjam guņa-vat kin-chit, N-ātyantam dosha-vat tathā . Ubhābhyām guna-doshābhyām Vyāptam hi sakalam jagat (Mbh.)

" Very great is the need to be ever alertly and sleeplessly on guard against the awful danger of deliberately identifying ourselves with the lower, selfish, Evil mind, the baser nature, instead of with the higher, un-self-ish Good mind, the nobler nature, and the Universal Self. This asmita, abamkara, khudi, ego-15m, the lower self, is indeed the element of Satan in man It is the root of all lust and hate, all greed and pride of 'martial glory' and "land-hunger", all adultery and robbery, all rape and murder, all sadism and masochism, all ageression, all self-assertion and other-suppression, all the most monstrous tyranny and oppression, all political and religious bigotry, fanaticism, persecution and cruellest torturing of dissentients and innocents. "Thy will, O Lord I, Thon Universal Self of All I, not mine l"-says the servant of God and Humanity, the servant of God in Man. "My will, O fool!, thou slave of mine i, not thine i" says the unwitting,

(There is not anything that's wholly good,
Nor anything that purely evil is,
No course of action, no experience,
No happening that is wholly good or evil;
The two, twins, both, pervade the world throughout)
As illustration of the relativity of good and evil,
Manishe Rumi says:

Ab dar kashti, halāk-é kashti ast, Ab lékin zér-e kashti, pushti ast. (Water beneath the boat is life for it Water within the boat would be its death) or, far worse, the witting, slave of the Satan in Man Be ever on guard, vigilantly, against that Satan I God and Satan are both within us 12

Science no longer denies this first and most important truth, of the Universal Self, Many Names of the All-Perthe all-pervading Principle of Conwading One Belf sciousness; as we have seen (pp 22 et seq.). Scientific materialism is dead. It is generally recognized that Consciousness is indefeasible proves the existence of matter and of the senses which perceive matter It cannot be proved by the senses or by matter It illuminates itself as well as all other things

Brahma sarvam āvrtva tishthati Tasya bhāsā sarvam ıdam vıbhātī (Brahma abides, enveloping all things; All things appear, illumined by Its light.)

Aliaho be kulle shayin muhit Allāho nūr us-samāvāti wal ard

(Allah surroundeth and encloseth all: His light illumineth all heaven and earth)

When Self is erroneously identified with the small self, the body, then the indefeasible assurance of Consciousness about it-Self is converted into aggressive self-assertiveness, egoistic individualism, separatism, sectionalism, bhéda-buddhi, extreme specialism and expertism, 'art for arts' sake', 'science for science's sake ', ' business is business', etc.

186 TO Be IS TO Be Known, & Vice Versa [CH. II

- "In Him all things live and move and have their being... Do not I fill heaven and earth? saith the Lord... The Spirit of God filleth all the earth, and that " (space or heaven) "which contains all things." (B.)
- "He is the light that lighteth every man and everything" (B.)
- "Great Heaven is intelligent, clear-seeing, and is with you in all your doings." (C. Sh. King.)

Obviously, Consciousness, God's Consciousness, Man's Consciousness, the Self's Consciousness, includes, encompasses, illumines all-things. 'To be' is 'to be known'; to know is to recognize and thereby impart existence. Rsee est percipi. Vidyate (is known) is vidyate (exists).

This Consciousness, this I, is behind every name and form and act.

Indram, Mitţram, Varunam, Agnim, āhuh,
Atho divyah sah Suparņo Garutmān;
Ekam Sad viprāh bahu-dha vadanţi,
Agnim, Yamam, Māṭarishvānam, āhuh. (Rg-Vēda)
Ké-chiţ Karma vadanţi Ēnam, Sva-bhāvam aparé janāh,
Eka Kālam, paré Daivam,
Pumsah Kāmam ut-āparé (Bhāg)

Etam éké vadanti Agnim, Manum anyé, Prajä-patim,

e.u.a.r.] it bears all names, forms, deeds 187

Indram éké, paré Prānam,
Aparé Brahma Shāshvaṭam. (M)

 Brahma éva sarvāni nāmāni, sarvāni rūpāni, sarvāņi karmāni bibbarti.

Kālah, Sva-bhāvo, Nıyatıh, Yadrchchhā, Bhūtāni, Yonıh, Purushah, ıtı chintyam, (Bṛhat and Shvéta. Up.)

(Some call It Karma, some Self-Nature name It. Some call It Time, and others call It Fate. Some say It is th' eternal Urge and Surge Of Prime Desire, some name It Agni too. The Lummous Fire which leadeth all to Self. And some Yadrchchhā. Chance or Wilful Will Ungovernable of Purusha Supreme. Some name it Manu, Universal Mind, Some Praja-pati, Lord of Progeny. Some Indra. Chief of all great Nature-Forces. Some Mittra name It, others Varuna, Su-parna of the glorious wings some call It. Some Mätarishvä and some Yama too. Some Brahma, Vast, Eternal, Infinite, Which, as the 'I', the Universal Self, Hidden, vet Manifest too, everywhere, Wears, bears, and does, all forms and names and acts) 1

¹ Following Skt quotations give many more names, used by different schools of thinkers or devotees, and, at the same time prove widespread recognition of the fact that the Same Mystery is meant by all the different names

In Zoroastrian scriptures it is called Vahma, the same as Brahma of Véda-Upanishais, in its all-comprehensive transcendent aspect; and Ahurā

Yam Shawah sam-up asaté Shiva iti. Brahma sti Védäntinah. Bauddhah Buddha iti, pramana-patavah Kartā iti Naiyāyikāh, Arhan-ıtı-atha Jama-shāsana ratāh. Karm(a)-ıtı Mimämsakāh So (A)yam vo vidadhātu vānchhita-phalam Trailokya nätho Harih. Ké-chit Tam Tapa ifi-ahuh. Tamah ké-chit. Jadam paré. Jūžnam, Māyām, Pradbānam cha, Prakṛṭim, Shakṭim api Ajām, Vimar∝hah iti vā Shaivāh, Avidyam itaré janah (Dêvi Bhagavata) Rtam, Atma, Param Brahma, Satvam, iti-ādikāh, budhaih Kalpıtab, vy-ava-hār-ārtham, Sanıfiah Tasya Mah-Atmanah. Sanātanah, Purānānām, Brahma, Védanta-vadinam. Vijfāna-mātram, Vijfāna-Vidām, Ekānta-nirmalam. Ātmē-(Ā)tmanah. tad-vidusbām . Naır-ātmyam, tādīsb-ātmanām . Madhyam, Mādhyamikānām cha, Sarvam, su-sama-chétasam. Yah Shunya-vadınam Shunyo, Bhāsako Yoʻ(a)rka-téjasām, Vaktā, Mantā, Pitā, Bhoktā, Drashta, Karta, sada iva Sah; Purushah, Sānkhya-drahtinām, Mazadā in its active and immanent aspect, as Universal Mind, Brahma. Another name for Vahma, in Zoroastrian scriptures seems to be Zeronane

Ishvaro, Yoga-vēḍinām,
Shivah, Shashi-halā-(a)ūkānām;
Kālah, Kāla-ika-vādinām;
Yoga-Vāsishtha, III i and v, V viii and Ixxxvii.
Esha éva Vimarshash, Chiṭih, Chaiṭauyam, Āṭmā,
Sva-rasā, Uḍitā, Parā-varā, Svātantryam,
Param-Āṭmā, Aun-mukhyam, Aishi aryam,
Saṭ, Ṭaṭtvam, Saṭṭā, Spburatā, Sārah, Māṭrikā, Māḥnī, Hṛdayā, Mūrtih, Sva-samvit, Spandah, iṭy-āḍi-shabdaih Āgamaih ud-ghusbyatē (Guòta-patī Tikā on Duraā-Sabta-shatī.

(Gupța-vait IIkā on Durgā-Sapța-skați, 'Up-odghāța' or Introduction.)

(Shiva, Brahma, Buddha, Karte, Arhat, Karma, Thought, All-holding Consciousness, Universal Memory, Self, Self-taster, Ever-Awake, Before-and-After, Highand-Low, Self-dependence, Supreme Self, Eagerness, Urge, Lordiness, Being, Essence, Thatness. Existence. Vibration, Core, Measuring Mother, Matter, Cycling Wreath, Heart-Image, Self-awareness, Motion, Breath, Tapas, Tamas, Unconsciousness, Objectivity, Knowledge, Māyā (Illusion), Pradhāua (Root, Source), Prakṛḥ (Nature), Shaktı (Energy), Avidyā (Error), Satyam-Rtam (the True), Para-Brahma, Sanātana, (the Ancient Ever-lasting), Vijfiāna (Sensation); Madhyam (the Middle), the All, Vacuum, Plenum, Illuminator of all Suns, Speaker, Thinker, Father-Protector, Enjoyer, Seer, Doer, Ishvara, the Lord. Maha-Kala (Great Time)-all these are only Its names)

The following is an attempt by an ancient Roman poet along the same lines

"Ogugia calls Me Bachchus. Egypt thinks Me Osiris; Musians name Me Ph'anax, Indi consider Me Dionysus (Divānisham, Day-Night), Roman Mysteries call me

Akerane, (Skt Sarvam or Sāram Akāranam?) 'Uncaused Cause of all causes', or 'Causeless Essence of all' Some Sūfis make a similar distinction between Ahad and Allāh-ar-Rahmān-ar-Rahīm. The distinction between Impersonal Absolute Brahma, Motionless Spectator, and personalised ideating Brahmā, Active Creator, between Chit, Universal Principles of Consciousness, and chitta, individual mind, is the same Spentā Mainyūsraoṭū Mazadāo Ahuro yéhyā Vahmā vohū frashī mananghā ahyā khratu fro mā sāstū vahishtā . . . At hoī Vahmām demānegaro nidāma (Z., Gāthā, 45, 6, 8).

(Lord of benignant Spirit, Mazadā',
Listen to this my prayer, and teach me well
What he should do who would with a pure mind
Seek earnestly to find the Peace of Brahm'!
... May we find Brahma in the House of Songa)

Liber, the Arabian Race, Adonis (same as Dionysus)!" (Ausonias, quoted by H P. Blavatsky, Isis Unveiled, ii. 302.)

"In Zrwanism the dualistic view of the world was superseded by setting up endless Time, (Zrwan, Arabic dahr) as the paramount principle, and identifying it with Fate, the outermost heavenly sphere, or the movement of the heavens Zrwanism came to be recognised under the Sassanid Yezdegerd II, 438-459 A.C., "Dr. T. J. de Boer, The History of Philosophy in Islam, p. 8.

Ye jī adāīsh ashā drujem venghāītī, hyat asamshutā, yā daībītānā fraokhtā, amérétāījī daevāīsh chā mashyāish chā, at toī savāīsh Vahmém vakshat Ahura.

(Z. Gāthā, 48. 1.)

(May Ahurā gives us the truth of Brahm', May He unite us with that Absolute, When we have undergone successfully The disciplines whereby the Vice in us Is overthrown by Virtue, which make man Divinely meritorious, and which bring Salvation unto men and gods alike.)

... Véstā Vahmeng Séraoshā rādhangho...

(Z, Gāthā, 46, 17.)

(By worship and devotion know ye Brahm'.)

Tad viddhi pra-ni-päténa, pari-prashnéna, sévayā. (G.)

(Know it by earnest quest, and questioning, With due submission and with humble heart And service, of the old and wise who know).

In Buddhist scriptures too the name Brahma is given to the Supreme;

"Brahma am I, Great Brahma, the Supreme, The Unsurpassed, Perceiver of All Things, Controller, Maker, Fashioner, Lord of All, Chief, Victor, Ruler, Father of All Beings That ever have been, are, and are to be."

(Kévatta-Sutta, Digha-Nikāya, BB., 115)

Yehovah (Jehovah, Yahveh) is the Hebrew word; Hayy and Yahyā are Arabic for the same, O-hau, O-hau-hau, are Sāma-Vēda's names for it; J(I)āo is Phoenician All these names are formed of vowel sounds aspirated; breathings of man, each of which 'names' and invokes God. 'So-(a)ham,' '(a)ham-Sah', 'That am I', 'I am That', is a-japā Gāyatrī, 'unspoken perpetual prayer', of and by each and every living being It is un-uttered, yet is uttered in and by every ingoing and outgoing breath; for none can live at all without perpetual support from Him, Anima Munds, Soul of the World, Life-Breath of the Universe 1

It is noteworthy that there are some 'natural' soundnames of the Supreme First, there is the inner sound of AUM (pronounced Om), like the humming of bees, or the sound heard when the ears are tightly closed
With a little practice, this sound can be heard, within the head, between the ears as it were, even without closing the ears It is the an a hata a nada, 'un-struck or un-uttered sound', mentioned in connection with yoga-ways Gradations of it are mentioned in Upanis shats and Yoga books "The Word was with God and the word was God," says the English Bible Probably the original Hebrew word means 'sound', rather than 'word'. Akasha, (which means Space, as well as the primal 'element' filling Space), whose 'attribute' or 'quality' is 'sound' (as 'touch' is of 'air', 'taste' of

In the Chinese religions It is called Yi (Changeless Principle of Change), Then (Heaven, Heavenly Destiny, Divine Ordainment, Fate), Tai Chi (Great Ultimate or Origin), Ch'i (Universal Energy), Tao (Unnameable and Indescribable Principle of All Activity; Way, Reason, of the Universe), Hun Tun or Hun Lun (Chaos), Ming (Destiny), Shen (Spirit),

"water"), is the first manifestation, therefore it may well be said that the word', i.e., sound, was with God, and was God

Next after this natural primal name, which seems to be the Hidden, Inner, Name, sometimes spoken of in mystical works as 'the lost (s s , hidden) word or name', there comes the first uttered name. This is some form or other, in the older languages, of a collocation of the primary vowels. combined with the aspirate, and some. times the nasal also, e.g., O hau-hau in Sama-Vedaalso Huvā-hāyı, Huvā-hoyı, Hāyı-Hāyı, (cf 'Ā-hāt ' A-hai', of Vikings' and other boatmen's songs). Iao. among Phoenicians and Egyptians, Y (od)-H (6)-V (au)-H(é), m Hebrew. Hayy m Arabic, also Yahya, T(Ch)ao, in Chinese. Heu-Heu, among some African Negro tribes. And so on. The sound of 'breathing', wherein and whereby the (non-yogi) living human being realises his Self-existence, continuously, incessantly, 'I am'. a s m i ', is imitated in its various shades by these names. A person in great pain, groaning, utters but a form of this primal sound, and thereby calls upon the Supreme for help, unconsciously All sorts of 'moods of mind'. states of being', of grief, wonder, fear, anger, enquiring curiosity, sorrow, joy, may be, and are, expressed by such exclamations, interjections, interrogations, as Ah!, Ha!, Oho , Oh , Hum , Hun , Am l, Am ?, Hay , Aba , Wah!, Un?, At-hai!, Umm-umph!, Ahuh!, Ah-ah!, and so forth.

194 UN-UTTERED EVER-UTTERED LITANY [CH II

Hsuen (the Mysterious) Jainism, like Buddhism, gives ultimately the same name, Param-Ātmā, i.s., 'the Supreme Self', to the Ultimate Mystery, as Vaidika Dharma does Thus, in a fine prayer-hymn, which is in common use among Jainas, we read.

Yah darshana-jñāna-sukha-sva-bhāvah,
Samasta-samsāra-vikāra-bāhyah,
Samādhi-gamyah Param-Ātma-sanjñah,
Sa Déva-dévo hṛdayê mam-āstām
Sarvam nirā-krtya vi-kalpa-jālam,
Samsāra-kāntāra-nipāta-hétum,
Vivikţam Ātmānam av-éksha-māno,
Nilīyasê tvam Param-Ātma tattvé.
Yaih Param-Ātmā-(A)mita-gati-vandyah,
Sarva-vi-vikţo, bhrsham an-avadyah,
Shashvad-dhyāţo manasi, labhanté
Mukţi-nikétam vibhava-varam té.
(J. Amita-gati, Sāmāyika-pātha.)

(May He abide always within my heart,

'The Supreme Self', the One God of all gods,

Transcending all 'this'-world's ephemera,

By deepest meditation reachable!

They who have passed beyond all arguments

And doubts and false attachments of this world,

They only can behold in purity

'The Supreme Self', and in It merge themselves.

Who take their refuge in that 'Supreme-Self', Stainless, beyond particularities, And fix their minds on It devotedly, Unfailingly they gain Its Blessedness)

Says Kwan-yın-tse

"Find the Tao in Your-Self and you know every thing else. . . The holy man recognises Unity in Multiplicity and Multiplicity in Unity. . . The One is eternally unchangeable." !

A western poet has written:

Some call It Will, and some call It God; Some call It Fate, and some call It God, Some call It Evolution, and some call It God; Some call It Chance, and some call It God;

¹ See Suzuki, History of Chinese Philosophy, pp 42-43.

The name Aham, given to the I, Self, (Universal as well as Individual), in Samskit, (the word etymologically means deliberately 'well-constructed and refined language') embodies all the above significance and more In Samskit alphabet, A is the first and H is the last letter-sound Self, A-h(am), is First and Last and comprehends all, the first and last letters of the alphabet include between them all the other letters and all knowledge of all things, which can be expressed by means of letters and collocations of them, is, words. The special natural significance of each letter of the alphabet is mentioned in Tantra-books (See Isis Unveiled, 16 Hewa, Eva, Iao, etc., with the help of the Index).

Some call It Force, and some call it God.

Some call It th' Unknowable, some call it God.

Whatever the name each person, who has attained to the stage of 'thinking', may give to it, the Ultimate Mystery has to be recognised. But its nearest, dearest, fullest, greatest, and withal most intelligible and intimately familiar name is 'I', the Self in Me and in All alike.

So-(A)ham asm-īty-agré vyāharaţi, tato
(A)ham-namā abhavat, ţasmād-api étarhi āmanţriţo (A)ham ayam iţi éva agré uktvā
ţadā anyan-nāma brūté, yad asya bhavati (U)
('I am' is what He uttered first of all,
Therefore his principal, best, and most true
Name is the 'I'; and so we see that when
A person is thus questioned. 'Who are you',
He first of all says 'I am', then he adds
Whate'er his special name is—'So-and-so')

^{1&}quot; O You who are ', Ecclesiastes calls you Omnipotence, the Maccabees call you Creator, the Epistle to the Ephesians calls you Liberty, Baruch calls you Immensity; the Psalms call you Wisdom and Truth, St. John calls you Light, the Book of Kings, calls you Lord, Exodus calls you Providence, Leviticus, Holiness, Esdras, Justice, Creation calls you God, Mancalls you Father, but Solomon calls you Mercy, and that is the Fairest of all Your Names "Victor Hugo, Les Missrables, Bk. I, ch. v. Incidentally, God'seems do be the same word as Persian 'Khudā, and, possibly, the latter is related to Skt. 'Sva dhā', Self-maintainer'.

B.U.A.R.] SUPREME SELF, THE GREATEST GAIN 197

Āļmanas-tu kāmāya sarvam vai prīyam bhavaļī. (U.)

(All things that may be dear to us are dear For the sweet sake of our-own-Self alone.)

Aţachā ahmāi vīspānām vahishtém, Khathroyā nā Khāṭhrém daidīṭā. (Z, Gāthā, 43, 2).

(Give me the gift that is the best of all, Give me the Inmost Self of all the selves.)

You Mou Ahmāi séraoshém dāna chayas chā, lipājimén halirvātā amérétātā (Z., Gāthā, 45, 5).

(Who fix their love and choice on Me alone, Me who reside in them, they do attain Self-knowledge and Eternal Deathlessness The Higher Self and Immortality.)

> Yam labdhvä ch-äparam läbham manyate n-ädhikam tatah, Yasmin sthito na duhkhena gurunā api vi-chālyaté (G)

(Than gain of Whom there is no greater gain; When fixed in Whom, sorrows shake one no more.)

"God is the Universal Self, the individual self is 'beaven in us'. The immaterial divine essence, Ryochi, is 'God in us', and dwells in each individual. It is the true Self The false self is an acquired personality arising from perverted beliefs; it is 'persona', is, that general idea of our nature which we have built up from experiencing our effect upon the world around and its effect upon us Ryochi is 'al-one being' or 'al-one knowing', as summum bonum, 'bliss'; it is the light which pervades the world; it is immortal all-knowing Good. It is the mediator and reconciler of 'the pair of opposites', namely, R1 and K1, world-soul and world-matter respectively, attributes, both, of God, who is their union. Similarly the human soul embraces both R1 and K1. As the essence of the world, God enfoldeth the world, but at the same time, He is also in our midst and even in our own bodies' (NAKAE TAJU).

Sūfis say ·

Kufr o dīn har do dar raba-t poyān, Wahdahū lā sharīk-ılah goyān. (S)

Nakae Taju, the 'Sage of Omi' is a "distinguished Japanese philosopher of the seventeenth century Hebelonged to the Chu-Hi school of philosophy which had migrated from China". The above account of his view is abridged from C. G. Jung, Psychological Types, pp. 268-269, whose description is based upon Tetsujiro Incuye; Japanese Philosophy, (1913) The 'bliss' of Ryochi is the same as the å nanda of Brahma, lassaful-iläksyah, beatitude, 'persona', 'personality', is the same as individualised purusha, jīv-ā mā, shakks. Yoga-sūṭra, II-3, explains how this 'persona' is concreted, conglomerated, densified, hardened, upon the basis of a s m i tā, egoism, by the growths of rāga, dvésha, a b h i-n i vésha, likes, dislikes, and stubborn complexes Belief and misbelief are galloping.

Both, on the road to Thee, both calling loud
For what is the One Only Ultimate 1)
Momin o Tarsa, Yahūd o nék o bad,
Jumlagān rā hast rū sūyé Abad. (S)
(Muslim, Christian, or Jew, or good or bad,
All turn their eyes to the Eternal One.)

Muhammad said:

At-turqu il-Aliāhi kan nufūsu banī Ādama ' (H.) (There are as many ways to God as souls, As many as the breaths of Adam's sons.)

Yé yathā Mām pra-padyanté, ţān ṭaṭhā éva bhajāmi Aham ; Mama vartma anu-vartanté manushyāh, Pārṭha!, sarvashah. (Gitā).

(Whichever way men seek to come to Me, On that same way I meet, and care for, them. Mine is each way men follow anywhere.)

A profound truth Each individualised soul manifests an infinitesimally different aspect of the One Infinite. Therefore its involution, its return-journey to God, must also be, in the same degree, infinitesimally different from that of all others. Christian theology has a saying to the same effect: "As many

¹ Another reading 18—At turqu 11-Allähi ba hasab-ul-Anfüs. Sanse 15 same as are the breaths in the nostrile, so many are the ways to God". But the Goal is ever the Self-same.

Ruchinām vai-chitryād rju-kutila-nānā-patha-jushām Nṛnām Eko gamyah Tvam asī payasām arnava īva,

(Sheva-Mahema-stute)

(Thou the One Goal of all the many paths Some easy, straight, some winding, difficult, Men follow as they variously incline— As of the countless streams the one vast sea!)

> Yé apı anya-dévatä-bhaktäh yajanté shraddhayā anvitäh, Té-(a)pi Mām éva, Kauntéya ¹, yajanti a-vidhi-pürvakam (G)

(Who worship other gods with heart of faith, They too adore but Me behind those forms, Unknowing yet of the one direct way.)¹

[&]quot;Quot homines tot des is a Latin saying, 'so many men, so many gods". One meaning of the Indian popular saying, that there are thirty-three crore (three hundred and thirty million) gods is the same, one god for each person. Interpret such sayings as you like, flippantly, sceptically, sarcastically, uncharitably, or seriously, reverently, philosophically, charitably; either way it comes to this, ultimately—that, since Man and God are one in Essence, (by any and every philosophical or scientific view, Materialist or Spiritual), therefore 'God makes Man in His own image', and, also, 'Man makes God in His own image', a every man's 'sdeal,

E.U A.R.] WAYS TO GOD AS MANY AS SOULS 201

Indeed all names belong to It alone

Qurān says

Lillābul asmā ul husnā (Q.)

(All beauteous names are His-the book declares.)

It tenderly adds the adjective 'beautiful', lest younger souls be disturbed Elsewhere Muhammad has explained.

To kallımun annāşo alā qadre uqulehum. (H.)

(Speak unto men according as may be Capacity of their intelligence)

So Kṛshna has said the same.

Yad yad vibhūti-mat sattvam
Shrī-mad ūrjitam éva vā,
Tad Tad év-a ava-gachchha tvam
Mama téio-(a)msha-sambhavam ¹ (G)

savage's, barbarian's, sophisticate's, un sophisticate's, scientist's, philosopher's, saint's, seer's, sage's, is equally an aspect of God (or Matter or Nature or however else you choose to call the Ultimate Fact), and, therefore, every way that any one follows in life, (whether good or even ill), is, ultimately, a way of God, and to God, for God fulfils Himself in countless ways.

'Souls not yet sufficiently experienced and advanced,
- are apt to he repelled, even greatly angered, on hearing such statements as are quoted on preceding pages, of identity, in essence, of man, nay, of all living things with God Such scriptural declarations must not be pressed upon them For them, the Third Person, 'He', is enough, later on, they will turn to the First Person, 'I'
Meanwhile, for purposes of creedal and communal peace,

(Whatever shows forth glory, splendour, might-Know, from My tétas-aspect 15 it born)

Tān akrisna-vido mandān krtsna-vit na vichālavét. Na buddhi-bhédam janayéd aifiānam karma-sanginām (Let not the man, who knoweth all, disturb The slower minds of those who know not all: Do not confuse child-minds with abstract thoughts:

They must continue for some more time yet To learn from pious rituals and good works.)

they should be entreated to ponder the question "Has the same God created all the races of men, past and present, or have different Gods done so? If the same, then must not the same truths about Himself, and the same commands for mutual goodwill and peace among men, be embodied in all religions, past and present, with only as much surface-difference as there is between complexions and clothings and languages of these different races, and climatic and other natural conditions of different countries?

It is true, there are some sects, in all religions, which are firmly convinced that God deliberately creates some souls (belonging to those sects) to enjoy heaven eternally, and other souls (belonging to all other sects) to suffer hell perpetually Unhappily this stage of extreme self-righteousness has to be passed through, it seems, by every soul, at some time or other, in the course of its conic evolution One can only very gently and humbly mvite such to reflect whether God, whom they believe to be All-Merciful, can possibly be so cruel.

e. u.a.'r] "temper wind to shorn lamb" 203

Speaking out too much and too freely about things which they cannot yet comprehend will only perplex child-minds. As the English proverb wisely advises, 'give milk to babes and meat to the strong.' But elders should diligently coax babes on towards stronger food in due time, and not try to keep them on milk all their life, as priestcraft does but too extensively

A Sūfī supplies the needed comment on the Qurānic adjective "beautiful"

Ba nāmē ān ké Ü nāmē na dārad, Ba har nāmē ke khwānī sar bar ārad

(He hath no name, and yet whatever name Ye may call out, He lifts an answering head,)

Another says plainly:

Dar mazhabé ä'shiqane Yak-rang, Iblis o Israfii ham-sang. (S)

(In the religion of the souls that love The Changeless One, Satan weighs just the same.

And is hewn out from the same block of stone,
As Purity's Archangel Israfil)

Yet another says.

Chun nék o bad az Khudā-e dīdand, Rū az hama khalq dar kashīdand. (S) 204 BOTH GOOD AND EVIL COME FROM GOD [CH. 11

(The wise saw Good and Evil both as God's; And so they drew their hearts away from both, And fixed them on the Master of the Two.)

Finally, Quran itself emphatically declares the whole truth

Al khairo wa-s-sharro min Allāhi-tā'lā. (Q) (Both Good and Evil come from the High God.)

One of the Quranic names of God is Al-Muzil, the Misleader and Tempter and Tester, so Māyī, the 'Illusion-maker,' in Véda-Upanishats The implication of the Lords' Prayer, "Lead us not into temptation", is the same, i.e., God does lead into temptation, those who do not pray thus Other texts of Bible make it clear that God tempts, or allows to be tempted, in order to try and test

And the full significance of the Gitā-verse, quoted above, is that while radiant and magnificent forms of life and existence manifest the Téjas or Jalālī aspect of the Supreme Self, other forms express others of His infinite aspects.

Vishtabhya Aham Idam krisnam Ek-āmshéna sthijo jagat (G)

(The whole of all this restless moving world Is but a little part of Me; the rest Of Me is ever in eternal rest.)

E.U.A.R.] SELF TASTES GOOD AND EVIL BOTH 205

For, indeed, He, the I, is the One in Which all the Many is ever included; the One, of Which all the Many are but as attributes.

Esha éva Āṭmā ānando ajaro amṛto, na saḍhunā karmanā bhūyān, no éva a-sāḍhunā karmanā kanī-yān, ésha hi éva énam sādhu karma kārayaṭi ṭam yam (anu-ninīshaté); ésha éva énam a-sādhu karma kārayaṭi ṭam yam lokébhyo nunuṭsaṭé..., Kaushī-ṭaki Up, ni. 9.)

('Tis He Himself who makes him do good deed, Whom He doth wish, upward and high to lead; And He Himself who, when He wants to taste The fruit of evil in Life's burning waste, Impels the human form, which he assumes, To do ill deed, whose sin that form comsumes No Other doth He, thus, to good or ill Impel; Himself of both He tastes His fill. Good deeds, in countless numbers, add no more To Him; nor ill make Him less than before.)

Wahdat dar Zāt, Kasrat dar Sıfāt. (S)
(In Essence, Unity; Attributes, Multitude)
Guṇānām Āshrayah tu Ekah, Nirguṇah Kévalah saḍā;
Gun-opa-gunakānām tu
Samkhyā na éva iha vidyaṭé
Ekah Dharmī dharma-shūnyah,
Dharmah tu sakalam jagat;

206 'ALL MOODS, GOOD, BAD, ARE MINE' [CH. II

Pratyaksham Khé Mahā-Shūnyé
(A)sankhy-(a-)āndānı bhramantı hı
(Yoga Vāsishtha)

(Substratum of all Attributes is One,
Al-one, Eternal, Void of Attributes;
Of these, major and minor, count is not.
The One Possessor of all Attributes
Is yet devoid of all these Attributes;
This may we see e'en with the eyes of flesh
Does not this Infinite expanse of Heaven,
Vast Emptiness of Space, (Plenum of Self),
Hold all these countless ever-whirling orbs,
'Eggs of the Infinite', untouched by them?)

While warning the wise man not to disturb the simple mind, to the advanced and thoughtful soul capable of hearing and holding wisdom, Krshņa says clearly:

Maţ-tah para-ţaram n-ānyat kın-chid astı, Dhanan-jaya ¹
'Mayı sarvam ıdam pr-oţam
süţre manı-ganā ıva.
Ye cha-ıva sāttvikāh bhāvāh, rājasāh, ţāmasāsh-cha ye,
Maţ-tah ev-eţi tān viddhi;
na ţu Aham teshu, te Mayı.
Sukham, duhkham, bhavah, bhāvah,
Bhayam, ch-ābhayam eva cha,

R.U.A.R.] SIN-MERIT—BONDS OF IRON-GOLD 207

Yashah, ayashah, tapah, dānam,
Maṭ-ṭah sarvam pra-varṭate.
Amṛṭam cha éva, Mrtyuh cha,
Sat, A-sat cha, Aham, Arjuna ¹,
Tapāmı Aham, Aham varshah,
Nigrhnāmı, utsrjāmı cha;
Prabhavah, Pralayah, Sthānam,
Nidānam, Bijam, Avyayam
Mat-tah smrṭih, jñānam, ap-ohanam cha. (G.)

(Nought is outside of Me; all This is strung
On Me, as beads upon a thread; all moods,
All acts, good, bad, mixed, all are Mine alone;
Yet am I not in them, they are in Me.
Joy, sorrow, life, death, fear, and fearlessness,
Fame, infamy, gifts, acts of sacrifice,
All these arise from Me and Me Al-one,
Death, Deathlessness, Truth, Falsehood, all am I;
Drought, Rain abundant, Seed, Vitality,
And Birth and Death—all these are made by Me.
From Me, in Me, Forgetfulness of Self
And Folly's utmost limit; from and in Me Wisdom too of Remembrance of the Self)

Punyam cha papam cha pāpé.
(SHANKAR-ĀÇHĪRYA, Shārīraka Bhāshya.)

(Sin, ment, both are sin, for both do bind The Soul—with chain of iron, or of gold) From the transcendental standpoint, each term of every pair of opposites is necessary to throw the other into relief, to bring it into manifest existence, by contrast, and also to neutralise it, ultimately. Good cannot possibly ex-ist without contrasting evil, and vice versa. Hence to abolish evil, we must abolish good also, neither love nor hate is to be assigned to the Absolute Self, which includes both equally.

Parı-natı saba jivana ki tīna bhāntı baranī: Ēka pāpa, éka punya, éka rāga-haranī 75 men shubba ashubba andha, doù kara karma-bandha. Vīta-rāga-parı-natı hī bbaya-samudra taranî Tvāgu shubha-kriyā-kalāpa, karu mata kadā cha pāpa, Shubha mén na magna hoi Shuddha-tā bisaranī Yāvata shuddh-opa-yoga pāvata nābīn mano-ga, Tāvata hī karana yoga kahī punya-karanī Uncha nīcha dashā dhār. chita-pramāda ko bidār.

R.U.A.R.] DO THY DUTY ONLY, STRICTLY 209

Unchalī dashā té giro maţa adho dharanī. Bhāga Chandra ', yā prakāra Jīvana hai sukha apāra, Yāhī ké adhāra Syād—

Vāda kī ucharanī (J, BHĀGA CHANDRA.) (Three-staged the Path of souls inherently, Each soul must pass through all successively; First is the stage of vicious selfishness; To it succeeds the time of virtuousness. Last comes the stage free from all loves and hates, All personal desires This last, the path Lighted by Duty only, helps the soul To break the bonds of sin and merit, too. Forged by the passions which imprison it, And takes it safe across life's stormy sea Give up the wish to earn merit for heaven: But do not therefore cease from purity. Nor dream of ever doing deed of sin. Observe the rules prescribed for piety. Till the mind merges in the fount and source Of Purity Bear patiently the states, Now high, now low, which fortune brings to thee: Guard watchfully 'gainst errings of the mind, See it falls not from noble to base mood Such is the only way to fill with Peace Of mind and heart our life upon this earth, Such is the essence of what Jina taught.)

The Bible of Judaism and Christianity also clearly indicates that all pairs of opposites, including the pair of Good and Evil, are in the One

"Shall evil befall a city, and the Lord hath not done it?" (B., Amos.) "I form the light and create darkness; I make peace and create evil, I am the Lord that doeth all these things... I have created the smith that bloweth the fire of coals, and bringeth forth a weapon for his work; and I have created the waster to destroy" (B, Isaiah)

We have seen before, that in Vaidika Dharma (now, in its corrupted form, in current practice, known as 'Hinduism'—and which living religion today is free from unfortunate degenerations, caused by the evil ingrained in human nature together with the good?), God is Destroyer as Rudra, Tempter and Tester as Māyā-vī, Punisher and Corrector as Yama, and so on; that Islam recognises Him as Al-Qahhār, Al-Jabbār, Al-Muzil, Al-Mumit, 's. Wrathful, Oppressor, Misleader and Tester, Death-Causer of virtuous and sinful alike; and so forth.

Mystery, perplexity, anguish of heart torn between faith and doubt, faith in the ultimate Beneficence of the Supreme, doubt created by the glaring fact of endless misery of all degrees, within each self and all around—this conflict vanishes as soon as we realise that 'I' is the 'I'; that 'I am' means 'the

I is': that God. Lord. Allah. Ishvara, all ultimately mean the Universal all-pervading Self: that all Good and all Evil, the seeds of all the noblest virtues and all the basest vices, are all in Me, in every 'individual self', because they all are in the Universal Self: that all life, all this World-Process. is incessantly, and mevitably, the Interplay of Opposites of endless pains, sorrows, miseries, and corresponding endless pleasures, joys, delights, all which balance and neutralise each other in the Ab-solu-te Self, the Self ab-solv-ed from all relative 'opposites', zaujam, ziddam, dvam-dvam, twoand-two. But 'child-mind' cannot, and must not be expected to, see the whole Truth. It has to evolve and grow to the stage of 'parent-mind'. become able to stand on its own feet, and develope power of self-conscious intro-spection, antardrshti, pratyak-chétanā, sair-i-nafasī, chashm-2-basirat, 'mental eye', 'inner eye', before it will be able to reduce Third Person into First Person. 'He' into 'I'. Then it will recognise it-self, and every self, as a piece of the Self, and as maker of its own destiny, which destiny, in the 'infinite' "view. is the same for all: endless Play. Pastime. Drama, of equal Tragedy and Comedy. Till then, ie, so long as it remains 'child-mind', it must rest in the arms, or be helped along by the hands, of a 'parent', an 'elder'.

Without Self, without the Principle of Consciousness, the Universe disappears, and science vanishes. All things else may be doubted, Self cannot be. Worst doubter cannot doubt himself Scientists have therefore grown wise, and have receded from the gush and rush of materialistic turbulence, natural to the first flush of the growth of science. The faith of great scientists of the day has been already mentioned, that this world is a world governed by Spirit and not by Matter, unless, indeed, we endow Matter with all the qualities of Spirit, and then it means only that we have ex-changed the connotations of the two words; (see pp. 22 et seq.). And this Supreme Spirit is in Me, is L.

. As Christ says:

"Believe Me that I am in the Father and the Father is in Me... He that has seen Me has seen the Father... If ye had known Me ye should have known my Father also." '(B)

And as Muhammad says also: Anā Ahmad bilā mīm. (H.)

Man rā anī, rā al Haqqa (H)

Man a'rafa nafsahū faqad a'rafa Rabbahū (H)

, Nas-uliāhā fa'ansāhum anfusahum. (Q.)

(Ahmad am I, minus the letter 'm', Which means, 'I am Ahad, the One alone' He who hath seen Me surely hath seen God.

He who hath known him-Self hath known his God. He who forgetteth God forgets him-self)

Confucius says:

"What the undeveloped man seeks is others; what the advanced man seeks is him-Self." (Quoted in Ency. Brit., 14th edn, Art. 'Confucius'.)

Hayashi-Razan, an eminent Japanese scholar of Chinese classics, of the seventeenth century, says:

"The human mind, partaking of Divinity, is an abode of the Deity, which is the Spiritual Essence. There exists no highest Deity outside the human mind." (Shinto-Dingu, quoted in Ency Brit., Ibid.)

"The heavens are still; no sound Where then shall God be found? Search not'in distant skies, In man's own heart He lies."

(Shao Yung, translated and quoted by H D Gibbs, The Religions of Ancient China, 1011-1077.)

"Shintoists... consistently upheld the thean-thropic doctrine of Kan-nagara, of man being essentially divine; Kan-nagara, kan from kanu, and nagara,... man himself divine... The divine and the human are one in quality; only, the latter is temporary, the former enduring. The everlasting divinity is called human during the time it resides on this planet." (Inazo Nitobe, Japan, pp 309-321)

214 YET IS GOD MORE THAN SONS OF GOD [CH. II

This, in Védānta, is the distinction between Param-Āt mā and Jīv-āt mā; in Sūfism, between Rah-ul-arwāh and Rāh; in Gnostic Mysticism, between God and Son of God As Christ says:

"I and my Father are one... Yet is my Father greater than I... I am in my Father, and ye in me, and I in you." (B.)

In the words of Shankar-āchārva.

Satı apı bhed-āpa-gamé.

Nātha ¹, Tav-āham, na māma-kīnah Țvam l Sāmudro hi tarangah.

Kva-chana samudro na tärangah'! (Shat-padī.)

(Though all false sense of separateness be past, Yet am I thine, My Lord!, and not Thou mine! The wave unto the ocean doth belong; Never the ocean to the tiny wave!)

"I have said, ye are gods; and all of you are children of the Most High." (B., Psalms, 82. 6)

In the earlier centuries A.C., the word was written in two ways, Chrestos, and Chrestos or Christos, in Greek Chrestos (? Skt shréshtha) meant 'good, best, excellent, gracious', the other meant 'anointed', 'baptised with the waters of the Sacred Wisdom, (? Skt Krshta, Kishna, meant 'the dragged, harlowed, ploughed, tried and tested and initiated, cultivated and watered, also, the attractor, also, the attracted).

It is with reference to this that Jesus says,

"Is it not written in your laws, 'I said, ye are gods?'... Say ye (to me)...'Thou blasphemest's because I said, 'I am the son of God'?" (B, John.)

The Truth of the Infinite is indeed not easy to put into words which are finite, and are so easily and so frequently misunderstood. What wonder that Buddha and other great Teachers became silent, when questioned on ultimate mysteries, by persons not ready and not able to understand the thought behind the veil of words.

Man a'rafa Rabba-hü kal-lä lesänuhü. (H)
(The man who findeth God loseth his speech)

Guroh tu maunam vyäkhyänam, Shishyäh tu uchchhinna-samshayäh (Guru-Gitä.)

(The speaker doth discourse quite speechlessly, Yet are the pupils' doubts wholly re-solved)

Mahramé în hosh juz bé-hosh n-îst; Mar zabān rā mushtarī juz gosh nîst, (RUMI.)

(Only th' Unconscious know this Consciousness; The tongue's sense but the speechless ear can guess.)

Gırā a-naına, naına bınu bānī, Kehi bidhi an-upama jāi bakhānī ! Sūna bhiti para bibidha ranga ké ţanu bin likhé Chitéré ! (Țulasī Dīsa, Rāmāyana and Vinaya Patrikā.) (Sightless the tongue is, voiceless are the eyes;

How then describe that Vision, all unique!

Wall-Emptiness, the Painter-Bodiless;

Yet pictures infinite in forms and hues!)

"I am in the Father, and the Father in me... I am in my Father and ye in me, and I in you... Abide in Me, and I in you... without Me you cannot do anything." (B. John, xiv)

Yé bhajanti tu Mām bhaktyā, Mayi té, téshu ch-āpi Aham. (G)

(They—who love Me with love sincere, they are In Me, and I also am e'er in them)

¹ Ū dar dīle man ast, wa dile man ba-daste Ū, Chữn āyīnah ba daste man, wa man ḍar āyīnah (S.)

' (He's in my heart, my heart is in His hands;
As mirror in my hand, and I in it.)

Sarva-bhūtastham Ātmānam,
Sarva-bhūtāni cha Ātmani,
(7) ii Ikshaté yoga-yukt-Ātmā,
Sarvatra sama-ḍarshanah.
Yah Mām pashyati sarvatra,
Sarvam cha Mayi pashyati,
Tasya Aham na pra-nashyāmi,
Sa'cha Mé na pranashyati. (0)

(The soul established in the final yoga,

Seeing all as Equal, nay, as same and One,

Beholds all things in Me and Me in all. He who thus sees Me in all things, and all In Me, unto him can I ne'er be lost, Nor can he ever be lost unto Me)

"All things are Himself, and Himself is concealed on every side," (Idrā Rabbā, X 117); "Adam Kadmon, (Adam-1-Qadīm) the Eternal Man or Self of the Kabalists, contains in Him-Self all the souls of the Israelites, and He is Him-Self in every soul." (Schar, or Zohar, Introduction, pp 305, 312.)

Yah tu sarvānı bhutānı Āţmanı éva anu-pashyatı, Sarva-bhūtéshu ch-Ātmānam, tato na vı-jugupsaté, ţato na vı-chikitsaté $(Isha\ U)$

(Who seeth all in Self and Self in all, Doubteth no more, nor hateth any more.)

We have noted elsewhere that the ability of a person to put off any one particular religion, and put on any other, proves that the soul of the human being is superior to all particular religions, and can judge between them all at will

The case for the supremacy of the I has been still more conclusively put, in some Suff verses.

Zān kı ustā rā Shināsā ham tu ī, Jumla ustā rā khud Ustā ham tu ī.

Quoted by H P B. Isis Unveiled, II, 342

Chun Haqiqat rā Muhaqqıq khud tu i, Am haq in-ast Am-ul-Haq tu i. Hastiyé Rab rā Mujawwiz chun tu i, Bil-yaqin Alläh-e-Akbar khud tu i

(Since thou decidest who is fit to take
Or not to take for Teacher, thou thy-Self Must surely than all teachers greater be.
Since thou dost judge that this is True, this Not,
Maker of Truth, most True, thy-Self must be.
Since thou determinest whether God is Or is not, surely thine own Self must be
The inmost being of Godhead, Greatest God)

Evolution, Recapitulation, Phylogenesis, Palingenesis, Rebirth.

So far, we have endeavoured to expound the fundamental Truth of truths, vis.: There is an Ultimate Mystery behind all Life, behind all World-Procession, behind the whole 'Uni-verse,' (from Lat. unus, one, and vertere, to turn; 'that which revolves round the One'); It is the Creator, Preserver, Destroyer, of all objects, It can be best and most nearly understood and recognised in terms of Spirit and Mind; It is all-pervading Spirit and Universal Mind; It is the Principle of all Life and Consciousness; It is the Spirit, Soul, Life, Mind of the whole World, It's nearest, dearest, best, most common, indeed universal, name is 'I': It, as 'I'. bears every name, wears every form, knows, desires, does, everything that is known, every desire that is felt, every act that is done-'I am so-and-so: I know, wish, do, this and that'; thus, every living thing, which regards itself as 'I', especially Man, who self-consciously regards and speaks of him-self as 'I', is in essence, one with It: It, that Ultimate Mystery, is our very Self-so all religious declare. Though all names belong to It, still, every religion, every language, has given it one or two names which are most frequently used in it, e.g., Param-Ātmā, Ātmā, Brahma, in Vaidika Dharma (or Hinduism) and Samskrt: Allah, Rab, Malik, Maula, Khudā, in Islām (or Mohammedanism) and Arabic-Persian; God, (another form of 'Khuda') in Christianity and English. Aburā-Mazadā, in Zoroastrianism; Jehovah, in Judaism (Hebraism, Jewish religion); Sat Sri Akal, (the Timeless), in Sikhism; Alma, Brahma, Shūnya, Amitābha, in Buddhism; Ātmā, Param-fitma. Nir-anjana, in Jainism; Tao in Taoism; Shungti (the One Supreme Being), Tien ' (Heaven). Tai-Chi (the Great Ultimate) in Confucianism: Ame-no-mi-naka-nushi (Heaven-centreruling Deity, the Absolute Universal Self) in Shinto-15m. We have also seen that the World-Process 15 one unending Drama of infinite inextricably mingled Tragedy-and-Comedy, 'Pairs of Opposites', wherein God is perpetually forgetting himself into Man, and Man is perpetually remembering himself back into God again.

Out of this arises the next important truth, viz., that of Samsara-Chakra. Charkh-1-Gardan, 'Cyclical Wheeling', 'Revolution', se, Involution (of Spirit in Matter) and re-Evolution (of Spirit out of Matter), descent and ascent, regress and progress, av-aroha and a-roha, isal and tritade, nazil and uruj. This corresponds to, and links up with, the scientific view of Evolution and Phylogenesis, (Ontogenesis, Palingenesis, etc.) Some religions speak of Re-births of the same soul in several physical bodies, one after another Others interpret 'progress' differently. Other English words for 're-birth' are 're-incarnation' and 'metempsychosis', Skt., punar-janma, Arab-Per, tanāsukh The Vaidika doctrine is well known, that the soul comes to the stage of man after passing through many lower forms, and takes numerous rebirths in the human form. In fact. Hinduism Buddhism, Jainism, Sikhism, are so full of it that it is not needed to quote texts in proof. It does not appear that Bible and Quran contain any explicit affirmation of rebirth But they nowhere deny it either. And Christ said that the prophet Elijah had come again as John the Baptist

"Behold, I will send you Elijah the prophet before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord." (B. Malachi.)

"Iesus began to say unto the multitudes concerning John the Baptist... For all the prophets and the law prophesied until John. And if ye will receive it, this is Elias (Elijah) which was for to come." (B., Matthew.)

"And he shall go before . . . in the spirit and power of Elias." (Ibid)

"King Herod the tetrarch... beheaded John in the prison " (Ibid)

"And his disciples asked him . . . and Jesus answered ... that Elias is come already, and they knew him not, but have done unto him whatsoever they listed .. Then the disciples understood that he spake unto them of John the Baptist" (Ibid)

"As Jesus passed by, he saw a man, blind from birth. His disciples asked him: Master, who did sin, this man, or his parents, that he was born blind?" (B., John, 13, 1-2.)

"For I was alive, without the law, once; but when the commandment came, sin revived, and "I died." (B. Rom., vit. 9)

Minhammad also has said .

Yā ayyohal ınsāno ınnakā kādıhun elā Rabbekā kādīhan fa mulāqīhe... latarkabun-na tabagan an tabag. (Q.)

(O Man! thou hast to go back unto God, Thy God, thy Self, with labour and with pain, Ascending stage by stage, plane after plane.) Kṛsbna says.

Anéks-janma-samsıddhah tato yatı param gatım. Bahtinam janmanam anté ıñana-van Mam prapadyaté. (G.)

(Many the births that man has to pass through, Before the Supreme Knowledge comes to him, And he accomplishes his destiny, Reaches the Final Goal, and findeth Me)

"Heaven's way always goes round". (Chinese proverb.)¹

And there are texts in Quran which may be interpreted as meaning that man lives and dies repeatedly, even as worlds are created and destroyed repeatedly.

Manvanjarānı a-sankhyānı, sargah, samhārah éva cha, Krīdan ıva éjeţ kuruţé Paraméshthī punah punah. (M.)

Quoted by Lin Yutang, My Country and My People, "History repeats itself" is the western version.

² Some Suff sects believe that Muhammad was Abraham reborn, and Abraham's two sons were reborn as All and All's son Husain.

(Cycles and cycling worlds, all numberless, Creations and destructions, doth He make Over and over, as in playful sport— The Lord of All, standing beyond them all.)

"How will the resurrection of the dead take place? To this answered Ahura Mazadā:—When I have created each and all of these things, would it be barder for me to bring about the resurrection?" (Z., Bundehesh, ch. 31) 1

Innahü yabda-ul-khalqa summa yoldoh, le yajze-yallazina-āmanu wa a'melus saulehāte b-il qiste... Kama bada-anā awwala khalqin noldah... Yakhloqo-kum fi butuni-ummuhāţi-kum khalqam-minā bā'de khalqin zulumāţin salas...(Q.)

(He makes a world-creation; then again
He reproduces it, so that He may
With justice recompense those who believe
In God's Word and do good to fellow-beings.
God sayeth—As We did originate
The first creation, so we re-produce...
He in your mother's wombs createth you,
Creation on creation, yet again.)

Mınhā khalaqnā kum, wa fī hā noīdo-kum, wa mınhā nukhruju-kum elā ta'āraṭīn-ukhrā. (Q.)

¹ Quoted by Ganga Prasada, The Fountam-Head of Religion, pp. 70-71.

(From out the earth have I now given birth To you, and I will send you into it.

Again, and bring you forth from it again,
Again, repeatedly, until the End)

Summā ba'asmā-kum min bā'de maute-kum'ia'alia-kum tushkurūn. (Q)

(I gave you birth again after you died, That you may think of Me with gratitude)

Abyānā ba'de amātanā Kul yohyt hallaz; anshāha awwalamarra. (Q)

Yukhrijul hayya minal mayyati, wa yukhrijul maiyyata minal hayyi (Q)

'(He made us live again after our death.

He made you live before, and can again.

He makes the living dead, the dead alive)

Kaifā izkiurūnā billāhé wa kuntum amvātan fā ahyakum summā yumītokum summā yohyikum summā ilaihe ţarja'un. (Q)

(How can you make denial of your God Who made you live again when you had died, Will make you dead again, again alive, Until you go back finally to Him?) 1

A somewhat sımılar verşe occurs m Veda Kasya tvä, katamasya, amrtānām, Manāmahé, chāru, Dévasya, nāma, Ko no mahyā adrtayé punar-dāt, Priaram cha drahéyam, māṭaram cha. (V.) The well-known lines of Maulānā Rūm may be regarded as-explicit comment on these texts, fixing the right interpretation.

Ham cho sabzā hārahā royldab am. Haft sad haftad galib didah am, Az samādi murdam o nāmī shudam : Waz numā murdam ba haiwān sar zadam . Murdam az hawānı o ādam shudam . Pas che tarsam kai ze murdan gum shudam? Hamlaé digar bi-mîram az bashar. Tā bar āram az malāvak bāl o par . Az malak ham bāyadam justan ze jū, Kulle shavin hälikun illä Wuth-Ü Pas a'dam gardam a'dam chun arghanun Goyad am 'Innā ilaihā rāje'ūn '. Bāre dīgar az malak parrāń shawam, An che andar wahm n-ayad an shawam (Like grass have I grown o'er and o'er again: Seven hundred seventy bodies have I seen From out the form of mineral I passed And as a vegetable lived again, From out the vegetable form I died And lifted up a head as animal,

(Who is the God of gods, Chief of Immortals, By which most holy name may we think of Hum, Who has sent us again to this earth's surface, So that we see again father and mother?)

I Masnaws, Book III, p. 334, (Kanpur edition)

The form of animal I put away And took the human shape of Adam-Eve; Why shall I fear that if I die once more I shall be lost? Nav. I shall surely gain. At the next onset, dying out of man, The flowing locks and shining wings of angels. And finally, when next I take my flight, From e'en that world, I surely shall become That Which beyond all comprehension rests; For all things pass, except the Primal Gause. The Cause of Causes, the Face of the Self. Which is 'Non-being of Aught-Else than Self,' -For Self is the Negation of Not-Self. And when I am in such Non-Being, then My Being in Non-Being shall resound In organ-tones, 'Thou hast returned to Me'.)

Elsawhere, in the same Masnawi, Rümi repeats:

Amadab awwal ba 1qlīmē jamād,
Az jamādī dar nabātī ofṭād;
Sālahā andar nabātī umr kard,
Waz jamādī yād n-āward az na burd;
Waz nabātī chūn ba haiwānī futād,
N-āmad-ash hāl-ē nabātī hēch yād;
Ham-chun-īn 1qlīm tā iqlīm raft,
Tā shud aknūn āqil o dānā wa zaft;
Aqlahāé awwalīn-ash yād n-īst,
Ham azīn a'ql-ash ṭahawwal kardanī-st,

Tā nyaḍ z-īn a'ql pur-hus-o-ṭalab, Saḍ hazārān a'ql bīnad bu-l-'ajab, Gar-che kḥuftah gashṭ o shuḍ nāsī ze pésh Kai guzāranḍ-ash dar-an msıyān-e-khwésh. Bāz az ān khwāb ash ba bédārī kashand, Tā kunad bar hālaté khuḍ rīsh-khand. (S.)

(First into state of mineral he came: And then, as vegetable, ages spent. Forgetting all he felt as mineral; Then into state of animal he passed, Oblivious of the vegetable state; Ascending thus, stage after stage, he now Is man, intelligent, knowing and strong, Yet all forgetful of his previous states. From this stage of intelligence also He has to rise, since it is full of greeds And chingings to small things and jealousies. When he has done so, then a myriad paths Of knowledge, wonder, and great mysteries. Will open out before him endlessly. He will not be allowed to lose him-Self. He will be dragged out of his Night of Sleep. Into the Day of Wakefulness again. Till he laughs at him-Self in ecstasy.)

The same succession of mineral, vegetable, animal, human, and higher kingdoms of nature is to be found in ancient Samskit books, and also in modern science.

Asya brahm-āndasya samanţaţah sthitāni anantakoti - brahmāndānī . . mahā - jal - augha - matsyabuḍbuḍ - ānanṭa - sanghavad - bhramanṭi. (Tri-pādvibhūti-Makā-Nārāyana-Upamshat, ch. 6.)

> Sankhyā chéd rajasām ash vishvānām na kadā-chana (Dévi-Bhāgavata, IX. m 7 8)

(Worlds beyond count, 'eggs of the Infinite',
'Of boundless Space', orbs like this earth of ours.

Each with its own peculiar forms of life, Revolve and wander endlessly in space, On all sides of this earth, above, below, Like bubbles or like fishes in the sea, Dust-atoms may be counted, not these orbs)

Oshadhı-vanas-patayah yach-cha kın-cha prāna-bhṛṭ, sah Aṭmānam āvıs-ṭarām véda . . , Chittam prāna-bhṛṭsu, . . . (ṭéshu) āvıs-ṭarām Ātmā . Purushé ṭu āvıs-ṭarām Ātmā Sa hı pra-jñānéna sampanna-ṭamah , . . vijñāṭam vadatı, vijñātam pashyatı , véda lokālokau , . . Martjéna Amrtam-īpsatl (Astaréya Āranyaka, II ııı 2) (Herbs, trees, beasts, men—all are garbs of the Self,

And each successive form displays It more.

Man, who has mind, shows It forth most of all; He has the introspective consciousness; He knows, and also knows that he so knows, He speaks, and also knows that he so speaks; He thinks of yesterday and of tomorrow; He reaches out from Death to the Immortal.)

"God sleeps in the mineral, dreams in the vegetable, wakes in the animal, becomes self-conscious in man." (Qabbālah or Kabala).

Tad yaéliā péshas-kārī péshasah māṭrām upāḍāya anyat nava-ṭaram kalyāna-taram rūpam ṭanuṭé, évam éva ayam Āṭmā idam sharīram ni-hatya, avidyām gamayitvā, anyat nava-ṭaram kalyāṇa-taram rūpam kuruṭé (Bṛhad-Aranyaka-Upanishat, IV. iv. 4.)

(Ev'n as a goldsmith takes a piece of gold, And makes an ornament; and then breaks it, And makes a finer one with it; e'en thus The Spirit makes a body for It-Self, Then breaks it, and shapes out a finer one.)

Vāsāmsi jīrnāni yatbā vihāya, Navāni grhnāti narah aparāni, Tathā sharīrāņi vihāya jīrņāni, Anyāni samyāţi navāni déhī (G)

(As a man puts away his worn-out clothes, And takes up new ones; even so the soul,

230 Types of life, moving & moveless [ch. it

Puts off old bodies and puts on new ones)¹
Udbhijjāh, svéḍa-jāh cha éva, anda-jāh cha jarāyn-jāh;
Iţi évam varnītāh shāsṭré
bhūṭa-grāmāh chaṭur-viḍhāh. (Purānas.)

(Four are the orders of the living things
That dwell on this our earth—the mineral,
The vegetable, animal, and man;
First fissiparous, then gemmation-born,
Then oviparous, viviparous last.)

Sṛshtvā purāni vividhāni Ajayā Atma-Shaktyā, Vṛkshān, sarīsṛpa-pashūn, kbaga-damsha-maṭsyān, ' Ṭaih taih aṭushta-hrdayah, manujam vidhāya Brahm-āva-bodha-ḍhishaṇam, mudam āpa Dévah.

(Bhāg)

(House after house did God make for Himself—Mineral and plant, insect, fish, reptile, bird, And mammal too. But yet was He not pleased At last He made Himself the shape of Man, Wherein He knew Him-Self, the Vast Immense, The final greatest Greatness limitless, The all-including Universal Self,

¹ "Like the doctrine of evolution itself, that of transmigration has its roots in the world of reality, and it may claim such support as the great argument from analogy is capable of supplying" Prof Huxley, Boolution and Ethics, p 16.

Pervading all, Eternal, Infinite--And then the Lord of All was satisfied)

"In the first period heaven was created, in the second, the waters, in the third, the earth; in the fourth, the trees, in the fifth, the animals; and in the sixth, man." (Z_n)

Khalaq al-ınsana ala sürat-ır-Rahman (H)

"God created man in His own image. . . And God saw everything that He had made, and behold it was very good." (B)

Jewish (Hebrew) Qabbālā has an axiom.

"A stone becomes a plant; a plant, a beast; a beast, a man; a man, a spirit, and the spirit, a god."

Embryologists tell us that the human fætus recapitulates all this succession, passes through all these stages, in the first few months of gestation.

Hebrew (Jewish) Zohar says.

"All souls are subject to the trials of transmigration; and men .. do not know how many mysterious trials and transformations they must undergo .. The souls must re-enter the Absolute Substance whence they have emerged. But to accomplish this they must develope all the perfections, the germ of which is planted in them, and if they have not fulfilled this condition during one life, they must commence another, a third, and so forth, until they have acquired the condition which fits them for re-union with God"

Haug's Essays on the Religion of the Parsis, p 192, quoted by Ganga Prasada, The Fountain-Head of Religion, p 65

- "Behold, I create new heavens and a new earth, and the former shall not be remembered, nor come into mind" (B Isaiah, 65, 16-17)
- Puränic legend is that living forms may be dichotomised (s.e., dually classified) into the unmoving and the moving, which are sub-divided into four main kingdoms of nature, which include eight million four hundred thousand species. The last figure may or may not be of the same sort as many modern 'scientific speculations' regarding age of earth, distances and number of visible and invisible stars, size of the universe (or rather our sidereal system, an infinitesimal atom of the Infinite Universe), numbers of radiations from metals, velocities of electrons, time it would take for one element to 'break down' into another because of radiations,

Quoted in The Universal Text Book of Religion and Morals, by Annie Besant In Bible, (Gen. 1) order, of creation is. Heaven and earth, waters, light and darkness, day and night, firmament, dry land, separated from ocean, grass, herbs, fruit-trees, sun, moon, stars, fish, fowl, whales, cattle, creening things, beasts of the earth, Man in the image of God Formany Purance details of creation, see The Science of Social Organisation, ch ii, Väyn Purana is specially full number of milhons of eggs laid by one cod-fish at one laying, number of atoms contained in Earth, number of miles from Sun or our Earth to nearest star, etc - speculations' based on mathematical calculations, which, in turn, are based on other 'speculations', 'hypotheses'. But succession of various orders of life is very much the same as that sponsored by modern science. Thus .

Sthävaram vimshatéh laksham, jala-jam nava-lakshakam, Kurmah cha nava-laksham syuh, dasha-laksham cha pakshinah. Trımshal-laksham pashünam cha. chatur-laksham tu vanarah. Taţah manushyatām prāpya tatah karmanı sadhayét.

(Brhad-Vishnu-Purana.)

(Mineral and vegetable worlds. Unmoving, count 'tween them two million forms; Nine hundred thousand are aquatics then, Reptiles, as many: birds, a million: Then comes the mammal world, three millions, Four hundred thousand kinds of anthropoids. Two hundred thousand human species, last.)

It is explained that all these are not to be supposed as co-existing to-day or at any other given time in past or future Majority of them 'have had their day' and disappeared, like monstersaurians, twelve-legged horse, aurochs, sabre-tooth tiger, pterodactyl, auk, dinornis, many amphibia, and innumerable forms representing critical junctionpoints between kingdoms, and many will appear and disappear in future ¹

Bhūtéshu vīrudbhyah ud-uttamāh yé
Sarī-srpāh; téshu sa-bodha-nishthāh;
Taṭah manushyāh; pramaṭhāh ṭaṭah api,
Ganḍharva-siḍḍhāh vibuḍhā-nu-gāh yé;
Dev-āsurébhyah Maghavat-pradhānāh
Daksh-āḍayah Brahma-sutāh tu, téshām
Bhavah parah; sah atha Virinchi-vīryah;
Sah Mat-parah, Aham ḍvija-déva-Dévah. (Bhāg.)

('Mongst living growing things, than minerals
Are vegetables higher, and than these
The forms that freely move about, than these
The animals that have intelligence,
Then human beings, and then the several grades
Of spirits, angels, and perfected men,
Then the high gods born from the Primal Mind,
First Ideator, First Intelligence,
And finally My Self in which all Rests)

See The Science of Life, by H G Wells, Julian Huxley, and G. P Wells, for a comprehensive and also detailed survey

E.U.A R.] MAN, CROWN OF CREATION WHY? 235

Zoroaster says;

Yé vahyo vanghéüs dazade yas chā hoī vārāī rādaṭ Ahuro kshaṭhrā Mazadāo aṭ ahmāī akāt ashyoyéhoī, no īt vidāīté apémé anghéūs ürvayésé.

(Z., Gāthā, 51-6)

(In each succeeding birth the Great God gives To him who seeks His favour by good deeds, Greater Self-knowledge, greater self-control; But unto him who acts not well but ill, He gives a worse fate in each following life)

Ţān Aham dvishaṭah krūrān samsāréshu nar-āḍhamān Kshipāmi ajasram ashubhān āsurīshu éva yonishu. (G)

(Those evil ones, the hateful, cruel, mean, Fall into evil wombs, birth after birth, Till by reaction consequent, in pain, They learn to turn into the ways of good)

Man is the 'crown of creation', ashraf-ulmakhlāgāt

Sanātanam guhyam ıḍam bravīmı,

Na mānushyāṭ shréshtha-taram hı kın-chit (Mbh)

(This ancient secret I disclose to thee. There is naught nobler than 'humanity')

This is so only because, in the human form, God becomes able to recognise Him-Self, and to realise that He is All and Every-thing, again, after millions of years of forgetfulness of his Self's Glory

Sūfīs generally believe in tebirth, 117a't, and 111qt, ascent, and have more technical distinctions than even Vaidikas on this point. Thus, reincarnation as man is naskh, as animal is maskh, as vegetable is faskh, as mineral is raskh. Such degradation, as in schools, from higher to lower class, stage, is very rare, though detention is not so infrequent. Because Self runs through and wears all forms, therefore the thread of evolution runs through them all continuously, and man has in him the seeds and potencies of all kingdoms of Nature. All is indeed everywhere and always, because God is everywhere and always, and all is in God, the Self.

1" Ahmad ibni Sābit, Ahmad ibni Yabūs, Abū Muslim of Khurāsān, Shaikh-ul-Ishrāq, and the famous Omar Khayyām, were exponents of the doctrine of transmigration and re-incarnation, basing their arguments on Qurān, Sūrat ul-Bāqarā, verses 61-92, Sūrat-ul-Māidab, v 55, etc." Khāja Khān, Studies in Tasawwif, p 132 Translations of some of these verses, as made by Maulvi Muhammad All, MA, LLB, President, Ahmadiya Anjuman-i-ishāat-i-Islām, Lahore, are reproduced below

"And certainly you have known those among you who exceeded the limits of the Sabbath, so We said to them Be (as) apes, despised and hated" (65) "What then is the reward of such among you as to this, but disgrace in the life of this world, and on the day of resurrection they shall be sent back to the most grievous chastisement, and Allah is not at all heedless of what you do", (85) "And most certainly

E.U A R.] LAW OF KARMA. ACTION-REACTION 237

3. KARMA

Third important truth is that of reward and punishment. Virtue and merit are rewarded; vice and sin punished; some day, somewhere, sooner or later, here or hereafter. All religious equally proclaim this great truth. As we sow, so must we reap. This Law of Karma is only the scientific law of Cause and Effect, or, better, of Action and Reaction, working on the psychical and spiritual plane. Karma works from within. Because the Self is in all, therefore pain given, means, later, pain suffered; and pleasure given, becomes pleasure received. Sins as well as merits come home to roost, without fail.

We gave Moses the book, and We sent apostles after him, one after another, and We gave Jesus, the son of Mary, clear arguments, and strengthened him with the holy revelation. What', whenever, then, an apostle came to you with that which your souls did not desire, you were insolent, so you called some hars, and some you slay." (87) "Evil is that for which they have sold their souls, so they have made themselves deserving of wrath upon wrath, and there is a disgraceful chastisement for the unbelievers." (90), Al Bāparā.

"(Worse is he) whom Aliah has cursed and brought His wrath upon, and of whom He made apes and swine, and he who served the devil, these are worse in place and more erring from the straight path "Al-Māidah. Maulānā Muhammad Ali, in his comments, says that the words apes and swine are not to be triken literally. The learned Sūfis, whom Khāja Khān mentions, as above, seem to have thought otherwise. More on this point will be said in a later foot-note.

Failure would be possible if souls were really wholly separate They are not. The One Self, Rū-ul-arwāh, Rūh-ı-ā'sam, Rūh-ı-ālam, Param-Āṭmā, Jagad-Āṭmā, Sūṭr-Āṭmā, Vishv-Āṭmā, Oversoul, Anima Mundi, the Collective Unconscious, the Supra-conscious, Universal Spirit, binds them all together. Therefore escape from consequence is impossible If my hand hurt my foot, shall not the hand also feel the pain? Vaidika Dharma and its off-shoots and reforms, Buddhism, Jainism, Sikhism, current 'Hinduism', are so permeated with the idea of Karma, and this fact is so well-known, that no texts need be quoted; yet, a few may be. The very word Karma has now become part of many languages

Banī Ādam ā'zāi yak dīgar anḍ, Ke dar āfrīnish ze yak jauhar anḍ. Chu uzwé ba-ḍarḍ āwaraḍ rozgār, Digar uzwa-hā rā na mānad qarār. (S., Sī'pī.)

(The progeny of Adam, all are parts
And limbs of one and the same organism,
Risen from the Same Essence, every one;
Then can it be, while one limb is in pain,
That other limbs should feel at restful ease?)

Sabasra-shīrshā Purushah sabasr-ākshah sabasra-pāţ. (V.) (The countless heads, eyes, ears, and hands and feet Of living beings are all parts of One Man)

"When one member" (of the body) "suffers, all the members suffer with it; or one member be honored, all the members rejoice with it" (B, Paul)

Wa mā kān annāso iliā ummatın wahīdatan. (Q)
(Not other than but one community,
All human beings whatsoever are, indeed.)
Sukhasya duhkhasya na kō-pi dātā,
Parah dadāṭi-iṭi ku-buddhih éshā,
Sva-karmanā éva grathitah hi lokah,
Karṭā aham asmi iti vṛṭhā abhimānah,
Svayam krtam svéna phaléna yujyaṭé;
Sharīra, hé!, nistara yaṭ tvayā krṭam.

(Garuda Purāna.)

(Sorrow or joy none other gives to us, False is the thought that others give us these; Our own acts bind us humans to each other, Our own deeds bring to us their own just fruit—Body of mine! repay by suffering; Give up false feel! I do', and then be 'free!)

"Woe unto them that call evil good, and good evil
. Be not deceived, God is not mocked, whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also, reap. They that sow iniquity and sow wickedness, reap the same...
To him that soweth righteousness shall be a sure reward. Men do not gather grapes of thorns or figs of thistles.. The wages of sin is death. . He shall reward every man according to his works.. Give and it shall be given unto you. With the same measure that ye mete withal, it shall be measured to you again. God will render to everyone according to his deeds. Unto Thee, O Lord, belongeth mercy, for thou renderest to every man according to his work." (B, Job, Psalms, Proverbs: Matthew, Luke; Romans, etc.)

Wa mā asaubakum min-mosībatin fa bemā kasabat aydīkum wa mañya'mal misqāla zarratin khairuñ-yarah, wa mañya'mal misqāla zarratin sharrañ-yarah F-al yauma lā tuzlamo nafsun shai-añwa lā tuzzauna illā mā kuntum ta'malūn. (Q.)

(Whatever of misfortune falls on one, Of one's own doings it is the result. The atom's weight of good that you have done, That you shall see come back to you again; The atom's weight of evil you have wrought, That also must you meet unfailingly. Be sure, no soul shall be dealt with, this day, Unjustly, in the least, and you shall not Requited be with aught but what you did.)

Jazā-un be mā kānu yā'malūn. (Q.)

(Thou shalt receive requital and reward In just return for whatsoe'er thou dost.)

N-ist bātil har che Yazdān āfrīd,
Az ghazab, w-az hilm, w-az nūsh o makīd,
Pas bi-dān, ranj-at natīja-i zillat-at,
Āfaṭ-ē în zarbaṭ-at az shahvat-at. (Rūmī.)
(Nothing that God has made is meaningless,
In wrath, in meicy, or in graciousness;
Therefore, be sure, thy sorrow and thy hurt
Are consequence of thine own lust and sins, Sent for thy chastening unto thee, by God.)

Hṛḍi sṭbiṭah Karma-Sākshī . . . svasya éva Āntara-Pūrushah . . . Yamah Vaivasvaṭah Dévah yah ṭava ésha brdi sṭhitah, Téna chét avivāḍah ṭé
mā Gangām mā Kurūn gamah ' (M.; Mbh.)

(This Ruler-Yama who dwells in thy heart, Watchful, awake, as thine own Ātmā-Self, Unfailing Witness of thy smallest deeds—If He no quarrel has with thee, then thou Needst not make pilgrimage to holy shrines, To Kuru-kshétra or to Gangā's stream.)

¹ A western poet has put the truth of the Law of -Karma more softly and soothingly

All Nature is His Art unknown to thee,
All Chance, His Order which thou caust not see;
All Discord, His Concord not understood,
All Partial Evil, His all-reaching Good
Take heart, beloved, in erring reason's spite,
Whatever wrong there is, will be set right.

242 YOURSELF ARE YOUR OWN PUNISHER [CH. II

Har che bar mā-st, az mā-st (S)

(Whate'er befalleth us, cometh from us)

(These deeds of yours shall verily be brought Back unto you, as if you were yourself
The author of your own just punishment) (H)

Yāo īshudyo dadénté dāthrānām ha chā ashā-ūno Yāoschā, Mazadā!, drégvodévyo, Yā frashā āvishyā, yā vā, Mazadā!, yérésaīté ţayā, . . . tā chashménéng thvisrā hāro aībi ashā aībi vaénahī vispā (Z, Gāthā, 31. 13. 14.)

(Great Mazadā i, Thou dost requite all deeds
Unto the pious and the impious;
For thou dost see with Thy All-seeing eyes
The secret and the openly expressed Desires of human beings, or good, or bad)

Yathā āish ithā vareshaīte
. . . Ratūsh shyaothanā rajishtā drezvata-echā hvat chā ashāūne . . .

. . . Hyat Thvā anghéūsh jānthoī darésém pao-ūrvīm, hyat dāo shyaōthanā mīzhdavān yā chā ūkhghā, akém akāī vanghūhīm ashīsh vanghaové Thvā hunarā dāmoīsh ūrva-ésé apémé. (Z, Gāthā, 33 1, 43.5)

(Great Ratush', Thou doest give unto each one Just retribution, even as he is, Vicious or virtuous, or false or true.

Thou, Mazadi, that art both I irst and Last, At the beginning and the end of life, According to Thy fixed eternal Laws, Thou dost award to each his just desert, Reward or punishment, in word and deed, Ill unto ill and good unto the good)

"O men! learn ye these laws of happiness and misery which Ahura Mazadā has ordained. They are, suffering of pain for a long time for the wicked, and blessings for the righteous, by which they attain happiness" (Z Ahūnavad Gāthī, xx 11)

"Good and evil do not wrongly befall men, but Heaven sends down misery or happines according to their conduct. From the loving example of one family a whole state may become loving; and from its courtesies, courteous. From the ambition and perverseness of one man, the whole state may be thrown into rebellious disorder. Such is the nature of the influence." (C. Lili, 39, 18.)

"Those who do evil in the open light of daymen will punish them Those who do evil in secret—God will punish them. Who fears both man and God—he is fit to walk alone" (T., Kwang Tze, 23 8.)

"Whose casteth a stone on high, casteth it on his own head; and a deceitful stroke shall make wounds Whose diggeth a pit shall fall therein; and he that setteth a trap shall be taken therein. He that workth mischief, it shall fall upon him, and he shall not know whence it cometh." (Bible Apocrypha, Ecelesiasticus).

"The Way of Heaven is to bless the good and to punish the bad; the end of punishment is to promote virtue and make an end of punishing." (C., Shu King)

"The recompense of good and evil follows as the shadow follows the figure." (T., Tas-Shang Kan Yang Pan.)

(If a man speak or act with evil thought, Pain surely follows him, e'en as the wheel Follows the ox that drags the cart along.

(Bu., Māha-vagga, 6. 31. 7.)

Yo apy-adutthasya narasya dussatı, Suddhassa posassa an-anganassa, Țam éva bālam pachchétı pāpam, Sukhmo rājo patı-vāţam va khitto. (Dh.)

(The man who hurts the sinless innocent, Unto that thoughtless man returns that hurt, fest, Tsi-Tsai is the Motionless Self-existent (Skt., Küta-sha), Wuliang-Shen is Boundless Age or Time (Skt., An Edi an ananta-pra-vaha, semp iternal flow or motion, beginning-and-end-less.)

Unfailing, as fine dust flung 'gainst the wind)'.

Aṭṭā hi Aṭṭano nātho,

ko hi nātho paro siyā;

Aṭṭanā 'va su-ḍanṭana,

nāṭham labhaṭi dullabham.

Por vivid concrete illustration, in terms of practical politics and economics and current history, illustration of the spiritual-metaphysical truth that all selves are One Self, and therefore right or wrong done, pleasure or pain given, comes back, see the following excerpt from G. B Shaw, Collected Works, 1938, paper on 'Family Life in Germany under the Blockade' (written in 1919).

"The Peace Treaty of Versailles has imposed on the vanquished Germans a colossal tribute. How is it to be paid if German industry is ruined and German labor is starving? It can be paid only if Germany buys things from us (the British) at more than cost price, and sells things to us at less than cost price, until her ransom is paid. There is no other way That means that German production must continue side by side with British production. If we are to have the spoils of victory, German industry must be restored. And if German industry as to be restored, German labor must be fed why, in starying the Germans, we are biting our noses to spite our faces. If our vengeance-mongers cannot divine by spiritual intuition, that we are members of one another, they will have it rubbed into them most unsympathetically and uncomfortably by the hard fact that there will be no business doing in many of their trades until German industry revives, that is, until Germany is producing enough to pay more than enough for British goods". The history of the world since 1919 and the Second World War, all only proves the unshakeable nature of the metaphysical laws and facts.

Atṭā hī Attano nātho,
Attā hi Attano gatī;
Tasmā sañūamay-Attānam,
assam bhadram 'va vāṇijo
Aṭtanā 'va kaṭam pāpam
aṭṭa-jam aṭta sambhavam
Abhi-manthati dum-médham
vajīram 'va 'sma-majam manīm.' (Dh.)

(Self is the Self's protector, master, lord Who other can be such? If ye control And discipline your-self, ye gain a Friend Such as ye cannot have outside your-Self Self only is self's final refuge, goal; Then train it well; so it will swiftly take Ye to whatever righteous goal ye seek The sin arising from within one-self,

Samskrt form of these Pali verses, uttered by Buddha, would be

Atmā hi Atmanah nāthah;
ko hi nāthah parah syāt?
Atmanā éva su-dānténa
nātham labhati dur-labham.
Atmā hi Atmanah nāthah,
Atmā hi Atmanah nāthah,
Tasmāt samyamaya Atmanam, ashvam bhadram iva vānijah
Atmanā eva krtam pāpam,
Atma-jam, Atma-sambhavam,
Abhi-mathnāti dur-inédhasam, vairam iva ashma-mayo manih.

Churns up that evil mind within itself, E'en as the diamond-grinder's grinding stone Grinds down the jewel-stone till it shape true.)

> Sam-ud-dharanti hi ātmānam Atmanā éva vi-chakshahnāh. Ātmano guruh Ātmā éva, purushasya vipashchitah (Bhag. XI. vii. 19-20.)

Uddharét Aţmanā Atmānam, na Atmānam ava-sādayéţ,
Atmā éva hi Atmanah bandhuh
Atmā éva ripuh Atmanah :
Bandhuh Atmā Atmanah tasya,
Yéna Ātmā éva Ātmanā jitah;
An-Ātmanah tu shatrutvé vartéta Atmā éva shatru-vat. (G)

Paraspara-bhayāt kéchit, pāpāh pāpam na kurvaté; Rāja-danda-bhayāt kéchit, Yama-danda-bhayāt paré; Sarvéshām api cha étéshām Āṭmā yamayaṭām Yamah; Āṭmā samyamitah yéna Yamah tasya karoṭi kim? Na Yamam Yama ity-āhuh, Āṭmā vai Yamah uchyaté.

(Mbh, M.)

(The wise man's special Teacher is his Self. Save and uplift your-self by your own Self; Degrade it not; your-Self is your best Friend, If your High Self but masters your low self; But if your low self rears rebellious head,
Then is your High Self kindest Enemy.
For fear of one another, some refrain
From sin; others for fear of the king's rod;
Some, fearing Yama's judgment after death;
But Judge of Judges is the Inner Self;
In whom this Inner Judge is satisfied,
He hath no fear of any other Judge.)

"I, the Lord thy God, am a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children and the children's children, unto the third and to the fourth generation"; (B., Exodus, chs. 20 and 34) "Righteousness exalteth a nation," (B.), as well as an individual; and "The wages of Sin is Death", for a nation as much as for an individual. 'If you turn away from God and the principles of True Faith, then, verily shall We bring forward in your stead another nation who shall not be traitors to Our Cause', says God: (Q., Sūrā Muhammad, last verse.)

Yaqı na üşmani, puşreshu;
Na cheş puşreshu, napşışshu;
Na tu eva hı krşah adharmah karşuh bhavaşi nısh-phalah;
Shanaıh ä-varşamünah tu
Karşuh mülünı krntaşı. (M.)

Aty-ugra-punya-pāpānām tha éva phalam ashnuté
Hṛḍayé sarva-bhūtānām
Antar-yāmī Yamah sṭhṭah. (Mbk.)

(Sin doth not always bear its painful fruit Unto the sinner, here on earth, at once; But, circling, it reacts unfailingly,
And cuts the sinner's very roots of being;
And often it inflicts the consequence
Upon the children and grandchildren too,
[As patently the sins of venery];
Never goes sin without its due return;
And deeds of noble goodness, or dire sin,
Bear their just fruit, here, in this very life.
Never is there escape from consequence,
Because the Great Judge dwells within each heart.)

In the last line is the secret of the perpetual 'Day of infallible Judgment'. No one can escape him-Self, his own heart and memory and conscience, and avoid reward or expiation.

Doubts, disputes, problems, have arisen, in this connection, regarding Free-Will and Destiny (dishta), Liberty and Necessity, Vitalism and Mechanism, purusha-kāra and daiva, udyoga and niyati, qadr and jabr, mukhtār and majbūr, sva-tantra and para-tantra, Self-Choice and Determinism; the same thing meant by many names. Also, problems have arisen regarding conflict between God's Mercifulness and Forgiveness of sins, on the one hand, and His Justice and Restraint of Wickedness on the other

All such doubts are reduced, controversies allayed, problems solved, views reconciled, if we bear in mind duly that the Great, Infallible, Subtle, all-seeing Judge is ever within us, we are compelled, ultimately, by our own heart, our own conscience, our own Self, to explate our sinful karma and to receive reward of our meritorious karma. What we do from pure sense of Duty, is neither sin nor ment, and has no such 'binding' consequence If any feel that he is helpless to avoid committing sin, be should also feel that he is, and ought to be, equally helpless to avoid the enduring of punishment. If the most innocent child drink poisonous liquid by sheerest mistake, it will, by that same mistake, suffer painful resultant illness, even death If anyone deliberately commits sin, he will equally knowingly suffer the penalty. The Justice which arises within our-Self, and compels us to make voluntary restitution, is also the greatest Mercy, since it purifies the soul To feel 'compelled' to commit sin, and 'free' to avoid punishment, is not reasonable.

Mā-ém ba lutf-e-Haq tavaliā kardah, V-az tāa't o māsıyat tabarrā kardah, Har-jā ke i'nāyaṭé Ṭo bāshad, Nā-kardah cho kardah, kardah chūn nā-kardah! Ai! nék na karḍah, va badī-hā kardah! W-angāh ba luṭſe-Haq ṭavailā kardah! Bar u'ſwu ma-kun ṭakiyah, ke hargız na buwad Nā-kardah cho kardah, karḍah chūn nā-kardah!

(OMAR KHAYYIM)

(Some say. In God's great Mercy we have faith, And take no thought of good or evil deed; On whomsoe'er His eje of Favour rests, His 'not-done' deeds of good become all 'done', And his 'done' deeds of evil all 'un-done'! O thou! that didst not do one deed of good, But hast been doing many deeds of ill! Do not deceive thyself, that if thou throw Thyself upon the Mercy of High God, Thy sins will be forgiven in such wise That the 'done' deed shall be as if 'not-done', And the 'not-done' become as if 'twere-done',) [All the great sages with one voice declare—Whom the Lord loveth, him He chasteneth, With trials sore and penalties severe,

Which cleanse him of his sins and make him pure,
 And worthy of His love and love of all.]

It is an outstanding characteristic of the egoistic inexperienced young soul, young mind, of our baser, lower, nature, that it always tries to fasten on others, all the blame for its own faults, vices, sins, crimes. God made me do this, He created me like this, He must forgive me, I am not to blame'; 'Fate, Chance, Nature, compelled me'; 'If there is a God at all, he must be a horrible monster to cause all this suffering to me'; 'Nature is brutal, satanic'; 'The other fellow started the quarrel'; 'The other nation began the war; we are completely innocent': and so on, and so forth A glaring, ludicrous, conclusive everyday illustration is-a child runs carelessly, stumbles, falls, hurts itself, begins to cry; the mother runs up, picks up the child, beats the floor, and the child is completely satisfied, ceases to cry: 'The floor was to blame, not I.' In the earlier child-mind' stages, a personal God outside is to praise or to blame. in the later 'sage-mind' stage, the Impersonal All-personal All-pervading God within more than without, is to praise or to blame: 'I am to blame. I have committed faults, sins, crimes'.

Qurān puts it more strongly:

Mā asābekā min hasanatin fa min Allāhī, wa mā asābekā fa min sayātin fa min nafasak. (Q.)

(Whatever good ye have, is all from God, - Whatever evil, all is from your-self.)

What is meant is, that all that is good comes from the element of the Higher Self in us, essence of which is God; while all that is evil, comes from the lower self-ish self in us, (which also is in and from God).

Sūfis have made it clear:

Har che az zam o shami-i shumā-sţ, Sar ba sar muqtazā-ı a'ın-ı shumā-st. Har che a'ın- shumā ţaqāzā kard, Jaud-ı-faız-ı-Man huwaiḍā kard.

(Good, evil, both are all your own demand; Whate'er your heart desired, My bounty gave.)

Nature is a Continuity. Life, The Ever-living Self, Whose Nature it is, is not only a Continuity but also a Unity. Because Life is a Unity, therefore is Nature a Continuity; therefore are all constituents of the universe interdependent, smallest or largest. One Life runs through all forms ¹, an unbreakable thread, Sütr-Āṭmā, Thread-Soul, strings, threads, Western scientists are coming to see this Continuum of Life and Consciousness more and more. Thus, "When we view ourselves in space and time, we are obviously distinct individuals, when we pass beyond space and time, we may, perhaps, form ingredients of a continuous stream of Life." Sir James Jeans, Address at annual meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, quoted in The Modern Review (of Calcutta) for February, 1935, p. 227. It may be added that it is not necessary to pass beyond space and time to feel this continuity. Indeed, continuity necessarily involves space and time, and is possible only in them. Beyond them there is Eternity, Motionlessness, Unity (or indeed the Absence of both Unity and Multiplicity) instead of Continuity, for Continuity means Unity running through nets, and weaves them a'l together inseparably, and makes of them a Continuity. Every atom is constantly sending out, and receiving, infinite vibrations to and from all other atoms. The same particles of gaseous, liquid, solid substances are circulating through all sorts of living bodies and things, the same thoughts, feelings, desires, volitions, through all minds. All living things are influencing each other, sharing in each other's pains and pleasures, willy-nilly. Any change, any disturbance, in any department of Nature, has reverberations and repercussions in all other departments. "The fool

Multiplicity, Self through not selves Mr. Whately Carmaton, in his books, Three Besays in Consciousness, and The Quantitative Study of Trance Personalities. reviewed in Theosophist for February, 1935, argues to the effect that "Physiologists and biologists, chemists and physicists, are showing with increasing success that there is no kind of discontinuity to be observed between conscious and non-conscious matter, hence the universality of Consciousness is fundamentally one . parently distinct consciousnesses are united by a common Sub-Consciousness . . (There is) a Universal substratum of Consciousness animating all structural forms. (It is possible) to envisage, (national panics, enthusiams, etc., are proof) . a process of expansion or enlargement of consciousness without loss of individuality, until in the limit each will be co-extensive with Universal Consciousness" This is all good sound Yoga-Védanta, Tasawwuf Gnostic-Mysticism Only the word 'comparatively' has to be added before 'Universal', for the 'non-comparative' Universal is-'non comparative', there is no expansion or gradation in, for, to, It.

E.U.A R.] CYCLING WHEEL OF JOY AND SORROW 255

hath said in his heart, there is no God," and thinks he will evade the consequences of his evil ways, but God is hiding all the time in that same heart, as much as in the wise heart, and He will impel him, from within, to put himself in a position where he will have to eat the bitter fruit of the tree of evil that he has planted; thus will the erring one learn wisdom by sad experience. As nothing can pass out of the Whole, sin and are always being balanced up by their respective consequences. The Whole as such is ever in a state of perfect sameness, equilibrium, samatā, tulīta-tā, wahdat, mawāzinah

Sukhasya anantaram duhkham, duhkhasya anantaram sukham, Chakra-vat pari-vartété
Sukha-Puhkhé divā-nisham. (Mbh)
(After joy, sorrow, after sorrow, joy,
After day, night; and after night, the day;
Ceaseless rotate they on the Wheel of Life,
O'er and between the two, broods Peace alway.)
Inna ma'l usra yusrin fa inna ma'l usré yusra.
(Q. 'Sūrai Sharah'.)

So too comes sorrow surely after joy.)

The scientific laws of causation, of action and reaction, of conservation of energy and indestructibility of matter amidst perpetual transformations of form, all arise out of this same fact, vis., that the Self is ever-complete and contains all, once for all; and all actions, vibrations, movements, arise within It, and end within It, issue from It, and return to It.

> Pürnam adah, pürnam idam, pürnät pürnam udachyaté Pürnasya pürnam ädäya pürnam éva ava-shishyaté.

(That Spirit-world is Full. This Matter-world Is Full also. If from the Full the Whole Is taken out, the Whole remains the Full.)

As Sūlīs say:

Huwal ana kama kana.

(He is as He was.)

I am that I am. (B.)

"There is nothing new under the sun; That which is, is That which was." (B., Ecceles.)

Jīmānı vāsāmsı yathā vihāya,
Navānı grhnāţı narah aparāni,
Tathā sharīrānı vihāya jīmānı,
Anyānı samyātı navānı dchī (G)

Prati-kshana-pari-naminī Prakrtih;
Chiţi-shaktih a-pari-nāminī. (Sānkhya-Yoga)
(E'en as a man puts off his worn-out clothes
And puts on new ones, even so the Self

Casts off old bodies and takes up new ones.
God's Garment, Nature, changes hues and forms,
Moment to moment, tireless, ceaselessly,
His Consciousness continues e'er the same)
Kullu yaumin huā fishān (Q.)
Dam-ba-dam gar shawad libās badal
Mard-i-Sāhib-i-libās rā che khalal? (S.)
Ta'iyun būd kaz hastī judā shud,
Na Haq banda, na banda bā Khudā shud.
(Shahābuddin Mohammad Shabistarī, Gulshan-i-Rās)

(Each moment is He in a different state. But how may it affect the One who wears These Many garbs, if these change ceaselessly? A Limitation, Definition, seems To shape out in the sea of Boundless Being; Nor God grows Servant, nor the Servant God.)

Dream-worlds, world-dreams, world-dramas, arise and disappear endlessly; the 'substance-quality-quantity' of Infinite Consciousness in, for, from, by, out of, which they are made and come and go, remains the same. Multiply the endless infinite Circle of the zero by any finite number, it remains zero.¹

¹ NOTE On Karma, Rebirths, and Evolution.

Following is abridged from the art. Metem psychone', Enc., Brit., 14th. edn.

4. OTHER WORLDS AND PLANES OF BRING.

The fourth great truth, common to all religions, is that as there is the physical world corresponding to man's five outer senses and waking state, so there

"The theory of transmigration of souls is usually associated with ancient Egyptians, with the teaching of Pythagoras and Buddha, and was also held by a sect of early Christian heretics The idea is much older than these creeds, and exists throughout the world. It is often bound up with the idea of a plurality of souls, in a single individual, one of which is separable. Thus the Poso-Alfures of Celebes believe in three souls: (a) idoso or vital principle, (b) angga, or intellectual, and (a) tanoana or divine element which leaves during sleen The Orphic religion of Greece, and the Eleusinian Mysteries, included faith in metem-psychosis goras was its first famous exponent in Greece accepted it and enhanced its importance. In Jewish literature, there are traces of it in Philo Judeus, and it is definitely adopted in Kabbala. Within the Christian Church, it was held in the first centuries by Gnostic sects, by Manicheans in the 4th and 5th centuries, m Middle Ages, by numerous sects collectively known as Cathari Giordano Bruno, van Helmont, Swedenborg, Goethe, Lessing, Charles Bonnet, Herder, Hume, Schopenhauer, and other notable thinkers held it or respected it. Modern Theosophy, which draws its inspiration from India, has taken it as a cardinal tenet, it is, says a recent theosophical writer, the master-key to modern problems, among them the problem of heredity '. . "

Schopenhauer, World as Will and Idea, III, 300-306, has a great collection of texts showing prevalence of this belief in all times and climes.

As regards Jews and early Christiana, Origen, one of the most learned Fathers of the Christian Church, taught, are other worlds corresponding to subtler senses and other states of his consciousness; that through these the soul of man passes between death and rebirth in the 2nd century, A C., that "forth from God come all spirits that exist, all being dowered with free-will. Some refused to turn aside from the path of righteonsand took the piace of angels. Others, in the exercise of their free-will, turned aside from the path of duty, and passed into the human race, to recover, by righteous and noble living, the angel condition . . Others. still in the exercise of their free-will, descend yet deeper anto evil and become devils . All were originally goodby unnocence, not knowledge . Angels may become men, men angels, and even evil ones may climb upwards once more, and become men and angels again ": (De Principii, passim, quoted in the The Universal Text Book of Religion and Morals, by Annie Besant) But Origen's form of the doctrine was condemned at a Church Council, A D. 533

Josephus, De Bello Judanco, says "They say that all souls are incorruptible, but that the souls of good men are only removed into other bodies, and that the souls of bad men are subject to eternal punishment", and again all pure spirits live on, in heavenly places, and in course of time they are again sent down to inhabit sinless bodies, but the souls of those who have committed self-destruction are doomed to a region in the darkness of the under-world. This last sentence is an almost exact equivalent of a verse of Isha Upanishat.

Andham tamah pra-vishanti yé ké cha Atma-banah panah

(Into deep darkness do they fall who turn Away from their true Self and slay It thus.)

"Origen, Clemens Alexandrinus, Synesius, Chalcidius, all believed in metem-psychosis; so did the Grostics, in this world, even as he passes through dreams in the night between day and day, that there are sub-human, super-human, and co-human kingdoms who are unhesitatingly proclaimed by history as a body of the most refined, learned, and enlightened men", Isis Unveiled, I, 12.

Gibbon, (Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire, ch. 47, text and notes), says "The disciples of Jesus were persuaded that a man might have sinned before he was born (John, 18, 2), and the Pharisees held the transmigration of virtuous souls, (Josephus, de Bello Judaico). Since the introduction of the Greek or Chaldean philosophy, the Jews were persuaded of the pre-existence, transmigration, and immortality of souls." The Hebrew word for metempsychosis is gilgülim.

Bnc, Brit, 14th edn., art 'Kabbalah', says, "The doctrine was adopted by the Kabbalists in defiance of the Jewish philosophers" Main doctrines of Kabbala, outlined there, are the very same as those of Védănța and Tasawwuf. "The Zohar states that 'all souls must undergo transmigration', the Jewish literature of this subject of transmigration is an exceedingly rich one" J. Abelson, Jawish Mysticism, 164, 165.

Following is an abstract of a very remarkable article, "The Ancient Wisdom in Africa", by Patrick Bowen, published in Theosophist (Adyar, Madras) for Angust, 1927. "As a boy, ten or twelve years of age, following my father's wagon through the wild Bushlands of the Northern Transvaal, I gained the friendship of many Isanuss (Vise Man) of the Zulus One of these, Mankanyezi ('the Starry One') said to me, 'Within the body is a soul, within the soul is a spark of the Itongo, the Universal Spirit. After the death of the body, Idhlosi (the soul) hovers for a while near the body, and then departs to Essi-wens, the Place of Beasts. This is very different from entering the body of a beast. In Essivens of beings which inhabit them; and that man, by special efforts and processes of training, can develop inner senses and latent powers which can open these worlds to him.

the soul assumes a shape, part beast and part human. This is its true shape, for man's nature is very like that of the beast, save for that spark of something higher. After a period, long or short, according to the strength of the animal nature, the soul throws aside its beastlike shape, and moves onward to-a place of rest." This African belief corresponds to that in Prétaloka, and thereafter Pitr loka plus Svarga-loka, of Véd-15m. See Manu-smrts. ch xII. especially verses 52-82, these verses indicate that by 'births' into low, gross, animal and other forms, are meant post mortem states of the erring and sunning soul, imprisoned painfully in such forms, made of tenuous invisible matter, shaped by its own mentality Some Suff sects also interpret the Quranic verses, re 'apes' and 'swine', (see pp 236-'7, supra), in a similar sense] "In that place of rest it sleeps, till a time comes when it dreams that something to do and learn awaits it on earth, then it awakes, and returns, through the Place of Beasts, to the earth, and is born again as a child. Again and again does the soul travel thus, till at last the man becomes true-Man, and his soul, when the body dies, becomes one with the Itongo, whence it came The common man cannot understand more than that the Itongo is the Spirit of his Tribe, but the Wise Ones know that It is the Spirit within and above all men, even all things: and that at the end, all men being one in Spirit, are brothers in the flesh ' Mankanvezi, a year or two later. predicted to me that I would meet one of his Elder brothers', an Elder in the Family (Society), to which he belonged, whose members are the guardians of the Wisdom-uhich-comes-from-of-old, they are of many ranks, Modern science indicates this possibility by the expression, 'extension of faculty'; and clairvoyance and telepathy have been proved by psychical from learner to Master, and Higher Ones whose namesmay not be spoken, and there is one member at least in every tribe and nation throughout this great land' This prediction came true, and I did meet (Africa) other members of the Fraternity, and also saw proofs of clairvoyance and telepathy and will-force, and received teachings Mandhlalanga ('Strength of the Sun'), chief of a very small community of Berbers, or rather Khabyles, Kha-beel-va, [? Arab Qabila-s] who, for reasons unexplained, had come away, five thousand miles, from their home in North Africa, and had identified themselves with the Zulus, taught me in the secret Bantu tongue ' Rongo is all Substance, all Power, all Wisdom, but it is also above and beyond them, eternally Unmanifest There are but two manifestations, Universal Mind and Universal Matter Force is simply that portion of Mind which endows Matter with Form At first both Mind and Matter were un individualised, a vast amorphous mass, growing denser and denser, ether, gas, liquid, solid When, how, why, individuality began -only the Itongo can know. It was like the starting of myriads of whirlpools on the surface of the ocean. In matter the Soul has reached the aphelion of its cycle; now it begins its long slow return journey. It climbs. slowly from mineral to plant, animal, man, up through the lower mind to the higher, till, at last, its cycle complete, it merges into its source, Itongo ceases to be Individual, becomes one with the All On his journey, from and back to the Hongo, man is born again and again His physical body dies, as do also his lower mental principles, only his higher mental principles survive from age to age, retaining, throughout the Cosmic Cycle, the individuality bestowed upon them at its opening. The Principles are (1) the physical body research, conducted by recognised scientists. Yoga-siddhis, divya-shaktis, vibhütis, (umsimba), (2) the etheric body (sistunsi), (3) the lower mind (amandhla), (4) the animal mind (utivesilo); (5) the human mind (utivenili); (6) the spiritual mind (utivetongo), (7) Itongo."

In terms of Yoga and Vedānţa, these are (1) annamaya-kosha, (2) prāṇa-maya-kosha, (3), (4), and part of (5) mano-maya-kosha, rest of (5) and (6) vijfāna-maya-kosha, (7) ānanda-maya-kosha, and Ātmā. In terms of Theosophacal literature, they are the 'seven principles' which make up 'man' (1) physical body, or sthūla-sharīra, (2) prāṇa, or etheric double, (3) linga-sharīra, (4) kāma-rūṇa, (5) manas, (6) budḍhi, (7) Āṭmā. In another Vedāntic and Rāja-yoga scheme, the main 'bodies' or sharīras are (1) sthūla, gross, dense, physical, which includes the first three, (2) sūkshma, subtle, astral, which includes the next two, (3) kārana, causal, equivalent to the sixth, Ātmā being the wearer of the three bodies.

Mr Bowen continues. "The Brotherhood is called, in the ancient Bantu speech, Bonabakulu abase Khemu, se., The Brotherhood of the Higher Ones of Egypt. (Kbem, whence 'Chem-istry', was an ancient name of Egypt). It was founded by a Priest of Isis in the reign of the Pharach Cheops, to spread The Wisdom which comes from of Old, among all races and tribes of Africa. and the study and practice, among its members, of Ukwasi-kwasi-thabango, which means, The Science Which depends on the Power of Thought (Yoga). The grades of the Brotherhood are (1) the Pupil, (2) the Disciple, (3) the Brother, (4) the Elder, (5) the Master, (6) Those who Know (Isangoma), (7) Abakulu-bantu, 1.6, Perfect Men, for whom rebuth has ceased, who dwell on earth in physical form by their own will, and can retain or relinquish that form as they choose;

kamāl, mo'fisah, karāmāt, raushan-samīrī, 'dıvıne powers', 'the luminous heart', 'perfections', 'miraculous powers', 'magical powers', have been believed

By getting full control of the vibrations of his higher planes, a developed Man may despatch, through the Cosmic Ocean of which he is a part, ripples of various kinds and intensities, which will produce effects, according to their nature and strength, on all strata, most of course on the most sensitive highest strata, of the other 'whirlpools' or 'individualities' . . ".

The above long, and yet all too condensed and short, account of the belief of Africa, has been incorporated here, in pursuance of the method of this compilation. to show how numerous, how widespread in space, persistently continuous in time, are the votes cast by Damos in favor of the immortality, evolution, or revolution, and rebirths, of souls. The article, 'Transmigration', in Bnov. of Religion and Ethics, occupies sixteen doublecolumn large quarto pages of minute print, equal to a hundred pages of this book. It shows that the belief has been, and is, spread all over the world, in all known history and anthropology, in one form and another, among primitive peoples of all continents, and has also been held by Indian, Persian (Iranian, Zoroastrian), Egyptian, Jewish, Greek, Roman, Celtic, and Tentonic nations. In the Christian world, the belief, suppressed for a time, seems to be reviving among the educated and thoughtful, as a necessary complement and corollary of the fact of evolution.

The Bucyclopedia of Islam, art. Tanarukh', says, in effect, that "the belief in metempsychosis is widespread in India and among several sects of the Muslim world. Shahrastani takes the word tanasukh in a wide sense, our, the successive lives and rebirths of the world, in cycles of revolution, of varying durations, 30000, 70000, 360000 years, and so on "[Cf Vedic yugas, in, everywhere, always. They are only extensions of such powers as we daily exercise, and not, in the least, kalpas, mahā-vugas, etc.] "In another sense. at means the diffusion and distribution of the Divine Spirit among the beings of our world Extreme Shias believe in the descent or incarnation (hulfil) of all or part of the Divine Principle in certain men" Védic ava-tāras, amsh-āva-tāras, etc.] the popular sense, of passing from one body to another. the belief is held by several Shia sects. Among the Mo'tazılas, the disciples of Ahmad bin Hā'it taught that God first created beings in a kind of paradise "[Satva-Yuga, Golden Age, Arcadia, Eden], "then those who were guilty of disobedience were sent by him into our world in the form of men or animals, according to the gravity of their sins, they then migrate from form to form until the effects of their sins have ceased. The Ismails did not admit the passage of the soul into the bodies of animals: but they did admit successive (buman) lives until it recognised the linkin; then it rose to the world of Light The Nusairis believe that sinners of their religion will be reborn into other religious, outright infidels will become camels, mules, asses, dogs, etc, there are seven degrees of metempsychosis according to them. The Druses believe that the sonis of the ensures of their religion will enter the bodies of dogs, monkeys, and swine The Kurds and the Yazidis believe in transmigration into the bodies of men and also animais, and in successive existences separated by an interval of 72 years According to Savyad Sharif Djurdjani, janāsukh is the passing of the soul to a new body without intervals, on account of the inclination of the spirit for the body ".

All sorts of beliefs, as to kinds of transmigration, similar to those of these Muslim sects are to be found among different sects of other religions also Belief in more surprising than these 1 Svargas, narakas, lokas. bhuvanas; jannais and jahannums, bahishis and dosakhs, arsh-es and ard-s, lauhas and tabaqas, paradises and purgatories, heavens and hells of higher and lower levels, and subtler and grosser planes of matter; are affirmed by all religions. They are subjective as well as objective; continuous existence of the soul, and its births and rebirths into physical bodies, is common to almost all. Of course, there are also sects, in all religions, which deny such transmigration; very few in Hinduism, many m Islam, many in Christianity. Also, there are some texts of Qurān, and writings of venerated Muslim writers, which some commentators interpret as favouring belief in re-incarnation, while others interpret them otherwise.

Many siddhis, 'accomplishments' extra ordinary powers, bodily and mental, ability to create what would be commonly regarded as 'miracles', are mentioned in Yoga-Satra-and-Bhāshya, also, the particular kinds of virtues and 'meditations', 'absorptions', 'rapt contemplations', which develops those powers, respectively

"THR ('Rewards and Punishments' and Future Life and Immortality') has no quotations from Sh.C.T., mentioning heaven and hell in the specific sense commonly understood. But p 66 quotes "All the living must die. but the spirit issues forth and is displayed on high, in a condition of glorious brightness." Comment on this will be found in Wilhelm and Jung The Secret of the Golden Flower (Eng translin of a Chimese classic), where the extraction of the subtle body from the dense is described. Rebirth does not seem to have been expressly denied anywhere by these three religions. THR, ch. 16, ('Man and His Perfecting'), has three extracts mentioning 'heaven', but in the sense of God in us, and also outside; as mental scenes of joy and wee in us, parks and jails outside us.

Dévas and upa-dévas, ganas and parshadas, siddhas and vidyā-dharas, apsarās and gandharvas, vaksha-s and raksha-s: farishtās and malayak, parīs and junnāt; frāvarshis, farshārs, amesha-spentas, vazds; dévs and darvands, shis-es and shartans; dasty as and asuras; angels and devils, good and evil spirits of earth, water, fire, air, woods, hills, etc., fairies, gnomes, sylphs, nymphs, undines, dryads, salamanders. brownies, banshees, elves, imps. fiends, demons. devils, spooks, etc., are common to all religions and all peoples. As human bodies are made of certain forms of matter, so the bodies of these are said to be composed of other forms of matter, which are not ordinarily perceptible to our senses (as human bodies are not, to theirs); except in special conditions; as air becomes 'visible', when, as whirl-wind, it 'puts on' a column of dust, sand, or water. To think that no other forms of life are possible than or the Supreme Mystery and Power for Good. Lin Yuxang, My Country and My People, p 189, quotes Chinese sayings. Heaven's way also goes round, 'Keep your own status and resign yourself to heaven's will', 'Let heaven and fate have their way', 'At 50 years of age, Confucius knew heaven's will'. Through Buddhism, however, belief in rebirth seems to have become common throughout China.

such as are cognisable by human senses, is surely to depart very greatly from due modesty. Scores of species of these, high and low, gentle and fiercs, as of herbivorous and carnivorous animals, and of savage and civilised human beings, are named in scriptural books.

I lewish and Christian theology distinguishes nine kinds of angels grouped in three great classes (1) Seraphim, Cherubum, Thrones, (2) Dominions, Virtues, Powers, (3) Principalities, Archangels, Angels Jewish Kabbala adds Eons, Sephiroth, Dignities. Izeds (Yazds) Shadim, Sephiroths, Malakim, Teraphim, Elobim, are also spoken of In Islam, five kinds of Jinns, related to the five elements, are recognised, and it gives special prominence to four great archangels, Jibra-Il, Mikā-Il, Azrā-Il, Isrāf-Il, (The Might of God, Gabri-el, the Spear of God, Micha-el, the Punishing Mood of God, Azrā-el, the angel of Death, Dawning. Unveiling. of the Grace, Sharaf, of God, Serafi-al, the sweet trumpeter and announcer of Morning). somewhat like the four Loka-palas and eight Dik-palas of Vaidika Puranas In Judaism, "Rahm-iel is the angel of Mercy, Tahr-1el, of Purity, Pedä 1el, of Deliverance, fedā (z), Tsadk-1el, of Justice, Rāz-1el, of Divine Secrets" J Abelson, Jewish Mysticism, 127 In Arabic language also, which is a cousin of Hebrew, (since Arabs and Jews are descendants of the two sons of Abraham respectively, by tradition), Rahm means mercy, Tahar, Purity, Feda, Deliverance, submission; Sidq, Justice, Honesty, Raz, secret, and so on. These words indicate great outstanding attributes of the Universal Self or Consciousness, and also embodiments of them, as 'characteristic ruling passions', in personalities

H P Blavatsky, The Secret Doctrine, III. 402, says, "Sephir is Aditi, Mystic Space The Sephiroth are

Different from these are certain disembodied human spirits, floating midway, so to say, between 'this-world' and the 'other-world' proper, midway also of heaven-and-hell, in an abnormal way, like lunatics and maniacs in a community. They are kept tied to the earth, by various strong unfulfilled desires, for varying periods, before passing on to the 'other-world.' Some of these spirits are good but feeble and foolish, others powerful and malignant, according to the quality and strength of their manias. They are known as prétas, pishāchas etc., of many kinds, in Vaidika Dharma, ghools, asibs, etc. ın İslām; ghouls, ghosts, vampıres, ıncubi, sucubbi, etc, in Christianity.

There is no sufficient cause to deny these nonhuman 'spirits', 'sprites', 'nature-spirits'; nor to worship them But the better sort, friendly to man, and willing to help, as inferiors, or as superiors. may be utilized by special processes, as domestic animals, or as superior human friends possessed of power and authority If the evil sort are evoked, (particularly disembodied human spirits), by tantrika prozesses of black magic, jādū, (Skt., yātu, identical with the Hindu Praja-patis (Adityas), the Phyan-Chohāns of Esoteric Buddhism, the Zoroastrian Amsha-spents, and the Elohim, the 'seven angels of the presence', of the Roman Catholic Church" They have some correspondence with the seven best known planets of the solar system whence the name yatu-dhana for the Atlantean race, called also Rākshasas) 1, physical and moral ruin ensue without fail. Prayer for release of such earth-bound souls, and for upward progress of spirits of all kinds, and, indeed, of all living things and beings, is the duty of men, prescribed by all reli-Various rituals and ceremonies. (essential elements in all of which are benevolent sympathetic all-loving will-force of the officient, and his mental and moral purity), are also prescribed and practised in all religious; for purifying the mental, moral, psychical, superphysical, spiritual atmosphere, as fragrant incense purifies the physical; for attracting and facilitating the operations of good spirits, and driving off, and hindering or sterilising and counteracting the work of, evil 'nature-forces' or evil disembodied human ghosts; as perfumes vivify healthy. and disinfectants and antiseptics kill unhealthy, microbes.

In connection with the science and art of Yoga or Sulük, and its stages, magamat, bh ii mì-s, the inner side of all religious recognizes three principal layers, bodies, vehicles, sheaths, 'principles,' in the make-up of man, which are in touch, respectively, with corcesponding worlds or planes as well as with one another. Védanta names them sthula, sükshma. and kārana, se., physical, subtle, and causal; Tamas know them as audārīka, taijasa, and kārmāna sharīras; Buddhıst nırmāna-kāya, sambhoga-kāya, dharma-kāya correspond. Christian mysticism calls them body, soul, and spirit 1 Jewish mystics designate them as nefesh, ruach, and neshāmāh (nūsmā). Tasawwuf uses the Ar. words nafs, rih, and nafs-i-nätigä, or nafs, dil, rih. These three, in the individual, the microcosm, Dind-anda or kshudra-virāt. ālam-v-sagkīr, have their correspondents in the Universal, the Macrocosm, Brahm-anda or Maha-Virat. Alam-i-kabir. These latter are called in Samskrt, Vaishvä-nara (or simply Virāt), Sütr-āţmā (or Hiranyagarbha or Prana), and Sarva-jña (or Isha, Antar-vāmi). m Sūfī terms, Jism-i-kul or Shakl-ikul, Rüh-1-kul or Tabiyat-1-kul or Nafs-i-kul, and Aql-1-kul; Carne or Corpus Mundi, Anuna Mundi, [&]quot;Your schole Spirit and Soul and Body" (B., Thessalomans) In Egyptian Book of the Daad, these same three seem to be indicated by Khā, body, Kā or Rā, soul, Bā, higher soul or Spirit. In Græco-Roman religion we have, carries, umbra (or manus), anima. Some early Christian Fathers, like Iraneus, speak of "carne, amme, spiritu". Zulu terms for these have been mentioned before, at p. 262-3, supra.

I Apparently so-called because, in the composition of their bodies, (as the result of their peculiar foods, which the purer Aryan races avoid) rakshah (pl rakshāmsi, germs or microbes or viruses immical to Āryan bodies) predominated.

Intellectus or Spiritu Mundi; collective total material World-Body, collective total World-Vitality, collective total World-Intelligence. Correspondence to Action, Desire, Knowledge, is obvious

Many kinds of nafs and rih are also distinguished, corresponding to kinds of shariras, koshas, etc. Corresponding states, planes, worlds, are jägrat, svapna, sushupti, (se waking, dreaming, and slumbering), or bhüh, bhuvah, and svah lokas; älam-1-shahäda (or -mulk or - nāsut), ālam-1-misāl (or -malakūt), ālam-1 jabrūt, etc. Subdivisions are

Mention has been made (p 266 supra), of the seven and-s ('earths') and seven arsh-es ('heavens') recognised in Islam They are the same as the fourteen bh uvanas or lokas, seven below, atala, vitala sutala, talātala, mahātala, rasātala, pātāla, and seven above, bhuh, bhuvah, svah, mahah, janah, tapah, satyam Alam-1-ma'ni, (world or place of ideas'), alam-s-lähut, alam-s haliut, etc. are mentioned in Sull books as beyond jabrut, though they are probably only higher and higher subdivisions of jabrul, as the four higher lok as, of the third, so turlya, turyatita, etc m Védanta, may be regarded as degrees or kinds of sushupti and nirvana For purposes of metaphysical theory, as well as yoga-practice, three planes, correspondeing to the three familiar states of wakingdreaming-slumbering, (1) world of physical senses, (2) mental world, and (3) world of the unconscious, with a fourth as only summation of the three, are enough All other states which it may be possible to distinguish, will be only sub divisions of one or other of these, or, will be inventions by the minds of sensationalist sectarians, who wish to show, to a too credulous and wonder-hungry following, that they are possessed of higher and higher also distinguished. Sūfis speak of nafs-i-ammārā, nafs-i-lawwāmā, nafs-i-muļmaimia, nafs-i-mulhima, nafs-i-Rahmānī, etc.¹ These are lower and higher states of the soul, from one standpoint; from another, they may be said broadly to correspond with the five koshas of Védānta and skandhas of Buddhism. Another distinction is between nafs-i-jāri and nafs-i-muqīm, 'wandering body' and 'stationary body'. Jism-i-latīf and jism-i-kasīf mean the same, i.e., fine or subtle body and dense or gross body. This is the same pair as āṭi-vāhika and ādhi-bhautika sharīras of Vedānta, or khe-chara chitţa or sūkshma-sharīra and sthūla-deha of Yoga. Sūfī Jāmī has hinted this living separation of subtle from gross body thus:

Dād ū dil bā har kasé, Man ze ghairat be-murdam basé! Yak bār bi-mīrad har kasé, Béchāra Jāmī bārahā! (S)

(The Loved One gave him-Self to every one, And of that shame of Other-ness I die! All other human beings die but once, Shelpless Jāmī dies repeatedly!)

mysteries and powers which are utterly inaccessible to others See R A Nicholson, Studies in Islamic Mysticism, pp. 122-125.

¹ For explanations, see infra, Ch. III, section ⁶ 7. God an Man, ⁷ sub section ¹ A great Danger ¹.

. Elsewhere he tells,

Än Yahüd-o Mömm-o Tarsā magar Ham-rahī kardand bāham dar safar. Pas Yahūd āward un-che dīda būd, Tā kujā shab rūh-e ū gardīda būd,

- " Dar pay-é Müsä shudam tä Köh-i-Tür, Har do gum gashtém w-az Ishrāq-i-Nür".
- Bād-az-ān Tarsā dar-āmad dar kalām,
- K'-" Aı, Masih-am rü namüd andar maqim."

 Pas Musalmän guft, " Aı yārān-ı-man,

 Pésh-am āmad Mustafā Sultān-ı-man" (S.)
- (A Jew, a Muslim, and a Christian too,
- Happened to come together on the road
 Walking and talking, first the Jew described Whereto his soul had wandered in the night;
 "I followed Moses to the Mount of Tür,
 Where both of us were lost in Blaze of Light."
 The Christian said, "My Christ appeared to me."
 Lastly the Muslim said, "Beloved friends,
 - · To me my King and Prophet showed himself.")

 In these lines limit not only speaks of the soul

In these lines, Jāmī not only speaks of the soul wandering away from the body during sleep, but also shows that there are many mediators, helpers, guides; and that each earnest soul is helped, in dreams, visions, and superphysical; states, by the great personage in whom it may have placed its whole-hearted faith and trust. Incidentally, he provides a beautiful instance of the brotherliness of the wise and pious of all religions.

Muhammad gave, to the select, the counsel:

Muţo qabl un ţamūţo. (H.)
(Die before you die)

The Rshi of Upanishats gives the same advice, to the promising disciple worthy of receiving it:

- Tam svät sharīrāt pra-brhet, munjāt " ıshīkām iva dhairzena. (U.)

(As from the thatching-grass the core is drawn, So from the body should be drawn the soul | With patience, perseverance, fortitude) . . .

"I knew a certain man—whether in body or outside of body, I know not, God knoweth—who was rapt into Paradise and heard things ineffable, which it is not lawful for a man to repeat . . . I knew a man . . . caught up to the third heaven." (B., Paul, 2 Corinthians.)

"The children of this world marry and are given in marriage; but they which shall be accounted worthy, to obtain that world and the resurrection from the dead, neither marry nor are given in marriage. Neither can they die any more; for they are equal unto the angels, and are the children of God, being the children of the resurrection."

(B., Luke.)

276. Loosen subtle from gross body [ch. 11

Jaina prays:

Sbarīraţah karţum ananţa-shakţım, Vibhinnam Ātmānam apāsţa-dosbam, Jinéndra ¹, kosbāţ iva khadga-yashtim, Ţava prasādéna mama astu shaktıh.

(J, AMIŢAGATI, Sāmāyika Pātha)

(E'en as a sword is drawn out from its sheath, So to draw out my pure ethereal soul From this gross body, do thou teach me, Lord!) Bahir-a-kalpiţā vrttih mahā-vidéhā.

(Yoga-Sitra, 111, 43)

(The pow'r to pass out from this case of flesh, In subtle sheath, and roam about at will— Mahā-vi-déhā is this power named)

Soul, āṭi-vāhika déha, sūkshma-sharīra, jāāna-déha, nirmāna-kāya, nafs-i-jārī, jism-i-latīf, jism-i-misāl, subtle body, 'astral' body, has to be loosened from physical body, sṭhūla-sharīra, ādhi-bhautika déha, jada-déha, jism-i-kasīf, jism-i-shahāda, nafs-i-muqīm, gross or dense body, body of fiesh, by regulated fasts and vigils, physical and psychical disserblines, and various subtle introspective processes, of yoga-sulāk, under the guidance of a wise teacher, gurumurshid, pīr-i-mughān, yogī, ṛshi, who has himself passed through the experience and achieved freedom' of subtle body from gross-body. After successful achievement of this great experience, the 'subtle' wears the 'dense', as a person wears a suit of clothes, and can pass into and out of it at will. Then only may the person be said to be 'free' of the bonds of Karma on the earth-plane, bonds which cause his unconscious and involuntary births and deaths here; then he is mukta, has gained najāt, 'release', freedom, so far as this plane is concerned.\(^1\) This, in technical 'superphysical' sense; in 'metaphysical' sense, unshakeable and permanent conviction of Self-dependence and Immortality and Universality is 'freedom' from all fear and doubt.

5. LAW OF ANALOGY OR CORRESPONDENCES.

Another important truth is that of sama-darshita, 'same-sightedness', Law of Correspondences, Law of Analogy. This Law of Analogy, indeed, is the basis of that method of induction which is the foundation of all science. As

"Art of Dying' 'Craft of Dying', 'Science of Death', is dealt with in various books of many dead and living religious See The Tibetan Book of the Dead, by Evans-Wentz (with Foreword by Sir John Woodroffe); The Secret of the Golden Flower, a Chinese Book of Life, by R Wilhelm and C. G Jung, and, of course, Yoga Süfra, and literature of Yoga generally. Bu-thanasia is the Greek word for good dying'

*microcosm', ālam-i-sagķir, kshudra-virāt, so 'macrocosm', ālam-i-kabīr, mahā-virāt, as terrene man so heavenly man—this is how Hebrew, Christian, Islāmic, and Védic mystics put it. As one, so all, in short, because individual and universal are the same. As atom, so solar system—as scientists put it.

Yāvān ayam vai purushah,
Yāvaṭyā samsthayā miṭah,
Tāvān asau api MahāPurushah loka-samsthayā. (Bh)

Vidyā-vinnya-sampanné Brāhmané, gavi, hasţini, Shuni cha éva, shva-pāké cha, Pandiţāh sama-darshinah. (G.)

(As are the components, organs, and parts,
Of single human be-ings—such are those
Of the Vast Macro-Cosmic Man also.
The learned cultured brāhmana, endowed
With the humility which is the crown
Of virtues, as also the elephant,
The cow, the dog, and eater of the dog —Spirit of the same Spirit are all these,
And Matter of the same Root-Matter too,
Only arranged in ever-varying forms,
And the same Laws of Nature work in all—
Thus the same-sighted Wise do understand,)

See The Science of the Self, pp 110-115.

Sharira-sthāni tīrthāni proktāni étani, Bhāraţa l.
Sharīrasya yaṭhā udḍéshāh
sharīr-opari nir-mitāh, Taṭhā pṛṭhivyāh bhāgāh cha, punyāni salilāni cha.

(Mbh., Anu-shāsana, ch. 170.)

(As in the body different organs serve
Differing functions, even so on Earth,
Do various tracts of land, and lakes, and streams,
And oceans own differing properties,
Some holy, beneficial unto man,
Others not such, but the reverse, malign.)

It is common experience that some places inspire cheerfulness, others, gloom.

A Soft almost translates the above Gita verse,

Muhaqqıq hamin binad andar ebil Ke dar 1hüb-rüyān-e Chin o Chagil. (S)

(The wise see in the camel's frame,
The same laws manifest
As in the beauteous Chinese dame
Or_Chagil's belle, the best) 1

¹ Khājā Khān, at p. 89 of his excellent work, The Philosophy of Islam, says. "Referring to Sūratul Hā Mīm, 41, 53, (of Qurān) it may be gathered that God has referred to certain signs in the heavens and in the individualities of men. From this, Sūfis have constructed a theory of micro-cosm and macro cosm, e.g., the

"The mystery of the earthly man is after the mystery of the heavenly man.. The wise can read the mysteries in the human face" (Ju. Zohar, II, 76 a.)

twalve zodiacs are the twalve holes in the human body. the seven planets are the five senses plus the senses (organs) of talking and understanding. The body is the earth: the bones, the mountains, space, the sea... This, as well as the theory of the five elements and twenty-five g u u a s, qualities, possess a distinctive Hindu stamp The Muslim philosophy in Southern India is so much mixed up with that of the Hindus, that it is diffi cult to distinguish it " But the difficulty should be welcomed very heartily Is there any need to distinguish. to see difference, instead of agreement? Is not 'mixing up assimilation, very desirable, very helpful? The correspondences between the 'large' and the small', Infinite and Infinitesimal, have been described, in various ways, in Puranas. Upanishats, Smrtis, Véda itself, repeatedly And now, as said in text above, western Science is discerning them. Some scientists have even put forth the view that orbs of heaven are living beings. For a brief statement of reason why' of Law of Analogy, working'in all departments of Nature, reader may see the present writer's The Science of Peace, 3rd edn., ch. xv Detailed and astonishing illustrations of it are to be found in those marvellous mines of 'occult' knowledge, H P Blavatsky's Isis Unveiled and The Secret Doctrine The ancient Samskrt work, Nu ukta, explains libitand why certain Véda-texts have to be explained in three ways, metaphysical or ā d h y-ā t m 1 k a, scientific or y ā j ā 1 k a (or adhi-daivika), and historical or aitihasika (or adhi-bhautika), each interpretation being true Madame Blavatsky's works explain how these and other interpretations, in terms of other sciences, are all correct. She speaks of the 'seven-fold' key to the Scriptures

e.u.a.r] orbs of space are living beings 281°

"As above, so below," (Ju., Kabbalist axiom.)

"Just as the soul fills the body, so God fills the world; as the soul bears the body, so God endures the world, as the soul sees but is not seen, so God

Khājā Khāu, at p 13 of his book above mentioned, gives a diagram showing twenty-eight 'potencies', inherent attributes or principles, Asma-1-Ilaht, and twenty-eight corresponding 'manifestations' Asmā-i-Kiyāni, in the Universe at large If he had only pursued the same principles' in their manifestations in the human being in particular, he would have seen that the view was not peculiarly 'Hindu', as he says, but natural and universal In Purana-Mythos, Brahma, Creative Cosmic Mind (of our Solar Cosmos or System) first creates seven (or ten) manasa-putra-s, mental sons' These are called primal, primeval, prajapatis, patriarchs, progenitors, of all types of living beings They correspond to, or are same as. Sephiroth, Angels, Blohim, etc., of other religions, see fn, pp 268-'9, supra They are also presiding deities, vitalising souls, of the seven (or ten) planets of our solar system. Each planet has its own types of life; they all exchange their IIvas, also, in in accord with 'occult' laws, as countries and conti-nents of this earth exchange 'colonists' immigrants' and 'emigrants', which is only another illustration of the working of the Law of Analogy, on minutest as well as vastest scales Reader who may be interested in this ly of thought, or 'science', or 'speculation', may consult H P Blavatsky's great books, and some of the later 'theosophical' literature Famous American philosopher. William James, in his book, A Pluralistic Universe, descants magnificently on the idea entertained by a German thinker, Fechner, that Earth is a living being, a great cosmic Individual. In Indian mythos, of course, she is Prthvi-Dévi, great 'goddess' Earth.

sees but is not seen:" (Ju., Talmid, quoted by J. Abelson, Jewish Mysticism, pp. 155-56)

Yatha pındé tatha Brahm-andé. (Védanta axiom.) (As is the small man, such the Cosmic Man: As the 'small egg', such the vast 'orbs of space'.) "All that is Yonder, is also here." (Plotinus)

Yad éva iha, tad amutra: vad amutra tad anu iha. Mrtyoh sah mrtyum apnöti yah iha nana ıva pashyatı. (Katha Up , 2-4-10).

(That which is 'here', is 'there'; that which is there'

Is here also. Who sees but Many only. And not the One too, death on death is his.)

This sam a-ta, this uniformity, in the working of Laws of Nature, can be due to nothing else than the Unity of Nature's God, as one so all; as once so always; as here so everywhere, because the Same One Self is in all, is ever present, is everywhere present.1 It is also basis of that Equality which democratic heart craves after, and rightly, when within due limits. Vedanța states the

But to know that same laws of matter and mind are working in every living being, does not abolish difference between right and wrong, good and evil, gentle and fierce, it does not mean that we should behave in same way towards wolf and human child. Nature's laws include ample provision for differential behaviour. See sufra, Ch III, Section 3, on Golden Rule.

metaphysical fact on which Law of Analogy, samaţā, is based, as Sarvam Sarvaṭra Sarvadā, 'All is everywhere and always'. Tasawwif describes it as Induāj-1-Kul-f-1-Kul, 'Immanence of All in all, in each and everything'. Bible speaks of it as "the fulness of Him that filleth all in all." Jewish sacred book, Talmād, honored next after Old Testament of Bible, says: "No atom of matter, in the whole vastness of the universe is lost; how then can man's soul, which comprises the whole world in one idea, be lost?" "

Whole of Sun is imaged in every the most microscopic dew-drop reflection, and every such reflection comes from, is present and included in, the vast light-sphere of the sun.

> Vidyajé sa cha sarvasmin, sarvam ţasmin cha vidyajé, Tasmāţ Sam-viţ iţi prokţah Param-Āţniā mah-āţmabhih.

> > (Vāvu-Purāna.)

(Since Everything exists in Consciousness, And Consciousness exists in Everything, Hence Sam-vit, 'Principle of Consciousness', Is one of the great names by which they know, The great-souled ones, the Supreme Self of All.)

¹ Riley, Bible of Bibles, p 148.

. Science speaks of the potency of infinite multiplication present in each seed, germ, microbe; of infinite vibrations of each atom perpetually affecting all other infinite atoms, of infinite photographs being conveyed to each point of space eternally by infinite rays of light from all directions from the most distant stars and planets, of infinite sights, sounds, etc., filling all space constantly, and needing only appropriate apparatus to be caught; and so forth. Obviously, to know all about the least little atom, is to know all about the Universe, for each part of a Whole is inseparably connected with all the other parts of the Whole.

6. Long Line of Spiritual Hierarchy

Another thought, which all religions hold unitedly, is that, as chain of evolution extends below man, so it extends above him also; and that advanced souls, forming a Spiritual Hierarchy, take care of the Human' Race, and guard and guide it on its upward path, as parents and teachers do their children and pupils. Famous western scientists also have openly expressed their belief that this must be every other material point that does not act on every other material point. When we observe that a thing really is where it acts, we shall be led to say, as Faraday was, that each of them fills the world.", Bergson, Creative Boolution, p. 214.

so. All religions mention these hierarchs. Vaidika Dharma calls them Avajāras, Amshas, Kalās, Vibhūjis, Kumāras, Manus, Rshis, Munis, of many degrees Buddhism names them as Buddhas, Prajyéka-buddhas, Bodhi-sajivas. Jainism knows them as Ţirthan-karas, Siddhas, Munis, and Arhajs. Islām knows them as Qutubs, Ghauses, Watads, Abrār, Badals, Akhyār, Walis, Nabīs, Rasūls. Christianity calls them Sons of God, Messiahs, Thrones, Principalities, Powers, Prophets, Saints. Judaism calls them Patriarchs, Prophets, Sages. Zoroastrianism knows them as Soshyanis, 'Renovators, whose task is to re-interpret the Eternal Truth from time to time', 'Lovers of mankind', also Naroish-naro, se, 'Men of men', Supermen.'

Țao-ısm says:

"The High Emperor of the Sombre Heavens descends to earth... bundreds.. (upon) hundreds (of) times, to become the companion of the common people and teach them the truth... to heal the sick... to endure suffering patiently and ^{&#}x27;The word Soshyanta, it seems, etymologically means lovers, of mankind, also 'renovators' of Humanity as well as of Truth, 'givers of a new, a second, birth to mankind', by giving birth afresh to the Eternal Truths, for their instruction, purification, and advancement; Skt. st., to pro-create. Zoroastrians believe in "three prophets. Oshedar-Cami, Oshedarmah, and Sosiosh, preceded by Zarathustra". H. P. Blavatsky, Isis Unvisited, II, 467.

give his life again and again, that his pain may be a spring of joy and righteousness to many hearts."

Kṛshna and Dévi-Shakti say:

> Yadā yadā hi dbarmasya glānih bhavati, Bhārata !, Abhy-ut-thānam a-dharmasya, tadā Ātmānam srjāmi Aham Pari-trānāya sādhūnām, vināshāya cha dush-krtām, Dharma-sam-sthāpan-ārthāya, sam-bhavāmi yugé yugé. (G.)

Itṭham yadā yadā bādhā , dānav-oṭtha bbavishyaṭi, Tadā tadā ava-tīrya Aham karishyāmi ari-sau-kshayam.

(Durgā-subta-shatī)

(To guard the good and slay the wicked men, And re-establish on firm base My Law, I manifest My-Salf age after age.

When law and righteousness decline and fade, And vicious sin uplifts a fearless head,

Then I incarnate to redress the world.

Quoted by J. Estim Carpenter, The Place of Christianity in the Religious of the World, p 60.

Faizi, Court-poet of Emperor Akbar, has translated this famous verse into Persian thus,

Chu bunyād-ı-Din sust gardad basé, Numāyém Khuḍ rā ba shaklé Kasé,

E.U.A.R.] SUPER-MEN AND SUPER-ANIMALS 287

Whene'er the evil ones oppress the good, I will take birth, and slay them without fail)

Bahvīh samsara-māṇah Aham
Yonīh vartāmi, Sat-tama I,
Dharma-sam-rakshan-ārthāya,
Dharma-sam-sṭhāpanāya cha.
Dharmasya Sétum badhnāmi,
chalité chalité yugé,
Ţāh ṭāh youīh pra-vishya Aham, prajānām hita-kamyayā.

(Mbh., Anu-Gītā, ch. 54).

. (Many the types of wombs through which I pass, Moving for ever through the Universe, To guard from harm or re-establish Dharma. Time and again I strengthen Dharma's Bridge Whene'er Forces of Darkness weaken it. For helping on of all, e'en animals, Who also are my progeny and My-Self, I take on form of even bird and beast.)¹

Eţaţ nānā-Avatārānām nıdhānam bījam Avyayam,

Anoder reading of the first line is, Cho shwal-1-dunya bi-garded khase.

Rudyard Kipling, H. Melville, E. Thompson Seton, E Bullen, C D Roberts, and others, have written very interesting stories of 'leaders' of flocks of mountain sheep, shoals of seals, schools of whales, herds of deer, flights of pigeons, etc.

Yasya amsh-āmshéna jāyanţê déva-ţuryang-nar-ādayah. (Bh.)

(My Universal Mind is the One Fount, Exhaustless, the One ever-fruitful Seed, Of all the Sparks infinitesimal, Atomic, countless, that ensoul all forms High, low, of gods, men, animals; While rarer Sparks of greater Light and Might Appear as Avajār's to guide them right.)

Muhammad says:

Le kullé qaumin hāḍ. . In mın ummatin illā kḥalā fihā nazīr. . . Wa la qad ba asuā fi kulli ummaṭın Rasūlan. (Q, 35. 25; 16. 37.)

(To every race great Teachers have been sent God hath not left any community Without a prophet, warner, and true guide. He sendeth Prophets to the ignorant And those misguided into evil ways, Raising these prophets up from 'mongst themselves To purify them, and to teach to them. His signs and wisdom and philosophy.)

Inn-Allahā yaba'so lihāzeh-il ummaṭé a'lā rasé kullé méyaṭé sanaṭin mañ-yujaḍdaḍ lahā dīna-hā. · (H . recorded by Abū Dāuḍ) (At the beginning of each 'hundred years', God sends, for every race, a teacher who Revives Religion freshly for the world)'

Kāna fī Hindé nabī-yun aswad-ul-laune isma-hū Kahman.³ (H, recorded by Dailamī, in Tārīkḥ-i-Hamdan, Bāb-ul-Kāf.)

(A Nabi-Prophet lived and taught in Hind, Dark of complexion, Kahin was his name)

Zālekā fazi-Uliāhé yofihé mañ-yashāo, w-Allāho zul-fazi-il. Allāho yā'lamo haiso yaja'lorasālatahu. (Q.)

(Such prophetship is a great gift from God. And God is very generous. He also knows Who worthy is to be His messenger)

Zoroastrian Gatha says:

Anghétish daréthrāya fro ashahyā frārénté véréjadāïsh senghāish Saoshyantām khratavo...

At tor anghém Saoshyanto dakhyūnām yör kshanūm vohu mananghā hachāonté...

There is a very similar doctrine stated in theosophical books. Another verse of Quran, 23 45, says, in view of the fact that most prophets are not honored in their day or country,

(To people after people have we sent Apostle on Apostle, mostly, though, The people have denied, or even killed, them.) There is a similar statement in the Bible

I s., Krshna, which means 'the Dark One'.

... Yé qāthaébyo érésh Ratum kshyāmsa ashivāo chistā. Gāthā, 46. 3, 48. 12, 51. 5) (Take up the disciplines enjoined by them,

The Saoshyantas, Lovers of Mankind,

Masters of Yoga, for thy soul's welfare;

In thought, in word, in deed, yea, take them up!

In every land, of e'en barbarians,

Are there Saoshyantas who have attained

The Great Peace of the Universal Self.

This Sovereign of the World, the Self of All,

Hath sent down righteous Prophets unto us,

Saoshyantas, to show us the Right Path.)

(In every age, a religious Guide appears

Who ministers to the people and protects them,

Obeying, in such work, the Will of Yazdan)

(A Zoroastrian text.)

Theurgists and Platonists of the earlier centuries of the Christian era seem to have distinguished between Theo-pheusty (inspiration or the mysterious power to hear the oral teachings of a god), Theopathy (assimilation of divine nature), and Theophany (actual appearance of a god in man), as grades of spiritual progress.

Buddha says:

"In due time another Buddha will arise He will be known as Maitreya" (which means he whose nature is kindness')..." After the death of each Buddha, his religion flourishes for a time, then decays, and is at last completely forgotten, until a new Buddhs appears, who again preaches the lost truth of Pharma." (Seven Baskets.)

Tesus says:

"I will come again and receive you unto myself, that where I am, ye may be also." (8.)

"Behold, I will send you Elijah the prophet before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord" (B., Malachi.)

And elsewhere we read in the Bible:

"Out of thee (Bethlehem) shall He come forth unto Me that is to be ruler in Israel; whose goings forth have been from of old, from everlasting." (B., Micah.)

The last words are especially significant.

"God hath not left himself without witness in any land." (B)

Isaiah says:

"The Spirit of the Lord God is upon me." (B.)

"The Spirit of the Lord shall rest upon him (s.e., Jesus)." (B)

And Jeremiah:

"And the Lord said unto me—Behold, I have put My words in thy mouth." (B.)

In Qurān, the fact is emphasised over and over again that it is Allah who is speaking through the lips of Muhammad.

Even simply to bear these great souls in mind, as loving helpers, as examples, as standards, as proofs of the possibility for all of high achievement; and much more, to get into touch with them, by developing spiritual and moral merit, and opening up the subtler senses, 'extending' the faculties into the superphysical, the finer and more ethereal, planes; this helps our own progress as members of the vast Fraternity of Man, nay, of all living beings.

Fundamental Truths and Teachings remain ever the same, but frame-works in which they manifest, decay and lose vitality, over and over again, in race after race, age after age, clime after clime, tongue after tongue. Words, names, forms, become hackneyed, with lapse of centuries; and human hearts respond to them no longer, vividly and actively. The new spiritual impulse, new descent of the divine fire of life, that is needed to vivify afresh those Truths and Teachings, and give them a new birth in the living frame of a new language and new forms, in a new generation, or a new race, new place, new epoch—such divine afflatus can be given only by such Supermen. They incarnate as Founders of Religions; and, by the fire and fervour of their ishq-1-haqiq1, karam-bā-khalq, dunyā-dosti,1

BE khalq karam kun ke Khuda be to karam kard. (SL'DI) 'Since God loves thee, thou too shouldst love all beings.'

Love divine and universal. Brahma-nishtha. Vishva-préma. Loka-hit-éhā; ardent flame of their compassion for man-kind; fed constantly by the fuel of their deeds of self-sacrifice-by such tapas-fire in their own hearts, they set affame hearts of other human beings, all around, with similar love of God and of mankind. Thus they give a New Life-time, of a whole Great Era, to the Eternal Truths, and so give birth to a New Civilisation. This is their supreme work-of bringing into the world afresh, a great influx of spiritual, moral, emotional force. Intellectual work, also indispensable, of re-proclaiming basic eternal truths, is also done by them; but that of expounding and reconciling their teachings, 15 done afterwards by studious followers, lesser persons. While these latter remain true servants of the Spirit, and well-wishers of mankind, the religion flourishes. When they become false, selfish, aggressive, proud, malevolent, then they begin to misinterpret and to divide instead of reconciling and uniting; sects arise and multiply; decay begins.1

¹ Creators of a movement, who give it its origin, its life, its energy, its emotional impulse, and its actional impetus, are, usually, other than those who give it its detailed philosophy, and do its teaching, and guiding, its right direction, even as parents of a child are usually other than its teachers. This does not mean that teacher and teaching begin to exist, are born, after

It should also be noted that the Evolutionary Chain or Spiral of living beings, high and low, stretches infinitely, above as well as below, according to the Scriptures of nations; and modern science also vouches for it. Thus:

"Looking at the matter from the most rigidly scientific point of view, the assumption that amidst the myriads of worlds scattered through endless space, there can be no intelligence as much greater than man's, as his is greater than a black beetle's; no Being endowed with powers of influencing the course of Nature as much greater than his, as his is greater than a snail's;

parents and child; but only that the work of education, clear exposition of the philosophy, begins after the child, the movement, has been born As history has gone, so far, usually philosophy and movement have acted and re-acted on, and helped to define, each other. If parents and teachers have been in consultation with each other before the child is conceived and gestated and born, or if parents are also teachers—then conditions for successful growth are most favorable. Only in rare cases, of some purna-avataras, insan-ulkamu, mazhar s-atamm, have aspects of Al-Badl and Al-Alim, Brahmā and Vishnu, Creator and Teacher, been combined, and then too, all aspects have scarcely been Either the aspect of Knowledge as equally manifested Teacher, or of Action as History maker and Warrior, or of Desire as Inspirer of Love and Devotion and Purifier of soul, prevails, and manifests more than the other two, but, of course, never exclusively, for all three aspects are inseparable, though distinguishable seems to me not merely baseless but impertinent. Without stepping beyond the analogy of what is known, it is easy to people the cosmos with entities in the ascending scale until we reach something practically indistinguishable from omnipotence, omnipresence, and omniscience."

7. GOAL OF LIFE-TO FEEL SELF IN ALL

The great truth which may be mentioned last here, is only another aspect of the first Self comes

Reader who cares to pursue the subject further, may look into the present writer's Kṛṣhṇa, A Study in the Theory of Avaṭāras

Prof T. H Huxley, Essays on Some Controverted Questions, p 36 (edn of 1892) Prof Huxley was one of the most renowned scientists of Britain, in the last quarter of the last century Later, the more famous A. R. Wallace, and also Sir Oliver Lodge, publicly professed adherence to the same belief. The latter has written "Two things I am impressed with-the first. the reality and activity of powerful, but not almighty. helpers, to whom, in some direct and proximate sense, We owe guidance and management and reasonable control; and next, with the fearful majesty of still higher aspects of the universe, culminating in an Immanent Unitv which transcends our utmost possibility of thought." Julian Huxley, a grandson of the Professor, writes (Essays in Popular Science, p. 119-120) "The truth 15, of course, that Huyley was essentially and deeply religious, but that this really obvious fact was completely masked for the average man of his day by his on-slaughts on what that average man imagined an integral part of his religion, but Huxley regarded as a dead weight, an obstruction to any true religion" And he supports his statement by many quotations from Huxley back to It-Self, remembers its forgotten Infinitude. The Wanderer returns Home. In symbol, the Serpent of Wisdom and of world-cycles swallows its own tail. A circling of the soul is completed. Extremes meet. Infinitesimal is seen to be Infinite. Individual and Universal become One.

'End', 'aım', 'purpose', 'goal', 'object', 'fundamental value' of life, Purush-artha, magsad-i-zındagi, ıs dual. There are two Summa Bons. First purpose of life is Abhy-udaya, na'mai-idunyavi, prosperity, success, in the life of this world, enjoyment of the good things of Earth, through sensor and motor organs, it is threefold, (1) dharma, (2) artha, (3) kāma, (1) dayanat, (2) daulat, (3) lazzat-ud-dunya, or (3) Sense-joy, refined by (2) Wealth, regulated by (1) Law; in other words, happy (3) Family-life, beautified by (2) Property and artistic possessions, restrained, controlled, regulated by (1) Religioninspired Law of Right-and-Duty. This first triple end of life is to be pursued in first half of life. Second half of life is to be devoted to achievement of the final goal, moksha, nagat, 'salvation', freedom from all sorrow, the second Summum Bonum, Nis-shréyas, Param-Ananda, Khair-1-mahaz, Lazzat-ul-Ilāhiyā, Hazz-ı-ā'lā. Greatest Good, joy than which there is no greater joy, 'to be like God', 'to become merged into God', 'to become God', Supreme Beatitude and Bliss.'

The final purpose of life, inherently cherished by every human heart, is Return to the Original State from which we have erred away; is Assurance, Realisation, that the whole World-Process is Play of One-Self, My-Selfs without restraint by an-Other; is Liberty from all compulsion by another, Recollection of Our-Self as Supreme Maker, Mender, and Ender of all, Freedom of Spirit from bonds of fear, doubt, sorrow, Salvation from sin, Deliverance from error, Emancipation from superstition, Ab-solu-ison, absolved-ness. Ab-solute-ness, from all limitation and its consequences Some time, sooner or later, this Freedom comes to each and every soul, after experience of all kinds of joys and sorrows, sins and merits, deeps and heights of life, because all souls are parts of the One Supreme Self, and it comes by realisation that there is no Other than Self, which can restrain or compel. Vaidika Dharma, Buddhism, and Jainism know this state as Mukti; also as Nir-vana, annihilation or extinction of sense of Reader who cares to pursue the subject of 'Goal of Life' further, may look into the present writer's The Science of the Self and The Science of Social Organization.

Buddha's 'demal' 'of any self', has been commonly mis-understood to imply that nirvana is annihilation, complete extinction, and that the sole aim of the wise.

separateness and egoism, and blossoming of sense. and tasting of Bliss, of Oneness with the Universal Self, which constitutes 'return' of the soul to its Source. Islam knows it by words which are exact equivalents of Mukti and Nir-vana, vis, Najāt and Fanā-f-Illāh. The last words means extraction or annihilation into God, with its accompanying ecstasy of joy. Lazzat-ul-Ilaheva, Brahm-Enanda, Spiritual. Blessedness, dissolving into 'Bliss of God'. opposite of vishaya-ananda, or lazzat-ud dunya, worldly 'joy of sense-objects'. Obverse of Fanā-f-Illah is Baqa f-Illah, 'remaining' or 'abiding' eternally in God. Corresponding Skt. words would be Brahma-līna-ta, 'disappearance in Brahma', and Brahma-bhāva or Brahma-stha-tā, 'state or Brahma' or 'establishment in Brahma'. Jewish man should be such extinction This denial of self by Buddha is only the 'self-denial' of English language, but with a far greater and deeper significance Sānkhya Kārikā's 'na asmi na mé', and Charaka's 'Na Etad Aham' and 'Na Étan Mama', have the same significance.

wrote to me that Baqā-f-Illāh is the restit of 'idealisation of the real and realisation of the ideal '—an excellent way of putting the thought in words. In theosophical terms 'attaching the upper half of the fifth principle to the sixth and seventh principles, or higher Manas to Buddhi and Āṭmā, (see f n , p 263, supra), means the same thereby, the nobler thoughts and emotions which make up higher Manas, and constitute what may be called Kabbalists call it 'the Palace of Love'; Gnostics, 'the Pleroma of Eternal Light'; Christians, the Kingdom of Heaven'. Christianity calls it also Beatitude of Salvation accomplished, Supreme Blessedness and Divine Bliss, 'the soul feels' salved', 'saved', from 'death', is, that death of 'soul', which is 'the wages of sin', break-up of 'subtile body', sükshma-sharīra, which results from persistent gross sin; death of physical body is, of course, inevitable St. Paul speaks of "the Glorious Liberty of the Sons of God". And again, he says a

"Stand fast therefore in the Liberty [mukti] where-with Christ hath made us Free, and be not entangled again with the yoke of Bondage [bandha]." (B., Paul.) The Truth" (of the identity of the Individual with the Universal) "will set you free." (B.)

There is no 'other-vess,' ghair-iyat, itara-ţā, left in this state of Bliss. All is I. "The Universe grows I". Purusha becomes Brahma; Jîv-āṭmā becomes Param-Āṭmā; Amsha becomes Pārna, the Part, the Whole; Anāniyat-i-adnā, Yathā dīpah nı-vāṭa-sthah na Ingaṭé sā upamā smrtā (Steady as lamp-fiame m a wud-lass place)

^{&#}x27;real', are ',deal ised', 'spiritualised' and the supraconscious unspecialised, un-'real'-ised, 'ideal' Buddhi and Ārmā are 'real-ised'

¹ Epicurean Indolentia, Perfect Repose, is one aspect of Nirvāna , as in Gitā

Shakhsiyat-i-adnā, the Individual, becomes Anāniyat-i-ā'lā. Shakhsiyat-i-ā'la, the Universal, Chitta becomes Chit, Vi-shishta-Chaitanya, limited, particularised, individualised consciousness, Vishishta-Sattā, speci-fic existence, becomes Chaiṭanya-sāmānya, Universal Consciousness, Sattasāmānya, gener-al, Universal Being; Khud of Khudī becomes Khudā, the Drop becomes the Ocean; the Infinitesimal, the Infinite, Man becomes God. Becomes, by recognising the identity of the two, which were never two.

As-Sidqo yunji, w-al-kizbo yohlik. (Q.) (Truth giveth freedom, Untruth giveth death.)

As described by those who have experienced the realisation, there is, in it, the 'intellectual conviction' of identity of one-self with the Universal Self; there is also the 'affective' or 'emotional feeling' of that union, a very great exaltation, a sense of utter security and certainty; as the first romance of perfectly reciprocated human love raised to a very high degree, even to infinite, degree, for here we have love of all, instead of only two, and there is also the 'actional' or 'volitional' aspect of the 'will', the 'resolve', to become, or, indeed, the sense of having become, or, of heing, a 'missionary of God', a 'son of God', the sense of one's (triple) body being now an 'instrument', an 'organ' of the Universal Will-Life-Intelligence.

Bhaktih, Par-ésh-ānu--bhavah, vi-raktib
Anyatra cha, ésha trikah éka-kālah. (Bhāg).
(Love Universal, sense of Dei-ty, Surcease of selfish act—all three in one)

"All are but parts of One stupendous Whole, Whose body Nature is and God the Soul." (POPE.)
Yad, Agné!, syām Aham Tvam,
Tvam vā dhā syā Aham. (Rg-Véda, 8, 44, 23) (Lord Agni! Fire and Light and Guide Within!
Ordain that I be Thou, and Thou be I!)

Aham bhavān, na cha anyah tvam, Tvam éva Aham, vi-chakshva, bhoh !, Na nau pashyanti kavayah Chhidram iātu manāg-abi. (Bhāg)

(Thou art I, verily; None Else art Thou; And I am thou, know well, deep in thy heart, There is no difference 'twiat Thee and Me. The Seers, who can see, have seen this Truth)

Man tũ shūdam, tũ man shudī, Man ṭan shudam, tũ jān shuḍī, Tā kas ṇa goyad bād az īn, Man dīgaram, ṭū dīgarī (S.),

(I am none else than Thou, and Thou than I, 'I am thy body and Thou art My Soul

^{&#}x27;Agra nayatı,' That which leads forward', is 'Agrai', the Divine Fire withm,

302 . 'I AM THOU AND THOU ART I' [CHL]

Let no one say hereafter that I am Other than Thee, or Thou other than I)

Yathā satah purushāṭ késha-lomāu. Taṭhā Aksharāt sambhavaṭı ıha Vıshvam. (U) (As from the human being grow hairs and nails, So grows this Cosmos from th' Eternal Self)

Haq jān-i-jahān ast, wa jahān jumla baḍan;
Tauhīḍ hamīn ast; digar shéwa o fan. (S.)

(One single Body—this Whole Universe;
God—Its One Soul; spirits, souls, angels all—
Its organs and its senses, th' elements,
And all the Natural kingdoms are its limbs—
Such the significance of Unity)

Ţat srshtvā tat éva anu-prā-vishat . . . Ésha vai Vishva-rūpah Ātmā Vaishvā-narah Tatra ko mohah, kah shokah, Ekaţvam anu-pashyatah. (U)

(The Self creates this world and enters in, As soul in body, to the very nails. The Total of All Bodies and All Souls Is His One Single Body and One Soul. For him who sees him-Self in every self, In everything, there is no longer left Any perplexity, doubt, sorrow, fear)

Other names for this Bliss are surit -1-jäwédűni, 'permanent intoxication', 1stighräq, 'mergence' into the One, Brahma-līnaţā; 'disappearance in

- Exercise 90 A 1 In no country in the world are the children more obedient to their parents than in China 2 Looked upon with great reverence 3 Silently 4 Lead a comfortable lise (be well off in later life) 5 First-class cooks 6 Ontdoor life
- B 1. Quadruped 2 He who does not acquire knowledge and wastes his youth, ends his life miserably 3 Mean 4 Money is the root of all evils 7 Ceaseless effort 8 The fool who 9 A little knowledge is a dangerous thing 10. Deserts you in the time of (adversity) trouble, trust